

Saves Eggs

Royal Baking Powder makes it possible to produce appetizing and wholesome cakes, muffins, corn bread, etc., with fewer eggs than are usually required.

In many recipes the number of eggs may be reduced and excellent results obtained by adding an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, for each egg omitted. The following tested recipe is a practical illustration:

SPONGE CAKE
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup water
 3 eggs
 2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
 1 cup flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 cup cold water
 1 teaspoon flavoring

DIRECTIONS: Beat sugar and water until syrupy; add eggs, beating until the mixture is cold. Sift together three times the flour, salt and baking powder; beat yolks of eggs until thick; add a little at a time flour mixture and egg yolks alternately to white of egg mixture, stirring after each addition. Add 1/4 cup cold water and flavoring. Mix lightly and bake in moderate oven one hour.

The old method called for six eggs and no baking powder

THE WAR.

It is not surprising that few of the messages that reach us nowadays are dated from Berlin. It would tax even the German official ingenuity to make good reading of their bulletins from the West front, and the world gets very few of them in consequence. It is not greatly perturbed on that account, our own and the French communiques being sufficiently eloquent to satisfy most readers; but it must be admitted that the reports from day to day of internal conditions in Germany are at least interesting, and it is a pity that we have not more of them. For they cannot begin to reflect the true state of things in that happy country, the true state of unrest, of scarce suppressed dissatisfaction and discontent. If anything can be safely assumed of which we have not yet direct evidence, it is that the reverses in the field and the grand object lesson of the late events in Russia are sowing thickly the seeds of a terrible harvest. In the last few days we have had strong Socialist demonstrations in Germany, the Chancellor's announcement out of a seemingly clear sky that the whole constitution of the country was to be radically changed, and trouble in the Prussian Diet as a natural consequence. This is not a revolution, but it is the sort of thing that may be expected to accompany one.

If there is any truth in the Amsterdam report of Germany's terms of peace, either offered or to be offered apparently to Russia alone, there is a volume of meaning in it. Germany has officially stated no terms at any time, but the world has known fairly well what terms she would accept, and what they were when she made her dramatic "overtures" last December. These show, to say the least, a significant advance. That Germany will consent to relinquish her hold upon Poland and, even to the extent of internationalizing it, upon Constantinople, is eloquent of the value she places upon the detachment of Russia from the enemy alliance. That her offer, whether in these terms or in any others, will be flatly turned down it is unnecessary to predict. What is to be hoped is that she will make them, and her people enjoy the discomfort of their rejection. Joined to the steady rise in their military stock, the moral victory of the Allies will be very great. It will be tremendous if it succeeds in enlightening the German people, the only direction in which a speedy end of the war can be looked for.

Meanwhile the progress of our armies in France continues steadily. The British have taken several fresh villages, parts of the covering line of defence before that of Cambrai-St. Quentin is reached, and the important town of Roisel. This is a little north of St. Quentin; south of it the French are doing really brilliant work. The great St. Gobain forest, which the enemy must have counted upon to delay them long, is being reduced to their possession in a methodical manner. The whole strategy of the advance seems to indicate that the retirement was foreseen and prepared for long ago, and is being compulsorily directed not by the Germans but by the Entente forces. Two great wedges threaten to drive past St. Quentin on two sides; when they have gone far enough the city will fall. With their continuous defeat in the field, the Germans are plainly multiplying their deeds of frightfulness. We should think there ought to be one effective answer to them, the clear and repeated announcement to the German people that reparation will be exacted with interest, whatever the other terms of peace may be, and that no negotiations towards the settlement of those terms will be thought of or entered into with their present rulers.

"Wanted" the Keeper of the "Crackie"

A northern outportman, whose name figured most prominently in a series of sensational Prohibition cases recently and who was responsible for the newly-made localism "put a spot on the crackie," is now "wanted" by the authorities. Very soon he will be headed an important document asking for an explanation as to why he was the custodian of the "black and white spot" which his "customers" allege he dispensed with at 30 cents a "root." The case will come before court next week and the mere mention of it is a sufficient drawback for a crowded attendance.

Prohibition Case.

DR. TAIT CHARGED.

The further hearing of the charge of a breach of Section 31 of the Prohibition Act against Dr. Tait was continued at the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon before Judge Penney. A packed auditorium listened attentively to the case. The defendant gave a prescription to one Nathaniel Thistle for a bottle of liquor. The latter, when he visited the Doctor's surgery, stated that he wanted the "stuff" for medicinal purposes, adding that he was suffering slightly from poisoning, owing to the surroundings where he worked. Expert testimony was given by Mr. Davies, Government Analyst; Dr. Anderson, Dr. Macpherson and Dr. Griev, Mr. Higgins addressed the court on behalf of the defendant, followed by Mr. Hunt for the prosecution. Judgment was reserved.

Destructive Fire at Bell Island

Word was received in the city yesterday from Bell Island stating that the No. 1 Dry House, of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, caught fire Saturday night and was badly burnt. The house in question is used as a wash and dressing station for the men who work underneath the ground, and is fitted with shower baths and other necessary equipment for the convenience of the miners. The local fire company were quickly at the scene and prevented the blaze from spreading to the near by buildings. The destruction of the building will in no way hamper mining operations, for in the meantime, the men will be given the use of temporary quarters.

Got a Wetting and a Whipping.

A young lad named Murphy fell into the water yesterday afternoon while playing above the Gas House. Fortunately the water was not deep and he was able to get to the shore without assistance. Ill-luck was surely his, for on reaching the land he was greeted by his enraged papa who evidently believes in the old proverb: "Spare the rod and spoil the child." At this season of the year it is unsafe for children to congregate in that vicinity and parents should warn their children against the danger.

Died From Shock.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at the General Hospital of Frank, the 26 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mallard, Quidi Vidi. It will be remembered that a fortnight ago, when fire destroyed the home of his parents, the deceased young man had been very sick and had to make his escape through a window just as he got out of bed. He suffered severely from shock and died from the effects. His parents will have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.
