A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin, as summer ramifies into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and fragrant influence.

SKIN DISEASES & GLANDULAR SWELLINGS.

Every species of cutaneous irruption is quickly relieved by the assiduous employment of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions, such as Skin Rashes, Blotches, Pustules, Ringworm, Scald Head, Nettle Rash, Scabies (or Itch), &c., die out, to return no more under its application. Hospitals, in every part of the world, prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, muscles, the joints and the glands.

ULCERS, SORES, AND TUMORS.

The Ointment, when rubbed on the surface, upon scrofulous and other ulcerous sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

WOUNDS, BRUISES, BURNS, AND SCALDS.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading Hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

UNDENIABLE TESTIMONY.

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs,	Rheumatism,	Sore Throats,
Burns,	Ringworm,	Sores of all kinds
Chapped hands,	Salt Rheum,	Sprains,
Chilblains,	Scalds,	Stiff Joints
Coco Bay,	Skin Diseases	Tetter,
Corns,	Swelled	Ulcers,
Lumbago,	Glands,	Venereal Sores,
Mercurial	Sore Legs,	Wounds of all
Eruptions,	Sore Breasts,	kinds.
Piles,	Sore Heads,

Poetry

SPEAK NOT AGAINST THY FELLOW MAN.

Speak not against thy fellow man
Whate'er his lot may be,
But kindly all his actions scan
In heartfelt charity.
Thou art thyself an erring one,
And prone like him to stray,
Thy wayward feet like his may shun
The straight and narrow way.

Speak not against thy fellow man
Of high or lowly birth,
If virtue crowns his fleeting span,
He is a star on earth.
His life may shed a radiant gleam
Of light around thy way,—
Which evermore may gently beam
Till life's declining day.

Speak not against thy fellow man
Nor grieve his trusting heart:
Do thou sustain his waning span
Nor let thy love depart.
The heart indeed the soul's deep seat
Should ever prized be,
The voice of kindness ever sweet
Its answering tones from thee.

Speak not against thy fellow man
The heart like his may know
Full many a pang of those on earth
Around thy path may flow.
Then in the book of life
Let charity engraven be,
The heart a spring will find in thine
To cheer thy latter years.

LET THE HEART BE FEARLESS.

So the mouth be pure and beautiful,
Let the cheek
Heed not what the rose may say,
Of purity and grace;
Though the mind be filled with glowing thoughts,
And love and wit sit upon the lip,
What matter though the cheek be pale,
Or the eye lack brilliancy?

Though the cheek, the cheek be beautiful
It soon may lose its bloom,
And the lustre of the eye be quenched
In darkness of the tomb;
But the glory of the mind will live,
Though the bloom of life depart;
And on it the charm can never die
Of a true and noble heart.

The lips that utter kindly thoughts
Have beauty all their own—
For gentler are they—sweeter far
Than music's softest tones;
And though the voice be harsh and shrill
And hi ls the oppressed go free,
And soothes the woes of a struggling one,
That voice is dear to me.

THE DEVOTED LOVER.

A TALE OF THE CHOLERA IN IRELAND.

BY HERBERT GRAHAM.

It was a warm yet damp evening in the middle of July 1832; the morning had been wet, but some hours after noon the rain gradually ceased, the clouds parted and allowed here and there a patch of blue sky to become visible, and now and then the sun shone out with summer brightness and summer heat; but its rays were partial, seeming to render light the numerous rich green islands which seemed as if they floated on the glassy bosom of Loch Gilly, yet leaving thick mists hanging gracefully, but heavily, around the summits of Knocknagea and Benbulben. The tinkling of a bell came sweetly on the air. 'Six o'clock! and she is not yet come,' muttered Herbert Bailey, mending his sauntering pace. He had scarcely uttered the words, when a small door way leading into the grounds of one of the many fine seats that are situated on Loch Gilly's declicious banks, was opened, and the next instant he held the hand of Ellen Trevor in his.

'Have you waited long?' she whispered.

'Very long it appeared to me,' he replied, smiling; 'yet, if counted, I dare say not more than a quarter of an hour.'

He drew her arm within his, and after walking to a little distance in earnest conversation, they sat down on a bank overshadowed by a wide spreading beech.

'You look pale and breathless still,' said Herbert, anxiously surveying the face of the maiden. 'Ah! Ellen, you are a timid girl! But no wonder! No wonder that the rich and courted Miss Trevor should have a pallid cheek, at the bankrupt merchant's poor forgotten son!'

'Herbert! Herbert!' cried she, 'do you suppose I ever think of these things? I am, do you suppose I ever think I am exalted above you, because my father is wealthy and yours is poor? Trust those stealthy messengers take from my cheek, but you know not the strong courage that is hidden in my heart. You seem to have much of courage; you are daring. I only grant that nought may ever occur to make you believing?'

'You speak earnestly, dearest Ellen.'

'Because I feel earnestly,' she replied.

'Weakness and timidity are twin born with woman, and laughing boy, therefore, my gentle girl, there is no right to blame you for possessing these attributes. It is much woman's nature to fear, as much man's to be fearless, if these were equally shared, we would see woman gaining on the field, and strewing us of half our laurels; and therefore that this would be agreeable to our dominion as conquerors. We like well enough to lay our swords at your feet of ourselves but we would not willingly see you endowed with the power to throw them forcibly from our blows.'

'You are far away from the sort of courage I speak of,' said Ellen. 'Would you allude to manly courage, will I venture to say that there are many a thousand who would have as much of that in a woman, but if gentleness you call [illegible] and protectors in the hour of danger [illegible] courage that [illegible] in the [illegible] for my sake, and [illegible] now as calm, [illegible] I am sure, [illegible] a little while ago [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
