

held in the Savoy moving picture theatre, kindly lent by the manager, until Feb. 1910, when the basement of the new building was ready for use. On Easter Day, 27 March, 1910, the present church was used for the first time and dedicated a month later. The following year a peal of 8 bells was given and installed by a small band of lady workers.

In 1911 S. George's mission was built in the Northwest of the city, the work was undertaken by the members of the brotherhood of S. Andrew, who had also helped in the building of S. Michael's; Canon Rathbone Hartley of Heywood, Lanes., assisted generously in financing the undertaking; the mission soon proved too small and was enlarged in two years' time. Mr. C. F. Kempton gave much help to the work in this district as lay reader.

In 1912, the Rev'd. J. F. Southam was appointed assistant to the rector. In the following year S. Barnabas mission was built in the Northeast quarter
