

A Word to the Wise Leader.

A band leader has many problems to successfully solve. How to keep the children interested is among the foremost. If she keep her own interest alive she will have conquered this difficulty. Children are keen to detect feigned interest. They are also much quicker to perceive the spiritual import of mission work than some are wont to think.

In few words, clear, earnest, simple, and yet cheery, bring out the real motive which leads the members to give and work for the cause in which they have enlisted. Do not do this once or twice, or only now and then; do it at every meeting—not at any set time. Let it come in at the middle or beginning or end, sometimes in one place and again in another. Remember! no prosy talk; short and to the point. — H. M. Monthly.
