The Trans-Antlantic Mail.

LONDON, July 28 .- Several questions Tite asked in the House of Commons yeserday in regard to the trans-Atlantic mail trice. The Right Hon. Arnold Morley, matmaster-General, replied that the Postbegin that decided to abandon us to costly the experiment that had been bird of forwarding the American mails to London by special train. If a steamer arrived at Queenstown when the ordinary half service could not be availed of, her ball sould not be landed with advantage at that port. Henceforth they would be halls could not be landed with advantage with a port. Henceforth they would be been to Liverpool. Mr. Morley added that he did not think this plan would make then difference to those concerned. The special train experiment had involved an insenditure of £150 on each occasion that kind been tried, and special trains had been engaged about a dozen times a year.

The Scrimmage in the House. ONDON. July 28 .- In the House of Commons to-day M. Heather, Liberal member for Aberdeen, asked Mr. Gladthese to appoint a committee to inquire into the disgraceful proceedings of last light. Mr. Gladstone said the quostine was one of the greatest delicacy. The tocurrence formed a very serious fact in the history of the House. He would contain the matter and give an answer next week.

looks upon the working out of his latest achievement. We regret that the Opposition took notice of the disgraceful insults with which Mr. Chamberlain was assailed. The political manners of the pothouse might have been left to serve as an example of what would occur in the Irish Legislature should Mr. Gladstone succeed in establishing that preposterous body. The Standard (Tory) says: "We had all without distinction of party believed that disorder in our Legislature never would degenerate into blows. We cannot longer flatter ourselves thus. We must in the future renounce the privilege of observing from a pinnacle of conscious dignity the affrays in the colonial assemblies and the broils in the French Chamber. The episode must have been unspeakably painful to Mr. Gladstone. His bitterest opponent must allow that he has sought to maintain a high standard of courteey and dignity in Parliament. But Mr. Gladstone must be aware that the ignoble scene was closely connected by the chain of cause and effect allow that he has sold and ignity in high standard of courtesy and dignity in Parliament. But Mr. Gladstone must be aware that the ignoble scene was closely connected by the chain of cause and effect with the discredit which he has brought on the House of Commons."

The Daily News (Gladstonian) says:
"When the public learns how the disturbance arose there will be a universal feeling of indignation and regret that the most illustrious statesman of the age was exposed to such insults as those flung by Mr. Chamberlain. To compare Mr. Gladstone to an impious Herod at the awful close of his career met the warmest approval of the Opposition. To refer to Mr. Chamberlain as "Judas" was an outrage to be resented with violence. It is noteworthy, that whereas Mr. O'Connor apologized, there was no hint of apology or retraction from Mr. Chamberlain and his abettors. Mr. Chamberlain knew and probably intended all that was meant by a comparison of the Prime Minister with Herod. The people of the country will resent the insult in a manner which may cause Mr. Chamberlain and his friends regret for the rest of their political lives."

The Daily Chronicle (Unionist) says that Mr. Chamberlain must bear the responsibility for the scene. "While Mr. Glad-

The Siam Trouble.

LONDON, July 28 .- In the House of Commons Sir Edward Gray, Parliamentary Secretary of Foreign Affairs, said the question as to the effect on British trade of the French blockade of the Siamese coast was being discussed by the Foreign Office officials and the law officers of the Govern-

It is rumored there are dissensions in the French Cabinet growing out of the troubles with Siam. It is said some of the Ministers are dissatisfied because the blockade was not effected with more promptness, and that they repreach their colleagues for recalling the French gunboats from Bangkok. Reports have it that the deliberations of the Cabinet at Marly-le-Roi, where the councils have been held because where the councils have been held because of the presence there of President Carnot, have been marked by a number of violent conciliatory attitude of Lord Rose The conciliatory attitude of Lord Rose-berty, British Foreign Minister, is ascribed to his knowledge of the French Cabinet dissentions and to assurances he has re-ceived from the French Ministers who are in favor of using moderation in the treat-ment of Sign. ment of Siam.

BANGROK, July 28 .- The representative BANGROK, July 28.—The representatives here of the several powers, the leading merchants of the city and the commander of the British and German gunboats met to-day at the British Legation to discuss what action should be taken in the event of rioting on the part of the Chinese who form a large percentage of the city's population. DUN & CO.'S REPORT.

New York, July 28.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s review of trade says: The hardest week yet has left the business world still able to rejoice in the soundness and strength disclosed. Many woolen factories are closing for a month or more indefinitely because orders are slack, while jobbers' orders are about as usual. Clothers still hold off. The trade is said to be not more than a third of the usual volume, and many than a third of the usual volume, and many dealers expect to do no more than balf the usual spring business.
