ADVICE.

He has told you the same old story. Told ever since by wiser—The story of pure devotion. Unchanging while life endures—This passionate, political.

He has called you by every title Which leaves delight to repeat—A queen, a goddess, an angel.

With charger and sword—And laid the troublesome treasure Men call a heart at your feet.

You ask me what you shall answer? Ah, child, can you counsel thow? The way of a thought against him? Love never hesitates so!

Answer him, Mr. Mr. Mr. For ever and ever No!

There lives a marvelous insect In the Southern meadows far, Where the wild white icemenes And the poison dews are.

It circles a flying jewel. Beasts are bold and bold. It settles to rest a moment. A globe of molten gold!

But once in the hand impressed. Its color grows dull and cold: You grasp at a flashing jewel! Worthy a monarch's crown, Glistening, shining, gleaming, And glittering and down, And capture—a dabbled beetle, Sluggish and dull and brown!

And then, to a youth's mad fancy, Is the object of love's wild quest—Reckoned above all blessing, Dearest and first and best, So long as remote and elusive—But worthless when once possessed.

So weariness comes of having. Since happiness means pursuit; And love grows weary and faded, And bears but a bitter fruit, For the serpent of self forever Coils about its neck.

So lips which have met in kisses Grow chary of tender speech, So hearts which are bound together Grow burdensome and leaden, And the only things men value Are those which they can not reach.

So the gainer counts as nothing The blessing that should have been: The conqueror turns in defeat, From the conquest he gloried in, Languid, like Alexander, And gladder would he be, Who sees for the road-side roses, Which bloom within grasp of all, While their inaccessible sisters, Less lively and less dull, But dearer because of their distance—Lean over the garden wall?

Then answer him, No, young maiden: Be still and serene: These are heart-sick wiles in plenty, But an angel is seldom seen. Keep to your cloud, bright maiden! Stay on your throne, fair queen!

—ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN, in Harper's Magazine for March.

NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES. A Peoria naturalist, in attempting to warm the ears of a frozen wren over a gas jet, discovered that the work of the insect chewed out first, and worked with a rapidity that was as astonishing as the hideous profanity of the naturalist, who held the insect by the tail while thus experimenting.

A Green Bay, Wis., politician, who stands to stand well with his grangers, sings: "The bickery berry vine entwines The oak and the maple tree; The oakener's better skills and plays To the tune of the bickery berry vine. On tall loughs 'mid the back-west hills, While the bay ball lilted to the rambling Hues out the golden clover."

A terrible tragedy in Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, resulted in the death of J. J. Gilkey and Dr. C. E. Cleveland. There had been an old feud between the men, and on Saturday night Dr. Cleveland started out to avenge his purpose on Gilkey. One Devoe tried to make him desist, but to no purpose. The men met, drew pistols, and fired simultaneously. Dr. Cleveland fired twice, and fell dead on his face. Gilkey retreated a few steps, leaned against a tree, and then fell dead to the ground. Both men had been drinking hard during the day.

GENERAL. Adam had one consolation when he fell. Fifteen or twenty acquaintances didn't stand on the opposite corner and laugh at his mishap.

A friend informs us that notwithstanding the severity of the weather and depth of snow he saw a cowslip in the open air yesterday. The cow was on the ice.

Dugald—"I saw ye me at the kirk the day, Tom!" Donald—"Yeer ree! I had me coppers for the plate, and I need the threepenny bit for tabacky the morn."

A gentleman writing a letter concluded it as follows: "Give everybody's love to everybody, so that nobody may be aggrieved by anybody being forgotten by somebody."

A little girl asked a minister, "Do you think my father will go to heaven?" "Why, yes, my child. Why do you ask?" "Well, because if he don't have his own way there, he won't stay long, I was thinking."

The goldfields of South Africa, which at first disappointed the expectations of the original discoverers, of late have yielded the miners more profitable returns. The most of the gold is in reefs, and extensive veins of gold-bearing quartz have been found which will probably pay well when they come to be worked by complete machinery. But recently alluvial gold fields of wonderful richness have been discovered, and these are attracting crowds of gold seekers, natives as well as Europeans, from all parts of South Africa. Stories are told of nuggets found there weighing from sixteen ounces to two pounds, and it is reported that one forty-
