DESIGNED WITH YOUTHFUL CHARM

If one is wedded to the youthful modes, there is no better way of declaring one's allegiance than in this check-voile frock. The skirt has the ultra-smart apron tunic, while the blouse has an applied front, to the sides of which the sash is attached. A little collar of plain silk with frilled edges finishes the round neck. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material, with 1/2 yard trimming fabric.

FOR THE SCHOOL GIRLS.

With the opening of schools the subject of school clothes becomes a most important one. While the best schools do not stipulate that there shall be a uniform style of dressing, they nevertheless insist upon extreme simplicity. Thanks to clever designers, however, clothes are far from being banal or uninteresting. Among the new models there is one which promises to become quite as much a favorite as the two-piece jersey dress of last season. It consists of a one-piece frock of jersey with a cape to match and in both style and color is most appropriate for the school girl.

Several others are rather similar in style, with slight variations as to collar, sleeves, and details. One dress has collar and cuffs of white kid, which also binds the pockets. For the very necessary suit there are excellent models of soft-lined, home-spun or tweed with plain skirts and equally plain box coats, often finished with a medium size fur collar. These with felt or velvet hats to match make a costume whose youthful chic is beyond question. Beautifully soft in texture and line are the new top coats of camel's hair, which this season are shown in a smart shade of Oxford gray as well as the usual shades of beige and deep tan. Embroidered motifs done in red silk add youthfulness to a frock of navy blue twill which as a foundation skirt, collar and sleeve facings of dark blue crepe de chine.

THE TRAVEL BUREAU.
All day she sits behind a bright brass rail,
Planning proud journeying in terms that bring
Far places near; high colored words that sing.
The Taj Mahal at Agra "Dharmir's Vale,"
Spanning wide spaces with her clear detail,
Sevilla or Fiesole in June. Her words take wing;
She is mistress of the great out-trail.
At half-past five she puts her mugs away,
Fits on a gray neck hat and braves the alect.
A timid eye on traffic. Duffly gray,
The house that harbors her in a gray street,
The close, sequestered, colorless retreat
Where she was born, where she will always stay.

MOTHERS! WATCH YOUR TEETHING BABIES.

THOUSANDS OF THEM DIE EVERY SUMMER

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, there is the time the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. The child's bowels become loose, and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps and other bowel complaints manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, canker form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow, and very often the foundation is laid.
On the first indication of any looseness of the bowels, give a few doses of

and this, perhaps, save your baby's life.
For the past 25 years, Dr. Fowler's has been used by mothers for teething babies so you do not experiment with a new gift unless it is commonly known to be safe and sound to your darling's health.

Low Waistline Prevailing Mode

Jackets Are Both Long and Short — Braid Trimming Used for Suits.

New York, Sept. 11.—It is the unanimous opinion expressed by the large number of buyers just arrived from Paris, that the long-waisted effects are to figure in fashions with increasing strength. It was emphasized that the extremes would be avoided by American as impracticable, in line with the modifying policy that always controls domestic adaptation of French styles.

These buyers also agree that there is no doubt in their minds that, notwithstanding the late Paris openings and their feelings toward decidedly longer skirts in some cases, the public here is not as yet ready to relinquish the comfort of skirts which clear the ground to go suddenly to another extreme. The hem will be let down a few inches, is the prediction, but this is the extent that they say they think the French skirt styles will affect creations here.

Much more extensive, as has been pointed out, is the forecast made with regard to sleeves. It is generally stated by these arrivals from the French fashion centre that sleeves are among the most notable and pleasing features of the new collection. They afford great variety, it is pointed out, according to the intended use of the garment, in length, width and the present short styles are more becoming and make women look more youthful. Among the styles shown by the houses he also mentions the straight bodice with low waistline, often reaching to hips.

Jet and Beads.
Besides a great deal of plain materials used in many of the models, one buyer calls attention to the use of much jet and bead and especially a novelty in the form of tricot studded with beads. Duvernoy, although not in such good quality as made in America, was shown, and all sorts of crepes for dresses as well as chiffon and brocade veils, combined with jet. For trimmings, lace and embroideries were in order, he comments.

Another leading buyer points out that the suits were of two distinctly different types. One type, made for the young girl by such houses as Jenny, Bernard, Drocchi and Paton, had short jackets, the most conspicuous trimmings being lynx dyed, green or brown besides the natural gray, which idea originated with Paton, says Mr. Weingarten.

On the other hand, Renee, Drocchi and Bernard have also shown suit models for women made with quite long, about three-quarter length jackets, he declares. Renee's jackets were with very low waistline, giving Russian blouse effect. Skirts to this class of suits were a little longer, but this buyer also emphasizes the use of radical departure from the present length of skirts can be expected for the coming season. Quite a number of coat dresses were also shown during the late openings.

One of conspicuous trimmings on suits and coats was braid employed in all width, he says, mentioning a suit model from Jenny, the upper part of the jacket being entirely covered with braid.

In separate coats the latest thing was a new butterfly sleeve made in one with the bottom of the garment. Among the materials, the use of chiffon velvet, and among the trimmings heavy wool and old gold embroideries were stressed.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS:

By HELEN ROWLAND (Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Being the Confessions of the Seventh-Hundredth Wife

My son, as thou lovest thy peace of mind, hope not to be any woman's Ideal Man.

First, in all the world, there is no such Being! Behold, in her hand, every damsel cherishes an image of the Perfect Lover.

Lo, the beauty of Adams, the curls of Hyperion, the grace of a Russian dancer, the muscles of Dempsy, the charm of Leo Deltrickstein, and the smile of Douglas Fairbanks, all these are his.

Yet he is untouched by vanity, and conceals it not in his. More brilliant than Bernard Shaw's is his wit—yet he never attempts to be "funny."

More perfect than Solomon's is his judgment—yet never doth he offer "advice"; and "I told you so" is not in his vocabulary.

Smother that a saint's tears is his tongue and more glittering than an Anthony Hope hero's his gift of repartee—yet, doth he babble mainly in baby-talk and sweet nothings, and never doth he answer back.

He is ALWAYS clean-shaven—yet never doth he monopolize the mirror.

To his wife, he shall be a constant and devoted companion—yet never shall he bore her, neither shall he hang about the house, mornings.

He is clever enough to make much money—yet foolish enough to fling it away upon a woman's whims.

In Wall Street, he is a wizard, and in the market place a shining light—yet never is he too "busy" to delight in afternoon teas, nor too weary, after his day's labors, to fox-trot until morning.

As a tailor's advertisement and a haberdasher's model, is he always arrayed—yet he takes no thought for his raiment, neither is he conscious of his collar.

Among women he is worshipped and adored—yet, never doth he glance at a woman; and his middle name is "Unconsciousness."

He is clothed with pride, and dignity siteth upon his brow—yet, doth he delight to be "babied," and to have his hair ruffled.

Verily, verily, he is a Paragon OF paragons—simple and subtle, practical and poetic, serious and amusing, frank and mysterious, satirical and human, and altogether PERFECT!

Yet, be of good cheer, my Son; for no damsel shall find the Perfect Lover of her dream.

And, it shall come to pass, that one day, a damsel shall look upon THEE, and endow thee in her heart, with all these gifts of her imagination.

And, falling down before thee, she shall exclaim in her blindness: "Behold, it is HE—my Ideal!"

And the gospels shall whisper, "Good Heavens! What did she see in HIM?"

And, thy rivals shall mutter, "Lucky Dog!"

Yet, if thou art wise and subtle, perceptive, and all the days of her life, she shall never awaken from her trance.

And thou shalt dwell upon a pedestal and wear a shining halo, forever!

And thy "virtues" shall be recounted to the matrons, at village teas; and amongst the buds, thou shalt be known as "Ideal Husband." Selah.

FROM HERE AND THERE.

Miss Marie B. Beatty, bond clerk for the Board of Supervisors in Los Angeles, Cal., is known as a financial wizard. She handles bonds every year valued at many millions of dollars and calculates the interest, prepares the advertisements for the sale of the bonds and keeps bond buyers informed.

One definition of a truly irresistible heart-breaker is the man who allows himself to forgive him even when he is in the right.

Mildred S. Crow, who sails from Portland, Ore., is listed among the biggest exporters in China, where she carries on an extensive business of manufacturing articles for American consumption. Miss Crow now operates three factories in China, turning out rugs, four kilns for manufacturing porcelain vases, and hundreds of workers turning out lace, embroidery, toys, furniture and many other useful articles. Miss Crow is still yet in her early 30's and is the only woman member of the American Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai.

Miss Lou Melton of Wyoming, Col., has the distinction of being the only woman member of the Colorado Society of Engineers and Architects. She is also a member of the American Association of Engineers.

GOOD ADVICE.

Then let the honest-hearted workers, whether in the factory, on the farm, in the bank or in the office; in the pulpit or in the teacher's chair; at the editor's desk or at the linotype machine; rich or poor, high or low, have a new birth of righteousness and patriotism, and a new consecration to work as God's appointed way to man's advancement here and hereafter. He who spoke as never man spoke said: "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." Who will follow in the same spirit?—Manufacturers' Record.

Speed Roly Poly.
Five pounds grapes, two pounds cinnamon, one pound allspice, four pounds sugar, one and a half pounds cloves, one cup vinegar.

Stew and wash grapes. Cook slowly for one hour. Add spices and boil 20 minutes. Add sugar and vinegar and boil ten minutes. Pour in sterilized jars and seal while hot.

Peach Roly Poly.
Make the crust in the usual way and spread it on floured cloth. Peel and chop enough peaches to make three cups, add cup of sugar and a lump of soft butter, fold into the crust, and tie in the floured cloth. Boil in water for two hours. In the meantime take the same amount of peaches and stew in one cup of water until they are soft.

Will Women Wear Knickerbockers?

Stated That These Garments Will be Popular for Business Women.

Next! Knickerbocker suits for business women as well as for sports attire.

As the result of a famous firm of men's attire sending mannequins in kid suits to smart New York hotels and on the avenues a nation-wide controversy is waging in the States. It promises to outrival the bobbed hair debate.

The most highly-paid editor in the world solemnly proclaims that "the idea of knickerbockers for women will spread, especially for business women."

"It is a good idea, and men are always ready for something new," he continues, "that's to their credit."

On the other hand, the head of a famous house of smart attire for women says: "Knickerbockers for the woman? Yes, if they care to live on a farm, but for the city they cannot expect the men to walk with them on the street, take them to dinner, dances or the theatre in that ridiculous costume. Men will stand for bobbed hair, socks, short skirts, smoking, drinking—but they want them to be dressed as ladies. For one, we will refuse to make any orders if asked to."

Still another firm, who claim distinction of originating women's knickerbockers for sports wear, emphatically declared that he thoroughly opposed the idea of wearing the knickerbockers as a street costume for general wear.

For Sports Wear.
"We originated women's knickerbockers for sports wear over a year ago," said the head of the riding breeches were in vogue before we brought out our product, but so far as I have been able to learn we were the originators of the knickerbockers costume. We made up a few knickerbockers and prevailed upon some of our friends to wear them. The comfort and freedom attracted other women and now we are daily receiving repeated orders from stores showing the knicker suits."

"I am opposed to women wearing knickerbockers to business. The garments were designed primarily for sports wear and there is hardly any branch of sports where knickerbocks may not be worn with advantage to the player's comfort. Then, too, knickerbocks are desirable in any sort of outdoor life, where freedom of movement is essential to comfort. In fact, I would recommend that any woman contemplating a long railroad journey, wear knickerbocks on the train, because of the comfort given to the wearer, plus the fact she is freed from worrying about wrinkles in her dress."

"I firmly believe that knickerbocks will become increasingly popular for sports wear. In fact, their popularity is already increasing, as is shown by our order book, but I don't believe women will wear them to business and I strictly hope that they don't."

War work familiarized many of our women at home and overseas with knickerbocks, but they gladly donned their pretty clothes again.

PATCHWORK BEDSPREAD.

Applied and patchwork bedspreads are smart. An effective design takes the form of a basket of varied colored flowers worked on unbleached muslin. The design may also be applied to curtains, bureau covers, pillow-cases, sofa cushions and seat ends, completing an attractive and new "old-fashioned" bedroom.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrup. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The St. John point up as follows:—Y. M. Commercial, 5; Y. M. Commercial, 5; Y. M. Commercial, 5; Y. M. Commercial, 5.

The leading point victuals were Len Pictou, 16, first, and J. H. Maxwell and Grant Hot fax, tied for second

A good crowd, which was larger if the weather had been so threatening, was present at the East End grounds for the Maritime Track and Jockey Club. The annual point winners were held in some fine sport. The practically all of them were one or two of them were raising variety and had their feet yelling in their various favorites. Delegation made them and the Island represent a splendid showing, being point winners of the day.

The pole vault, in which Donald, of Pictou, beat of Charlottetown, doing and equalling the record of Halpin in 1904, of Hughes, a team mate failed at a team 11 in, former champion was unable to make a jump. McDonald have made a new record pushed, for he seemed of clearance at the 11 feet.

The finish of the 500 brought the crowd to the local man, Lambert, who made a wonderful spring the line in front. This practically been conceded, of Halifax, who led the best lap. The calling for Lambert for when the bell was last lap he started to close the gap between the leader. About 10 yards from the finish he sprinted and ran that distance had just started a 2-30ers was second and bell of the Abegweit's event.

The hundred yard dash contested and Charlie through with a win in the 20-45 seconds.

Quincy Smith, of Sussex boys 2.20 with Drew M. Y. M. C. A. team a close in the high jump. All had things all his own Campbell and L. Cam Abegweits, failed at 4 and Len McDonald, of Pictou 7-8 inches.

The 250 yards saw 10 fishes. This was won by Pictou, with Doyle and of the Abegweits in second position.

The half mile was won by Mooney, of Stellarton, mile run by Holmes, cents, who also won the Miller, of Sussex, won had things all his own Campbell and L. Cam Abegweits, failed at 4 and Len McDonald, of Pictou 7-8 inches.
