 SIR WILFRID'S VISIT

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has ever been accorded a warm welcome when he has found it possible to visit Western Canada, and he may rest assured that the reception that will be given him on the occasion of the visit which he proposes to make in the fall of this year, will, if possible, be more hearty than any he has received in the past.

It was with some anxiety that the Liberals of Alberta heard the rumor-circulated shortly after the general election that it was the intention of the great Liberal chieftain to retire from active political life. The announcement, which came later, that the force and charm of his personality and his rare intellectual gifts would remain at the service of Canadian Liberalism was received with general rejoicing by all who cherished a regard for the best interests of the party.

Sir Wilfrid will this year be doubly welcome in Western Canada because in September last he went down to defeat as the leader in a great fight in a cause that is dear to the hearts of Westerners. The dominant influence exercised by the Canadian Manufacturers' association in the East accomplished his defeat. The prairie provinces, however, gave him overwhelming support, and if any evidence were needed to show that the vote of these provinces is still behind him and the cause which he represents, it will be found in the recent unmistakable declaration of the people of Saskatchewan. The grand old man of Canadian Liberalism will therefore be thrice welcome to the West.

THE HORTICULTURAL SHOW

Much credit is due to those who were responsible for the organization of the magnificent display of horticultural exhibits which has drawn such large crowds of visitors to Paget Hall during the past few days.

The chief value of such an exhibit is to be found in the stimulus which it gives to the interest in horticultural pursuits of those people who visit it. Many of those who may have been under the impression that few varieties of flowers and vegetables could be grown in Calgary will have been pleasantly surprised by what they have seen at this exhibition. If their interest bears fruit in efforts to emulate the few who have already been so successful it will have accomplished a valuable work.

Visitors from the East are frequently moved to remark upon the general neglect in Western cities of the many opportunities afforded for civic beautification. The charge is made, not without good reason, that inhabitants of Western cities are so much accustomed to think of vacant ground as sterile lots that it seldom occurs to them to think of them as potential gardens. Calgary is not able to flatter herself that in this respect she appears to any advantage in a comparison with other cities of similar age and size. There is need therefore for all the missionary work the horticultural society is able to do. It is a factor in the realization of the ideal of a City Beautiful, and deserves the heartiest support of every public spirited citizen.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE PUBLIC

There are few doctrines more open to attack than that implied in the common notion, encouraged by some newspapermen, that the daily newspaper is primarily not a business institution, but a sort of church, and the editor a man with duties and responsibilities differing but little from those of a minister of the gospel. The prevalence of this belief is indicated by a recently published editorial in The Vancouver Sun, in which exception is taken to the statement, made in an address on the mission of the newspaper delivered in Nelson by W. C. Buchanan, member of parliament and editor, that newspapermen are in the business to make money. The Sun seems to be under the impression that it has disposed of this statement when it has declared that "those who conduct the real business of journalism are among the least mercenary of mortals." For all that, we know a similar statement might be made with equal truth of booksellers, but it would remain no less indisputable that booksellers are engaged in that business primarily for the purpose of making money.

The newspaper exists, like the bookstore or, for that matter, like the corner grocery, primarily for the purpose of making profit by supplying the public with what the public wants. Like any other business concern it exists only so long as it supplies the needs of the public; it lives or dies by the operation of the laws governing the relation of supply and demand. The cost of its production is paid, not by the man who pays a nickel for a copy on the street, but by the advertisers, who comprise the proprietor of the department store, the grocery store, the hardware store, the real estate business, the travelling circus and even the patent medicine. They will pay for its production by their advertisements only so long as it is read by the people whom they desire to reach. The people whom they desire to reach are not merely the refined and cultured people who are interested only in religion, art, literature and the higher politics and abhor reports of murders and prize fights, but also the great mass of the people, who are more interested in the details of the world's championship prize fight than in the progress of negotiations for an arbitration treaty between two great nations.

We refuse to believe that the editor of The Sun gives prominence in its news columns to a big prize fight because he personally believes it to be the most important item of news that has come over the wires, or that he prints a pulpit utterance on the hobbie skirt or the smoking habit because he believes it to be more elevating than the good sermon for which he could find no space. He does these things from precisely the same motives that govern the cultured bookseller who displays in his window the rubbish written by the latest writer of popular ephemeral news, namely, because he is in business and must supply his customers, not with what he likes but with what they want.

The newspaper is not so much an index to the minds of the makers of newspapers as a mirror which reflects the tastes and opinions of the man on the street.

With these facts made clear as illustrating the fundamental laws that govern the existence of the newspaper, it may be admitted that there remains a certain limited sphere within which the newspaperman may become active in moulding and elevating public opinion. As the bookseller may place a folder advertising classic works between the leaves of a novel by Marie Corelli, so even in the news columns of a daily paper an effort may be made to elevate the taste of the public. While, however, the public is good-natured it is also obstinate, and he who would lead it must be content to travel but a short distance ahead and go slowly, lest he find himself travelling alone. Finally it must be admitted that the newspaperman who would teach has some scope for his activities in the editorial page—which will not be read by the great majority of those who buy the newspaper. While there he may be said, in a sense, to occupy a pulpit, it is not one in which he enjoys the security of the man who occupies the church-pulpit. It might be better likened to a street corner rostrum, where people can more readily follow their inclination to listen, heckle, throw over-ripe eggs at the speaker, or leave him without an audience.

EDITORIAL NOTES

J. W. Willison, editor of The Toronto News, in his address before the Canadian club emphasizing the need for some rules that would compel Eastern legislators to visit the West before undertaking legislation for the West. His discreet treatment of the tariff question in Calgary, as compared with the wild utterance of protectionist fallacies in Winnipeg and other places would appear to indicate either that he himself is learning wisdom on his westward tour, or else that the executive of the Canadian club were careful to advise him that that organization is non-political.

LA FOLLETTE MAKES SENSATIONAL CHARGE

Washington, Aug. 16.—Senator La Follette today charged officials of the postoffice department with rigging his mail in an attempt to learn the results of an investigation he is making into conditions in the postal service.

He showed the senate a bundle of letters which, he declared, had been opened before he received them.

"My mail was subjected to an espionage almost Russian in character," La Follette declared. "I have here a bundle of letters showing that my mail was opened by some one hostile to the purposes I had in making the investigation."

The charge was made in connection with the provisions of the postoffice appropriation bill, which would permit employees to join associations and petition congress for redress of grievances.

BATHING IN ARCTIC OCEAN BECOMES FAD

Seattle, Aug. 16.—Alaska natives on the Kotzebue sound have been bathing in Arctic waters this summer. That may make you think of the ice man, but E. F. Patterson, who has a trading post on Kotzebue sound and has come from the North to visit his apple ranch in Cashmere, says the bathing there is as good as at Alki beach. It has been unusually warm in the North this summer and the fur and fish season has been profitable.

Citizens Determined to Rid the Police Force of Craft

Immense Mass Meeting Held to Discuss Condition of the City

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The resolute determination of the citizens of New York to rid their police force of its system of graft and blackmail was shown tonight at a mass meeting held at the historic hall of Coop Union, when they appointed a vigilance committee of prominent men and women to see that the public officers now engaged in exposing the alleged alliance of the police with organized crime do their duty.

The mass meeting which they held to express public indignation aroused by the revelation of police corruption growing out of the murder of Herman Rosenthal was attended by a crowd that overflowed the hall.

With 4,000 people within the audience and hundreds standing and blocking the streets, outside were thousands more who clamored for admittance.

The speakers included District Attorney Whitman, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Alderman Henry H. Curran, chairman of the administrative police investigating committee, and other members of the committee, and others.

"I want to say just this," said Mr. Whitman, "with regard to the matter which I know is near your hearts, it is to mine, with regard to the crime that has shocked this city and shocked the nation, perhaps as few know in the history of the city or in the history of the nation. The killing of Herman Rosenthal was a murder of course—an awful murder—but it was more than that, in the light of all the circumstances connected with it, it was a challenge to our very civilization itself."

GIRLS CAN "PRIMP" ON ELEVATORS NO MORE

Philadelphia, August 16.—Mirrors in Philadelphia elevators are doomed. The order for their removal from elevators at the city hall went out and will be followed by similar orders in the leading hotels and office buildings, notably the Bellevue, Stratford and the Land Title.

The mirrors are being done away with as the result of numerous complaints made. Conductors in the city hall elevators assert that nearly every girl who rides becomes so engrossed in "primping" before the silvered glasses in the elevators that they forget what floor they want and cause delay.

In the hotels and office buildings the conductors of the elevators, who are instructed not to speak to occupants, utilize the mirrors to flirt with fair passengers, with the result that they pass the floors while ogling the girls. Another reason the hotels will eliminate mirrors is that occasionally a passenger from the roof gardens becomes hoisterous and puts his fist through the glass, cutting his hand and afterward suing the hotel company.

PRISONER'S DEATH CHOICE PUZZLES SHERIFF

Insists on Being Shot, But No One Can Be Found Willing to Do the Job

No Provision for Firing Squad Leaves Officials to Search Among Public

Reno, Nev., Aug. 16.—Warden George W. Cowing, of the Nevada State Penitentiary, faces the strangest situation in his experience as head of the institution. He must find five men to shoot down a man in cold blood before the 23rd day of this month.

Andriji Mikrovich, a murderer, duly convicted and sentenced to death for a crime committed in Southern Nevada, was given, under the new statutes of Nevada, his choice of death either by hanging or shooting. He chose the latter.

The execution date is set for August 23. Warden Cowing must carry out the sentence upon that date. He has approached a number of men who have absolutely refused to undertake the job of shooting down a human being. He is at a complete loss how to carry out the death sentence.

"I would stated that he would make an effort to have the matter brought to the attention of the court, while at the same time he has been working upon the condemned man to change his mind and go to his death upon the gallows. The condemned man refuses. Cowing is facing a situation which has never before come up in the history of the state.

Mikrovich, the condemned man, remains passive through it all. If he must die, he will be shot.

Warden Cowing is at the end of his wits to meet the strange situation.

Believed Seven Thousand Persons Lost Lives in Recent Seismic Disturbances

Immense Openings in Earth Mile Long Engulfed Habitations of Populace

Constantinople, Aug. 15.—The interruption of telegraphic communication makes it very difficult to obtain accurate details of the disastrous seismic disturbances which occurred August 9th on both sides of the Dardanelles. No accurate figures of the number of victims can yet be tabulated, though some estimates place the death list at 1,000 and the injured from 6,000 to 7,000.

In the town of Shary-Koy, which was destroyed, 80 persons were killed and 150 injured. Fires are reported from many cities, in which numerous buildings were destroyed.

Fissures opened to a length of about a mile along the river at Lule-Burgaz, 40 miles south-east of Adrianople, swallowing many dwellings. From the apertures hot water, sand, foam and sulphurous vapors were emitted.

Everywhere in the stricken zone there is terrible want and distress. Agone, doctors and nurses are constantly being received at the capital, and the government is doing its utmost to satisfy them. The hospitals here are crowded with injured persons.

The Vail of Adrianople today reported to Constantinople that the loss of life there was small. The quake, however, seriously damaged the public buildings of the city.

Three renewed earth shocks were felt here today. It is reported that a volcano which is forming in the sea of Marmora.

Contoocook, Que., Aug. 15.—Chas. O'Donnell was killed here today by falling beneath the wheels of a moving train. He and his brother were about to start for the West to get work in the harvest fields.
