REMNANT

A Special Reduction in all Floor Canvas, paricularly in Remnants, and some pretty designs advance in the price of flour of 28 week again the tendency has been upward with another recorded advance of 10 cents per barrel. A few weeks ago every feature that made for almost a record crop of wheat, obtained in Canada and farmers feared that as a result of the anticipated great yield, they would suffer serious losses in the marketing of the harvest. They determined to fight this, and means were taken to obviate the inordinate lowering of prices, when sensational reports were telegraphed, that the fine weather prevailing had been suddenly succeeded by very adverse conditions and "rust," insects, snow and rain contributed to do material damage to the crop, the estimates of which have been reduced approximately from 15 to 25 per cent. It was for a while believed that the great crop down in the United States had escaped any such partial blight as that recorded for Canada, but advices now to hand say that the U. S. Government Crop Report reduces the estimates for wheat by 40,000,000 bushels and from causes similar in part to those obtaining in the Dominion. The farmers as we stated last week have taken a firm attitude and will not stand for any great reduction in prices demanding at least figures for their holdings which will pay for the cost of production. All this has the tendency of keeping the market firm and that we have been buying at the lowest prices to be realized this year is the opinion of those well versed in the peculiar conditions which sometimes attach to this trade. In conversation with one dealer yesterday he observed to The Trade Review, that the best purchases this fall for the average householder would be old wheat (last season's) the greater part of which was No. 1 and 2. This year the early samples will run from No. 1 to 6, so that there will be all kinds of mixtures in any but the very best brands, and people should exercise great care in purchasing. By the "Mapledawn" from Montreal this week there arrived 5,890 barrels of flour. The prices in the local market. this week vary from $8.25 to $9.00, according to quality. Perk-The tone of the perk market still remains firm and though there is not much activity noticeable at present an increased demand must soon ensue, with the fillip in trade that is generally inseparable from the handling and exporting of the season's catch of fish. Present stocks cannot he replaced at selling figures and it is not thought unlikely that, even as early as next week, the upward move in prices will materialize. Prices in the local market are the same and vary according to the goods sought from $22.50 to $27.00. The imports this week were 400 barrels by the Rosalind from New York. Beef-Beef rules practically the same as at last writing. There has been a good demand during the past week or so and the outlook for the near future is an advance in prices. as no heavy packing is recorded in pickled meats of late. The imports for the week were 385 barrels by the S.S. Yankton, 120 by the Mapledawn and 350 by the Rosalind; a total of 855 barrels. Molasses—The stocks of molasses available here were supplemented during the week by a cargo of 490 puncheons from Barbados, received by the schooner Jean Campbell. This, more than likely, will be the last molasses to come here for the season, and not much trade is being done in this article at present. Another few weeks, however, will witness a change with an accelerated demand and a promise of higher offerings. The prices in the local market are 78 to 90 cents wholesale, according to

Sugar-According to dealers in sugar, though prices receded again last week, the supply is very closely adjusted to the demand made upon the market, and the general opinion is expressed that a reaction may soon be expected. The prices this week showed a further decline and granulated is now quoted at $9.25 per barrel wholesale. There were imported by the Rosalind this week 2,875 cwt.

Tea-Each ship arriving here of late from Great Britain or the United States brings along shipments of tea, and this week the Rosalind landed $3,500 pounds and the Yankton 300 pounds. Dealers say there will be no sheap tea this year and people would be well advised to purchase their tea rements now. The crops in Cayion and other tea producing countries have been short, exchange has aproved and the future outle for considerably higher prices than those now prevailing. Prices whole-sale in the local market vary from 35 to 80 cents per 1b.
