

OPPOSITION RAISES STORM IN HUNGARIAN DIET

ENEMY FEELING AFFECTS OF THE BLACKLIST

England Not Likely to Change Policy to Suit United States.

PURELY WAR MEASURE LORD CECIL SAYS.

Idea that Blacklist is Entering Wedge for Trade Warfare After European Struggle is Erroneous.

London, Sept. 8.—"It is not likely that Great Britain will change her policy at the request of the United States," said Lord Robert Cecil, minister of war trade, in discussing today the possible effect of recent American retaliatory legislation.

Lord Robert, however, declined to enter into the details of the contents of the reply, beyond the statement that the principle embodied in British legislation forbidding trading with an enemy country is unlikely to be surrendered in any measure. The minister of war trade professed himself to be puzzled by the provisions in the revenue bill passed by Congress at Washington, dealing with the prohibition of imports, as such orders, he said, were adopted strictly in an effort to conserve tonnage, and were applied accordingly. In a general defence of British commercial acts to the Associated Press, Lord Robert said:

"The ideas expressed by some of your newspapers that Great Britain is adopting a deliberate policy with which to injure American trade is the purest moonshine, since outside of our own dominions our trade with the United States is the most important. Of course, naturally trade rivalry exists, but no responsible statesman in this country would dream of proposing an insane measure designed to injure American commerce."

"Any impression that the blacklist is merely an entering wedge for a trade warfare after the war may be dismissed at once. I assure you the blacklist is purely a war measure, and I cannot insist too strongly that the government is taking every precaution to guarantee its enforcement so as to cause as little hardship as possible to innocent traders."

"We believe our trade measures are proving efficacious, although it is difficult to give any figures indicating the extent of the harm done to our enemies, but I might point out that the mark is still declining in value."

It was then pointed out to Lord Robert that the belief prevailed that consignments of firms trading with blacklisted firms might be refused shipment from American to other neutral ports through the fear of not getting coal, Lord Robert replied:

"This fear is unfounded, as we have no desire to interfere, nor does the law contemplate any interference with legitimate trade. We are taking precautions to prevent an unjustified extension of the blacklist."

Questioned in regard to the fate of a ship accepting a consignment from a blacklisted firm to any South American port, the minister of war trade said:

"I fear we have to insist that our nationals refuse to supply coal for such a purpose, and I am afraid that a refusal of the United States to permit the clearance of a vessel refusing such a consignment would cause friction between the two countries."

U. S. Has Wrong Impression.

Lord Robert expressed the opinion that not only the purpose of the blacklist, but also the real design of the Paris economic conference, was misunderstood in the United States, saying in this connection:

Ceaseless Deluge Of Shells, Sky Like One Vast Furnace

An Eye-witness Describes British and French Bombardment of Enemy's Line.

EACH DAY ATTACK GROWS IN VIOLENCE

Enormous Masses of Earth Blown Up, Among it Bodies of the Dead, Torn to Fragments.

Paris, Sept. 8.—The ever-increasing violence of the bombardment now in progress along more than thirty miles of fighting front in the Somme sector is thus described in a despatch today from the authorized correspondent of La Liberte with the French army:

"From one end to the other of the attacking front the cannonade raged yesterday evening, reaching a degree of intensity hitherto without precedent. Each day it seems as if the extreme limit possible had been reached, and each day the bombardment still grows in violence and fury. The French and British batteries along the whole front never cease to pour out a deluge of thousands and thousands of shells of every calibre."

"Never before have I witnessed such a spectacle," said an officer, who had just returned from the front near Verdun.

"The German positions at the close of yesterday evening were surrounded with clouds of dust and smoke, through which objects could be distinguished faintly. One frightful explosion followed another. From time to time one saw enormous masses of earth and material thrown up, and among it all the bodies of the dead, torn to fragments."

"When night came the sky stretched out like one vast furnace, so that as far as one could see there was nothing but an horizon of fire."

BIG MEETING AT LOWER WOODSTOCK

Hon. Dr. Landry, Mayor Sutton and F. C. Squires were the Speakers.

Special to The Standard.

Woodstock, Sept. 8.—Hon. Dr. Landry, Mayor Sutton and F. C. Squires addressed a big meeting at Lower Woodstock tonight. The people of this section are solid for the government candidates, Hon. Mr. Smith and Mayor Sutton. Through a typographical error Hon. Mr. Murray was reported as saying at the Richmond Corner rally that the old government had collected the territorial revenue from 1902 to 1908 a yearly average of $374,338.42. The correct amount is $347,338.42 as compared with a yearly average of $311,919.16 under the present government.

Hon. Dr. Landry, Hon. Mr. Murray and H. W. Woods, M. L. A., are returning to their respective homes tomorrow.

WILD SCENE IN HUNGARIAN PARLIAMENT

Premier Tisza is Denounced as a Traitor by Angry Members.

RECALL HOME OF TROOPS DEMANDED

Government and its Diplomacy Dupe of Roumania, Opposition Party Charges.

Budapest, Sept. 5, via Berlin and London, Sept. 7.—Dark were the clouds that hung over the Hungarian parliament today when it reconvened and red-gloamed the anger of the people against the government as reflected by a large portion of the House.

A constant chorus and refrain, "Abdicat! Resign! Get out! You have betrayed the Fatherland!" greeted Premier Tisza in one of the most tumultuous sessions in years. The Karolyi, Apponyi, Justh and Andrássy parties, but more especially Karolyi and Justh, hurled accusation after accusation at Tisza that the Hungarian nation had been deceived and misled as to the imminence of the Roumanian entrance into the war, and charged that the government and its diplomacy had been the dupe of Roumanian cunning, which had brought so much misery, suffering and loss to the people of the richest sections of Hungary, where thousands of refugees were suddenly compelled to flee before the unexpected invasion when resting secure under Tisza's assurances of Aug. 24.

Admits Government was Misled. Count Czerni, the Austro-Hungarian minister at Bucharest, was called a traitor. Count Tisza, for his part, frankly admitted that every branch in the government, diplomatic and military, had been misled and deceived by Roumania.

He fell back upon the "reluctance placed in a king's word," and expressed the hope that "with God's help Roumania would not escape its fate." Count Tisza appealed for unity in the great hour, and in that was seconded by Counts Apponyi and Andrássy, despite their scathing criticism.

Count Tisza's efforts to bring about some agreement between the government and the opposition continued until almost midnight, but failed.

The moment the Prime Minister, in the absence of Emperor Francis Joseph practically rules Hungary, entered the chamber, bedlam broke loose in a veritable storm of shrieks and denunciations from the Left of the House, led by Karolyi.

After 10 minutes of pandemonium succeeded in having the roll called, Tisza arose to speak. It was the signal for a renewal of pandemonium.

"Honorable House, I fulfill the duty," he began, but his voice was immediately lost in jeers, catcalls and shouts. "No, you don't!" Julius Justh yelled. "No, you don't. Then abdicate, that's your duty!" which was immediately taken up by the Opposition, all except the Andrássy followers. Tisza finally managed to make himself heard once more.

He had no intention of abandoning the Government or getting out, and told them so frankly, which was the signal for 10 minutes more noise. His opponents cried:

"You permitted yourself to be made a monkey by the Roumanians. You are not fit to head the Government. Why don't you bring the Hungarian troops home to protect their own country?"

"At the proper time I will take the responsibility for everything," Tisza managed to interpret. "Your responsibility counts for nothing," was the quick retort, and again the storm attained dramatic heights.

Fortified, as was generally believed, by the Chamber and lobbies, with a royal decree in his pocket, signed by the aged King at Vienna, dissolving or adjourning Parliament, Tisza never for a moment lost equanimity or patience.

He characterized Roumania's actions as unprecedented in history, having been preceded neither by formal demands nor a notice denouncing the alliance that existed between Roumania and Austria.

SEE DANGER TO U. S. TRADE

Washington Uneasy Over Recent Statement of Lloyd George Concerning Data Obtained Through Mail Censorship.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Extension of the British mail censorship from its original purpose of destroying all trade to or from Germany to the field of providing data for Great Britain's fight for commercial supremacy is seen here in admissions made by David Lloyd George, the war secretary before parliament, just received in full in this country. Lloyd George said:

"It is the practice to communicate to other departments concerning any information on matters of national interest which may be obtained through the censorship for such use to be made of it as the particular department may consider advisable."

"The government is perfectly within its rights in using any information which comes to it in these conditions, for any public and national purpose."

This statement made recently in response to questions by members of the House of Commons, created a stir here.

When asked about the matter tonight Secretary of State Lansing said it had been called to the attention of the state department officially, but declined to make any comment at this time.

It is understood, however, that the department will take a most serious view of Lloyd George's interpretation of the British war office power, and will protest more vigorously than ever against interference with neutral mails on the high seas.

It is pointed out that the war minister's attitude appears to be in flat contradiction to that expressed by Lord Robert Cecil, minister of trade, and reiterated emphatically in his statement August 25, saying:

"It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the general and statistical information extracted from trade letters which has proved so invaluable to His Majesty's government in checking the supply of material sent through neutral to enemy countries, and suppressing the export of enemy goods, is used for these purposes solely and never for the purpose of substituting allied trade for neutral."

After Vacation Peel Your Discolored Skin

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be wise in immediately taking up the medicinal treatment. Washers beaten skin had best come off, for no amount of cream and soap will ever make such skin pretty to look at. The surest, easiest way to shed the discolored skin is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and wash it off in the morning with warm water. Minute particles of scrub skin will peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath. One ounce of mercuric iodine, diluted with any drug store, is enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use. Burning heat, irritating winds and dirt are such wrinkle-makers that the daily use of the following antipigment-cream lotion at this season is highly advisable: Freckled axillae, nose, cheeks, dissolved in which, one-half pint. Used as a face bath, this is a splendid wrinkle remover and preservative.
