Liquor Seller Convicted.

Haileybury, May 15.—The adjourned trial of Walter Wilkins, charged with the illegal sale of liquor, was held here Monday before Magistrate Brown and Cobbold and resulted in the conviction of the accused, who was sentenced to four months imprisonment in the common jail.

DO YOUR EARS RING?

When they buzz and seem slightly deaf, beware of catarrhal inflammation. This grows steadily worse, but can be cured by Catarrhones. J. A. Hammill, of Greenmount, P. E. I., proved the merit of Catarrhones and writes: "No one could have worse Catarrh than I had for years. It caused partial deafness, bad taste, upset my stomach, made me sick all over. Catarrhones cleared my nostrils, stopped the cough and gave me a clear feeling in my breathing organs. I am absolutely cured." Doctors say nothing is better than Catarrhones. Try it and you'll say so, too. Two sizes, 25c. and $1.00 at all dealers.

Royal Society of Canada.
Ottawa, May 15.—The annual meeting of the Royal Society of Canada opened yesterday morning in the Normal School here, with an attendance of about sixty members. The sessions will continue until Thursday. The principal item on yesterday's meeting was the annual report of the council.
To-day a historical landmarks' association will be organized by members of the society.

LOSS OF APPETITE AND ENERGY.

Singly they are a worry—combined they become a burden, telling that waste has been immensely greater than the body's power to rebuild. The first need is to reconstruct the blood, make good the deficiency of red cells. Ferrozone improves digestion, makes blood the kind that nourishes and rebuilds. Quickly the nervous system responds to the new power supplied by Nerviline. Strength returns, ambition revives, energy and endurance give the system just what it needs to maintain the balance of health. No tonic better than Ferrozone, 50c. per box at all dealers.

Steamer Byron Whitaker Sunk.
Detroit, May 14.—The steamer Byron Whitaker of Detroit, was sunk in the lower Detroit River Sunday night off Amherstburg, in a collision with the steamer John C. Gault. The Gault proceeded on her journey up the river. The Whitaker was going down the river with a load of corn. She was built at Mount Clemens in 1890. Her crew were rescued by the crew of the tug General.

"500 People Badly Bent" have in effect used these words in speaking of the curative qualities of South American Rheumatic Cure: My legs were crippled. My hands were distorted. My joints were swollen. My back was bent double. My pain was excruciating. Bedridden for years. This great remedy has been the heaven-sent agent that worked a permanent cure.
Sold by W. W. Turner.

Boy Drowned.
Clarksburg, May 15.—While the seven-year old son of M. Stoutenburg, along with two school mates, was playing around the river trying to secure a fishing line, which they had found.

In reaching for it Willie fell into the water.
Mr. Steel caught the boy while it was going down the river, and Drs. Moore and Hurlbut worked for two hours to revive him, but with success.

ARE YOU NERVOUS?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourishing blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby the nerves are properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery which runs in oil. In this way you feel clean, strong and vigorous — you are toned up and invigorated, and you are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

The trouble with most tonics and medicines which have a large following for a short time, is that they are largely composed of alcohol holding the drugs in solution. This alcohol shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, and in the long run greatly injures the system. One may feel exhilarated and better for the time being, yet in the end weakened and with vitality decreased. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol. Every bottle of it bears upon its wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in a full list of all its several ingredients. For the druggist to offer you something which claims to be "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Nothing reveals a man's character more fully than the spirit in which he bears his limitations.

AN ARTISTIC FAD.

Jewelry Making a Fascinating Work For Clever Women.

With the fashion for handmade jewelry, clear stones in quaintly designed silver settings and combinations of coral and jade with silver or gold, there has naturally followed a fad for learning to make such jewelry.

The woman who has any idea whatever of designing, with a certain amount of patience and skill in handling such work, finds that with inexpensive tools and materials she can turn out jewelry that is pretty and artistic looking, however much it may lack in lasting qualities.

At any rate, it is fascinating work and not nearly so expensive as it may at first sound. Silver is cheap, and pieces that have been spoiled or any cuttings or scrapings may be sold to the dealer for only a few cents less than the original cost, while a number of the cheaper stones, carnelians, moonstones, chrysoprase and others of the same varieties may be purchased most reasonably.

The materials required for the work are a small blowpipe and spirit lamp, a small pair of tweezers, a piece of asbestos cardboard, three needle files, round, square and three sided, a fine camel's hair brush, a little hammer, two small light pliers, a pair of scissors and a penknife, a small vise to screw on to the table, a piece of slate and some fine binding wire.

The first thing to learn is soldering—that is, to unite pieces of silver by melting into the joint an alloy which melts at a temperature that only makes the silver red hot.

This is done by rubbing a lump of borax on to a piece of slate with a drop of water until a paste is formed, scraping the places where the silver is to be joined until they are quite bright and tying them together with the binding wire.

The joint is covered with the borax paste, a few tiny drops of solder are put on it, then it is placed on the asbestos cardboard and a flow from the blowpipe is turned on it. Soon after the blowpipe is red hot the solder will melt and run along the joint, and when cool the two pieces will be firmly fixed together.

In setting a stone the plain box setting will be found most satisfactory for the amateur. A piece of silver just a little larger than the stone should be cut; also a narrow strip the exact size of its circumference. This should not be too wide or it will hide the stone. Bend this up to form a collar and solder the ends together, then fit it around the stone to see that it is the right size. Scrape the bottom and solder it on to the base, cutting off all the superfluous silver and filing the top to a level so that it may easily be burnished.

One clever woman who has taken up jewelry making as a pastime has several most attractive pieces to her credit, pieces on which the workmanship is as good as the designing, for they seem quite as substantial as those made by professionals.

One of these is a dainty slide, composed of heart shaped chrysoprase surrounded by a unique design of tiny beads and twisted wire, with a small baroque pearl drop hanging from it. The other is a most unusual looking pendant of silver and jade. The jade is of an irregular shape set into an oval design of tiny leaves and with a smaller jade drop.

Suggestions For the Housewife.
If your lamp wick smokes, soak it in vinegar.

In packing bottles slip rubber bands over them to prevent breakage.
A piece of soft flannel is better than a brush for removing dust from silk.
A lump of camphor placed in the clothespress will keep steel ornaments bright.

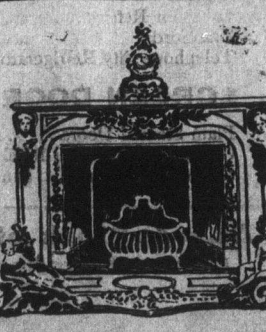

Scale or crust can be prevented in a teakettle by keeping an eggshell in the kettle.
Rub white spots on oilcloth caused by heat from utensils with spirits of camphor.

Place a small bag of unslacked lime inside the piano. It will keep the strings from rusting.
To clean marble busts, mantels, etc., wipe free of dust, then wash with a weak hydrochloric acid.

Spots on plush will disappear if rubbed lightly and rapidly with a clean soft cotton cloth dipped in chloroform.
A sponging with a solution of one part ox gall to two parts of water is said to brighten the colors in a faded carpet.

For the Period Room.

In the period room the chimney piece plays as important a part as the furniture and hangings, and every detail must be as correct. Special interest attaches, therefore, to the reproductions of beautiful samples of old French chimney pieces. Louis XV. rooms are favorites with the period fanciers, and the chimney piece here illustrated is a most attractive example of correct style. It is executed in white marble, with ornate mounts, the modeling of the various figures being exceptionally good.

His "Right" Name.
From queer names and descriptions of things there follow as a natural sequence queer names and descriptions of people. Among a number of racy instances is one quoted by Mr. Fox-Davies, the well known authority on nomenclature, from Blackwood's Magazine, of April, 1842. "In one of the Buchan fishing villages a stranger had occasion to call on a fisherman of the name of Alexander White. Meeting a girl, he asked, 'Can ye tell me far Sanny Fite lives?' 'Fik Sanny Fite' quoth she. 'Muckle Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle lang Sanny Fite.' 'Fik muckle lang Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle lang gleyed Sanny Fite!' shouted the exasperated man. 'Oh, it's Goup-the-Lift ye're seeking,' answered the girl, 'and fat the de'il for dinna ye spear for the mon by his richt name at aince?'"

Gymnastics alone can never give that elasticity, ease and graceful figure which comes by taking Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.

Placing the Responsibility.

For six months or more the drug-gist's assistant had occupied his leisure moments by writing verses for the village paper, in the "poets' corner" of which publication they appeared anonymously every Thursday. On opening his copy of the Weekly Bugle one morning, and, turning first, as was his regular habit, to that particular corner, he was surprised and gratified beyond measure to see his name in full appended to his latest poetical outbreak.

He hastened to call at the office of the Bugle.
"Mr. Stires," he said to the editor, "I want to thank you for signing my name to my poem in this week's paper. It encourages a fellow when he gets proper credit for his work."
"Oh, that's all right, Jobson," responded the editor. "We thought it was about time to place the responsibility for that poetry where it belonged."

Hadn't Been Drunk.

He evidently wasn't used to the wags of big hotels. His looks, as though he might have been from some Kansas farm and was in a large city for the first time. Somehow he had heard that the next morning men who had been absorbing intoxicants drink lots of ice water.

"Say," he said to C. T. Newton behind the desk at the Shirley hotel about 8 o'clock in the morning, "the other clerk last night told me to ask for things over the little telephone in my room when I wanted 'em."

"Yes," said Newton.
"Well, this morning, about a half an hour ago, I asked for a glass of ice water. Some girl answered the telephone."

"Yes."
"Well, I don't like to be took for a heavy drinker. I wasn't drunk last night."

"What do you mean?"
"Jee! this I didn't get no glass of ice water. That girl sent me up a whole pitcher. It looked mighty much to me like she thought I was full of liquor last night and would need a whole pitcher. A glass would 'a' been enough." And as he turned and strode away he wore one of those "Guess I didn't call him down, eh?" looks.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A misplaced switch on a railroad or the sensitive part of a boy may cause all sorts of annoyance.

Never cut an acquaintance unless you hold a card in the barbers' union.

Somehow men don't envy the man who is so homely that his wife is never jealous of him.

The weather is so freaky that it is liable to be arrested for disorderly conduct.

The reason you never meet the old fashioned girl any more is because some fellow saw her first and married her.

The meek begin to inherit the earth as soon as they work up muscle enough to push the other fellow off.

Do you suppose the boys now growing up will live to see secondhand flying machines a drug on the market?

Although women are not sewing for the heathen as furiously as they used to, we hear that the heathen do not notice the difference.

When a woman blacks her husband's boots, he doesn't go bragging about it to the neighbors.

For the special use of the tramp there should be put on the market a watch that would keep ragtime.

The Spring Poet.

The poet sees old winter skipping And spring come down the landscape tripping And bittely pass, A merry lass, Just like a coil turned out to grass; He sees her, most divinely fair, Come floating in without a care, Sincerely grand; So, pen in hand,

He grabs a sheet of paper, and He don't do a thing to spring, Sweet spring, Sweet spring, He don't do a thing to spring.

He notes the hillside fairly blushing, The brooklets to the river rushing, The sun's warm flood, The tender bud, But, oh, he never sees the mud! The while the merry farmer's boy Jumps all of seven feet high for joy; On every hand, The leaves expand,

And so he grasps his pencil, and He don't do a thing to spring, Sweet spring, Sweet spring, He don't do a thing to spring.

Distributing Branch.

"Have you any trade?" asked the housewife of the tattered one.

"Oh, yes, indeed, mum."
"What is it?"
"Cook's assistant, mum."
"Cook's assistant? How do you assist the cook?"
"Help her dispose of her products, mum."

Its Running Mate.
Fame is a most elusive bird And shy of your society. Sometimes you think you've caught her when It's only notoriety.

Slighting the Luxuries.

A Chicago woman who paid $50 for a cat was unable to pay her rent, and the unfeeling landlord made her look up some other quarters. When we have secured the necessities of life we often have to do without the luxuries.

No woman can be real happy without a cat, but it would be an odd kind of woman who could not be happy and go about with a song in her heart without paying rent. The landlord evidently wasn't as cute as he thought he was.

There are other gentlemen in his class. The grocer and the butcher are notable examples. They often think that just because a man rides around in an auto he should pay his bills for provisions promptly. They evidently do not know how much money it costs to keep an auto going, paying fines for fast driving and keeping the women-folks in clothes to match. Some of our tradesmen have no poetry in their souls.

No Opportunity.
"How do you tell whether a chicken is young or old?"
"By eating it."

"That's a good idea. You know, I never thought of that. But, then, I have never had an opportunity to test it. You know, I live in a boarding house."

United.

In truth they did not very well In double harness trot. The marriage ties so lightly pressed That soon the knot was not.

To Grow On.

"How much did you draw for over time?"
"Thirteen bones."
"Lucky dog."

CANADA AND THE STATES.

Spirit of Give and Take Advocated By Hon. J. Bryce.

"There is no reason why all the questions of controversy that have arisen between the United States and Canada within the past twenty years should not be settled amicably, with a reasonable spirit of give and take," said Hon. James Bryce, British Ambassador at a banquet of the Canadian Society at Philadelphia the other day. "There are many Canadians in this country, and not a few citizens of the United States live in Canada. It is a good thing for each country that this is so."

Some of the subjects that might well be settled speedily to the benefit of both countries, Mr. Bryce mentioned the fresh water fisheries rights and the right of use of the inland waterways.

J. A. Macdonald, editor of The Toronto Globe, in responding to a toast on Canada, said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier represented the best sentiment and most deliberate judgment of the Canadian people when at the Colonial Conference the other day he stood frankly, immovably for two things—British connection and Canadian self-government. The characteristic mood of the typical Canadian to-day, continued Mr. Macdonald, is his desire that his country be left free to work out its own destiny unharassed and unimpeded by any artificial schemes or arbitrary theories of what its national future should be.

"Our national rivalries," said Mr. Macdonald, "must be, not in great wars and forts and standing armies, but in those higher arts of life and in those humaner enterprises which strive to secure a fair chance and a square deal, and to redeem life both for ourselves and for the world from the ignorance and cruelty and hate which still hang like a pall along the horizon line."

What Women Want in Men.

It is so recently that women have been allowed to think, or expected to think, that it is not strange that they have not expressed themselves upon the question of what they want in men. They have been brought up to the philosophy, "Be good and you'll be married," and it has not been a question of what they like in men, but what men like in them that counted or was important.

There are many women, otherwise fairly sensible, who openly say they could not love a man who did not rule them. To say that every man, by virtue of his sex, is meant to be the master of some woman is utterly folly. The need for a master is not a question of sex, but a question of the lack of moral or mental stamina in the individual.

What do women want in men? There are women who prefer a man with the ability to earn a fortune rather than one who has inherited it. Being a good provider will some times cover a multitude of petty faults in the eyes of women obliged to account for every penny spent. Nor is generosity with money the only virtue women want from men; every normal human being craves commendation and approval.

Woman, normal and healthy, does not want or need a master. Outside of truthfulness, honor, and courage in him, who she prizes above all, she wants from him kindness, generosity, and sympathy.—Belle Squire in the May Delineator.

Some People Get Into Debt Because
Their ideas are larger than their purses.

They think "the world owes them a living."

They do not keep account of their expenditures.

They reverse the maxim, "Duty before pleasure."

They have too many and too expensive amusements.

They have risked an assured competence trying to get rich too quickly. They allow friends to impose upon their good nature and generosity.

They try to do what others expect of them, not what they can afford.

The parents are economical, but the children have extravagant ideas.

They do not do to-day what they can possibly put off until to-morrow.

They do not think it worth while to put contracts or agreements in writing.

They prefer to incur debt rather than to do work which they consider beneath them.

They do not dream that little mortgages on their homes can ever turn them out of doors.

They have endorsed their friend's notes, or guaranteed payment just "for accommodation."

They risk all their eggs in one basket when they are not in a position to watch or control it.—Selected.

Caustic Judge Hawkins.

Judge Hawkins once had to sentence an old swindler and gave him seven years. The man in the dock squirmed and whined, "Oh, my Lord, I'll never live half the time!" Hawkins took another look at him and answered, "I don't think it is at all desirable that you should."

The formality of asking a newly convicted prisoner if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him brought another characteristic retort from the judge. A prisoner in these circumstances usually either says nothing or curses where in his rage, but one of them struck a theatrical posture and with his right hand in the air shouted: "May the Almighty strike me dead if I don't speak the truth! I am innocent of this crime!" Judge Hawkins said nothing for about a minute, when, after glancing at the clock, he fluminated in his most impressive tones, "Since the Almighty has not thought fit to intervene, I will now proceed to pass sentence."—Westminster Gazette.

A ONE-DAY STRIKE.

Factories Idle On Russian May Day—Employees Donated Wages.

St. Petersburg, May 15.—The workmen of St. Petersburg generally celebrated the Russian May Day Monday with a one day's strike. The authorities had announced that a cessation of work there would be punished by a general lockout, but the workmen voted to give their day's earnings to the fund for idle workmen.

Street car service was suspended on several of the lines, and most of the newspapers announced the suspension of their afternoon or Wednesday morning editions, owing to the strike of their compositors. No disorders had been reported up to noon. The few districts in regard to which the authorities were apprehensive were patrolled by detachments of infantry and cavalry, and forces of troopers were held in readiness for emergencies elsewhere.
