A lumberman just returned from a tour of inspection in Northern Ontario, says the forest fires in the north are the worst he ever knew. Logs lying on the banks of streams are burning. Men are working day and night to keen off the fires, which they attempt to do by clearing land and by digging treuches, but without success. In addition to losing timber the camos are burning. The rivers are actually drying up for want of rain.

After a careful examination of all the different lesson helps published in the United States, we have been very much impressed by the superiority of the Bantist Periodicals. They are the best edited, the best printed, of the best material, the most original, and the most helpful of all that we have seen. At the same time they are as cheap as the cheapest.
