the St. Louis Browns prove troublesome to American League Clubs this summer, all credit must be given Manager George Stovall. It is doubtful if a major league manager ever adopted such radical plans as Stovall to put his team comes through he will be heralded as a great leader—one who the Browns upon their feet.

IF dared to employ new methods.

In 1908, when the Browns made such a strong bid for the pennant, the In 1908, when the Browns made such a strong bid for the pennant, the club was a veteran organization. Until September many believed the team would win the flag. The infield—Hobe Ferris, Wallace, Jimmy Williams and Tom Jones—played remarkable ball. The pitchers, catchers and outfield performed in good style. Suddenly the team cracked, and the pennant went formed in good style. Suddenly the team had cracked from age.

glimmering. Critics said the team had cracked from age. Five years have passed and of that veteran infield only Bobby Wallace remains. Stovall has gathered a bunch of recruits. He and Wallace are the only old heads in the line-up. The 1908 team cracked of old age. Will the 1913 aggregation explode because of extreme youth?

In no one department has Stovall made such radical changes as in the batteries. Usually old heads are considered necessary in the battery department when youngsters are added to the infield and outfield, but Stovall followed no such plan. He disposed of every vet catcher and pitcher.

In point of experience the oldest catcher has had byt two months in the big show, Earl Hamilton, with about three years' experience, is the veteran box man. The work of this team will be watched closely.

Stovall turns out a winner his lead will mark a new departure in baseball.

Apropos of the coming of Robert B.
