Two Books of Power

The Life of Richard Cobden and of John Bright

Richard Cobden and John Bright were the men, who, sixty years ago, broke the might of the protectionists of Great Britain and made that country the commercial leaders of the world. In the year 1841 there were thousands of homes in the old country where wives, mothers and children were dying of hunger. Their sufferings were fearful owing to the high tax, or tariff, on wheat, which, in turn, raised the price of bread. Like generals with genius, Cobden and Bright went around the country lecturing, urging the people to form associations, get up petitions and hold district meetings until, in the short space of seven years, the feeling for free trade was so strong that Parliament had to accede to the people's demands. Cobden and Bright were consistent enemies of monopoly and waged an active battle almost single-handed against the Protectionists and their immovable host. Every farmer in Canada should read one or other of these books.

Once you realize the all-powerful truths outlined in this story, you will understand what it means to be under the thumb of greedy corporations.

My Story, by Tom L. Johnson is a book that will interest every Canadian citizen who has a desire to have social and political wrongs corrected. Mr. Johnson fought and conquered against overwhelming odds because he believed in the people and addressed himself to them with a sincerity, vigor and freshness of method as unusual as they were effective. Mr. Johnson was the first political leader in the United States to ask his supporters to vote against candidates of his own party and for those of his opponents. Principles were ever of more importance than persons or parties. There is humor, sweetness and power to be found in "My Story," but it is the story of a man who was worthy of being a leader of men. Men of the Tom Johnson stamp are badly needed in Canada today.
