LONG- FELT WANTS.

"It fills a long-felt want," was a popular expression twenty years ago. Nowadays one does not hear it so often, because there really seems to be something pat for every use. Only wings to fly with. As yet we lack wings—even the girls who are pretty enough to have them. But the wing exception proves the rule. What troubles people at this time is not that there is no article or invention for such and such a use, but that they don't know where to find it. Hence the necessity of free and constant advertising. Dealers must advertise or the thousand things that fill "long-felt wants" will remain unsold.

ATHLETICS AND MORALS.

The American national game of baseball and the Canadian national game of lacrosse are much more strenuous than the English game of cricket. In this country baseball and lacrosse draw large crowds, while the best cricket players in the world will play in Canada with a few score of spectators watching them. Is it the strenuousness of the play that draws it so, the Canadian game should have the lead. It is not altogether the vigorous work of the players; it is the excitement—the keen competition, and the element of danger. For some reason or other young humanity courts danger. For that reason, probably, the game of Rugby football, which demands less agility and more sheer strength than almost any other game, draws immense crowds, especially in university towns.

Recently a clergyman of the Methodist persuasion denounced sports in general terms and has brought upon himself considerable criticism. Any clergyman, or layman, for that matter, who condemns athletics, leaves himself open to just criticism, not to say condemnation. The development of the physique is as necessary as that of the mind. The three parts of a man's nature should be developed in common in order to get the best type of manhood. Without in any way disparaging the importance of the moral or spiritual and mental, let the physical or athletic be considered. No young man can attain his maximum strength without self-denial and self-control. They are compelled to live temperate lives, both as to eating and drinking. They must take regular exercise and keep regular hours of rest. Our baseball managers have no use for a "booster." In fact no man can play ball in winning form and take intoxicating liquor. Similarly no man can be an expert with a lacrosse stick if he participates even moderately in liquor. What chance would a dozen half-intoxicated men have in lacrosse against twelve total abstainers, size and weight being equal? Let the athletes themselves answer. How would a Rugby team, stimulated with liquor and feeling themselves to be in the best of form, fare in a game with competitors who had no liquor? Again, we say, let the athletes answer. How often one hears it said of a baseball pitcher who has lost his standing: "Oh, he got boozing and is out of it." It is the same with all games or competitions in which the best brain and muscle are required.

And so it appears that athleticism and temperance must go together. Sports are to be commended. It is the abuse of them that causes them to become disreputable. It would be well for young men and boys to remember that control of appetite and of temper and of action—a proper blending of the moral and mental faculties to keep the physical in order—must be observed to bring the greatest success or renown in any line of life.

There could hardly be a better illustration of the tendencies of party than the conduct of that which styles itself the Liberal party in relation to the Senate. Out of power, and with a senatorial majority against it, the Liberal party denounced the Senate as urgently calling for reform, worse than useless in its present state, and a waste of the money of the country. The same party, being in power, and having now the majority in the Senate in its favor, coolly repudiates its pledges, leaves the abuse untouched, and increases the waste of public money in salaries. Not a syllable of apology is vouchsafed for this tergiversation. It is taken for granted that party interest is explanation enough.—Goldwin Smith.

Does not history tell us that there is nothing so melancholy as the aspect of great men in retirement—from Nebuchadnezzar in his meadow to Napoleon on his rock?

"THE GIRL FROM KAYS."

The big company which is to be seen in the production of the English farcical comedy with music, "The Girl From Kays," at the Grand on Saturday night, is said to be one of the best organizations ever gotten up for the exploitation of a piece of this class. The production is made by the Miller-Kilpatrick Co., and is said to have cost a small fortune. Bobby North, the comedian of the company, is credited with being one of the most legitimately amusing actors on the American stage. The part he plays is that of a rich man who is a cad and is using his money in an effort to get into high society. A pretty milliner attracts his attention and she leads him a merry dance until it occurs to him that he might propose marriage. The milliner is played by Miss Lila Blow, who for several seasons was the leading woman of E. E. Rice's Company. There are another pair of lovers played by Ethel Morton, a charming blonde, and George Fuchs, Paul Decker plays the part he originated in the London production, that of a silly young Englishman of good family but no money, and not above lending his prestige for a consideration to help along another's desire to get into society. Kathleen Clifford uses her voice in the part of a maid, and Alex. Francis is seen as a porter in an English hotel. Helene Salinger, Harry Hanlon, Frank Lyon and Maurice Lavigne are among the fifty people who move throughout the piece. The music in the comedy is said to be very melodious and catchy and the gowns worn by the numerous young women to be decidedly handsome.

NEW BRIDGE?

The Parks and Cemetery committee have known for some time that the bridge connecting one part of the cemetery with the other was out of repair and thought some slight alterations would be all that would be required.

A little forethought may save you a lot of trouble. Anyone who makes it a rule to keep Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand knows this to be a fact. For sale by all druggists.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

TO TELEPHONE USERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

We wish at this stage to digress from the strict line of comment on the work of the Parliamentary Special Committee, to refer to an important matter which is apropos to the subject of our last "Talk." We refer to the advantage to this Company and to the commercial life of Canada, in the exchange of connections with the local and long distance systems of the United States.

Telephone conversations are carried on almost continuously, night and day, between the entire system of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada and the long distance lines and exchanges of the American Telegraph & Telephone Company, and its affiliated Companies, placing half the continent at the elbow of every subscriber. The traffic is as free from complications as if it were one Company.

Equipment of the highest efficiency, practically standardized in all Offices and subscribers' stations, is an absolute essential to service over an extended area. Lack of such a standard is the fatal weakness of local systems operated as they are under separate administrations and with divided and often clashing interests.

No other Company operating in Canada, in competition with the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, has the advantage of this connection. Without the same standard of equipment and appliances, such an exchange of service could not be operated satisfactorily, even if the connection could be obtained.

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, entirely free, as has been shown, in its financial affairs and in its internal administration, possesses an asset of inestimable value to itself and patrons in its business relations with the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. of the United States.

A man, with a horse and buggy, stormed the barricade at the Queen street C. P. R. crossing last night. How the stormers fared was not learned, but a heavy plank in the barricade was broken. This obstruction has been there altogether too long.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. J. Soop and children, of Detroit, left for their home last evening after a short visit with relatives and friends in the Maple City. Mr. Soop is now book-keeper with John Bornman & Son, printers, Lacroix street, Detroit, and is a highly valued attaché of the firm. Mr. Soop will be remembered by many as a former book-keeper with the Harvester Works of this city.

WAY TO TREAT HAY FEVER

No Stomach Dosing, Just Breathe Hyomei—Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

The Central Drug Co. are recommending to their customers as a cure for hay fever, Hyomei.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms, the sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomei, and the discoverer of the remedy professes to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attack and to stop the progress of the disease, even in the most chronic forms.

A. Hamlin, of Westford, Mass., writes, "Hyomei cured me of hay fever in one week's time. I consider it a duty to tell others who suffer from this disease."

This endorsement is only one of hundreds that have been received by the proprietors of Hyomei, and The Central Drug Co. offer to refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it, is the strongest proof that can be given as to the confidence they have in Hyomei's power to cure hay fever. The complete outfit costs but $1.00, while extra bottles can be procured for 50 cents.
