Liberal Lead on Reciprocity f the Conand the Police servative

tion of Trade as a Huge Joke.

OTTAWA, May 2.—The House opened at o'clock, nearly all the members being prohibition of the liquor traffic were presented.

Mr. Hazen, one of the M. P.s for St. John, N.B., a young man with a pale face and a good voice, moved the address in reply to the speech. He looked for great things from the growing crops and the development of the Northwest. As to the reciprocity negotiations, he believed that reciprocity along the line of the treaty of 1854 would benefit both countries, but the Dominion would not discriminate against Great Britain. He took up the speech ause by clause, but said nothing striking egarding it.

great Britain. He sause by clause, but said nothing striking legarding it.

Mr. Corbould (New Westminster, B.C.) seconded the address. He followed the same line as Mr. Hazen.

Hon. Mr. Laurier was warmly applauded when he rose to speak. He appealed to the honorable gendleman, the leader of the House, if this verbose document known as the speech from the throne were not a very dry skeleton. So far they had not been told why Parliament had been dissolved, which was a breach of constitutional law. There was no intimation that the Franchise Act would be repealed, though its utter uselessness and unfairness had been demonstrated beyond question. Nor did the speech contain any proposition for amendments to the election law whereby the outrageous frauds which had been perpetrated at the late elections could be prevented in future. Nor did the speech contain a reference to the matter of mails to Europe, the carriage of which had now been transferred from a Canadian port to New York. reference to the matter of mails to Europe, the carriage of which had now been transferred from a Canadian port to New York. Surely such a course was disloyal, even when pursued by a professedly loyal man like the Tostmaster. General. Whether it was veiled or unveiled treason, he could not say, but it was one or the other. (Cheers and laughter.) The two previous speakers had talked of the country having combined confidence in the Government, but where was it—in the battered, shattered ranks of the Ministry? Honorable gentlemen opposite might say, hattered, shattered ranks of the Ministry? Honorable gentlemen opposite might say, in the words of King Cyrus, "One mere such victory and we are undone." Only that the people of the country had been gagged, shackled and manacled by the Wranchise Act, by the mutilated boundaries of counties, by the law which placed the preparation and printing of the voters' lists in the hands of the Government, by the appointment of shamelessly partisan repreparation and printing of the voters lists in the hands of the Government, by the appointment of shamelessly partisan returning officers who committed the most disgraceful frauds ever perperated at an election—only for the fact that by these and other such methods the people had been gagged, shackled and manacled, the confidence of the people would have shown itself to such an extent in the Government that the big majority with which it went to the polls would have been reduced to a minority too small to form a corporal's partial from. (Opposition applause). If tee morable gentlemen opposite were sincerein go foir claims to possess the confidence of the form a corporal such at the description of the first confidence of the form that the description of the Government when, in a panic it resolved to rush to the country. There had really been no valid excuse for dissolving the House a veer before its full term had been served.

He denounced the empty loyalty cry, in the name of which so many crimes against good government had been perpetrated, and said the real reason for the dissolution the real reason for the dissolution was the constant accession to the canks of the Liberal party, which thonestly advocated reciprocity. Sir Charles Tupper had so asserted after his return to London. The reciprocity mission to Washington had been a failure so far. The delegates said they had been received with every courtesy, but if they had not they would have only received the rebuke for which they had been yearning. Nothing could be so offensive to international courtesy as the language of the First Minister at could be so offensive to international courtesy as the language of the First Minister at Halifax last fall. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Laurier then read the celebrated extract from that speech, in which the Premier contemplated with philosophic calm "the struggles of a democracy." Nothing, said Mr. Laurier, could be more contrary to the amity which they owed to this neighboring nation. There was hostility in that speech, as there was in Canada at the time of the civil war. The philosophy of that period lost as there was in Canada at the time of the civil war. The philosophy of that period lost us a treaty, and it will be well if the Premier's philosophy does not cost us another treaty. Mr. Laurier demanded to know on what basis the commissioners were sent to Washhasis the commissioners were sent to Washington a few weeks ago, whether they caried with them authority to negotiate for unrestricted reciprocity, restricted reciprocity, or any reciprocity at all, or if it as confined to official questions respecting the ring Sea or the Atlantic. Sir John Maconald in 1878 had complained of the vodus of Canadians. It was very much eater to-day. "We must have a change," at the Opposition leader in ringing tones, had it must be in the direction of greater edom of trade." (Loud Liberal cheers.) thental reciprocity was the only policy could be advocated on business ciples, and it must ultimately triumph this continent. (Liberal cheers.) Sir the continent.

The Waterworks Eylaw Defcated—Sam Small Opens a Campaign.

Toronto, May 4.—The citizens voted on a money bylaw to provide $127,000 for a new engine house, pumping well and 10,000,000 gallon engine on Saturday. The vote was the lightest in the municipal history of the city, 1,105. Of this 697 votes were cast against the bylaw and 408 for it. The defeat of the bylaw will not prevent the erection of the new engine, a contract for which has already been let. The rate of taxation will, however, be increased by half a mill for the raising of the necessary money to pay for the work.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Small, better known in Toronto as Sam Small, opened a two weeks' campaign at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon and evening. On each occasion the spacious building was crowded to its limit by appreciative audiences. His address in the afternoon was on Gospel temperance, and at night he spoke on the power of grace to suppress sin, and to give man the victory over self. Great assistance was rendered by the singing of the Whyte brothers.

Until lately the cotton waste used in printing presses has been cleansed from the oil and refuse, the grease being considered as useless and thrown away. It has, however, been found that the oil thus destroyed can be made, after very simple treatment, to yield first-class printing ink, and it has been ascertained that one ton of this spent waste yields about fourteen hundredweight of oil from which ink of an improved quality and a reduced price is manufactured.

A startling incident occurred at the anniversary services of the West U. P. Church at Kirriemuir, Scotland, entirely without a parallel in memory of the oldest inhabitants. On Sunday, April 5, the minister was calmly preaching his sermon, when a modern Jenny Geddes, infuriated at one of the male members of the choir being asleep hurled her Bible at the head of the delinquent from the gallery where she was sitting. The Bible missed the sleeper, but struck the shoulder of another man in the choir, who started up amazed. The minister became pale, paused in his discourse, and exclaimed, "What's wrong?" "The Bible struck the wrang man," she cried, rising up in her pew, although her friends vainly attempted to hold her down, "'twas meant to wauken the sinfu' sleeper." Strange to say, all present retained their gravity, not the ghost of a smile becoming apparent on the faces of the infinitely tickled and astounded congregation.

Washington Ladies Inaugurate a Suite of Club Rooms.

Washington, May 1.—A woman's club is the latest institution that the society ladies of the capital have set going. It is called the Washington Club, and has just opened a fine suite of rooms at the Hotel Richmond. The ladies say they have modeled the constitution after the most successful of similar organizations of men's clubs. The most stringent of the rules applies, of course, to future applications for membership. As a member has said: "Without being captious, we are going to be safe, so that each lady may!fact that she is always among ladies while in the club rooms." A candidate is proposed by a permanent member, seconded by another, and the entire Board of Governors elects to membership. The Board of Governors will have, when completed, fiften members. Mrs. Les, wife of Admiral Lee, is president, Mrs. Wister, first vice-president, and Mrs. D. P. Morgan, second vice-president. The others are Mrs. McPherson, wife of the New Jersey Senator; Mrs. Phil. Sheridan, Mrs. Winthrop, Mrs. S. O. Richey, Mrs. N. S. Lincoln, Mrs. W. A. Hammond, Mme. de Sibour, Mrs. Woseph R. Hawley, Mrs. Lothrop Bradley, Miss Olive Risley Seward and Mrs. Isham Hornsby, leaving one vacancy yet to be filled. A member can introduce a lady from out of town, to whom the privileges of the club rooms will be effered for a period of ten days. The wives of foreign ministers resident in this city, and distinguished women for other cities, will be elected to honorary membership, and will be sent cards entitling them always to the hospitality of the club rooms.
