

Cripple Miracle

Woman Gets Up and Talks
Amazing Cure After 18 Years.

There has been a miracle in the life of Mrs. Convey Island. After being practically bedridden for 18 years, Miss Polly Teskey, who, for the last three or four years, has been confined to her sick bed, has walked to the other end of the island, sat down on a chair, and asked for something to eat. As she rose she exclaimed, "Lord, I believe!" that moment she had, for a few minutes, been going from bad to worse, it was believed that her last moments were at hand. She had been as in a trance and unable to recognize anyone. At the moment of transformation a friend, Mrs. Convey, was sitting. Miss Teskey, she rose. Miss Teskey cried out to the watching friend:

"The Lord is going to measure well if I walk to the shore. I have been talking to the Lord. He says if I have faith He will heal me. The Lord has given her but a few minutes. He explained Mrs. Convey's miracle. He thought it was a miracle gone—in fact, there was a perceptible beating. At 10 p.m. all that could be said of her was that she was on the border. Her eyes were fixed almost as if she was motionless, and her body was rigid. Three-quarters of an hour later she was sitting bolt upright in that chair asking for food. Any ordinary person, and say Mrs. Convey, I am talking, I am talking, and her voice, except for occasional feeble whispers, had not been heard for seven long years."

Mrs. Teskey is the least excited person on the island, and when her neighbors decided to the bungalow to see her wonder for themselves, the most invalid walked across the street to show what, as she described, the Lord's miracle has done. I cannot run about yet, of course," she confessed, "but I was able to go down the steps into the street and stay out there for three days this morning. This thing is the work of a medical man. I was held their aid, and they told me the Lord did this for me, because I had faith in Him, and I never tried to get better, though, and I kept asking the Lord to take me away altogether. This is just a miracle, and nothing else. I remember dreaming that I was in a beautiful garden, talking to God. He told me that through Satan I had had many years of sorrow to test me, but I would now have years of joy, and I would be needed by my mother. She is getting on now. She has held after me all through the years of my illness, and now she is going to devote herself to looking after me. I have no other plans, and have not spoken since the Armistice, and have not even been able to whisper for the last five months. In fact, I have no recollection whatever of the last two or three months."

Mrs. Teskey was only 23 when she was thrown out of a trap on her head, and as a result became paralyzed down the left side, and her leg was drawn down to her left shoulder. Despite all treatments at St. John's, including the Lowne therapeutic, she became worse. She was finally confined to bed, but being paralyzed. In 1918 the paralysis reached her throat. She was conveyed to Convey in bed on a horse-drawn cart in 1922, and until last week had never left it. Dr. Norman had recently by Dr. Norman, late of the London Hospital, "I cannot account for her recovery in any way," the doctor declared. "As far as a medical man is concerned, she was beyond all hope, and nothing I have done is responsible for her sudden recovery. She was paralyzed through an injury to the spine, but there is no reason why she should not be normal again."—Ex.
