his many daring tests in the search for news from his own lips. He was at the law school in Brussels when the Franco-Prussian war broke out in 1870, and he turned his eyes toward the field at once. After the war he made his memorable ride to Khivs, the story of which lives in his admirable book, "Campaigning on the Oxus." Another turn of the wheel found him in Oubs, where he remained until the settlement of the troubles arising out of the Virginius affair. Thence he bastoned to England and sailed with Alian Young in the Pandora to the Arctic regions, penetrating to Peel Strait. It was a voyage of great bazard. Allan Young was knighted McGahan published a book, "Under the Northern Lights." McGahan was sitting in his rooms in London one afternoon in the spring of 1876. The first rumors of the massacres in Bulgaria were contained in a paper that was brought to him. He read the brief despatch and acted on the impulse of the moment. He put on his hat and walked around into Bouverle street, and when he returned a quarter of an hour later, he had closed a contract to go at once to Bulgaria for the Daily News. McGahan left the following evening. In a month's time he had put a new face on "the eastern question." The great struggle between Ohristian and Turk was no lorger confined to " the petty quarrels of a few monks over a key and a sliver star," as defined by Kinglake, but assumed proportions that could be discerned in every club and drawing room of imperial London. Englishmen saw every morning staring them in the eyes, in their most enterprising journal, the legend: " Moslem Massacres in Bulguria." McGahan had begun his ride. He visited Batak and painted in cold type what he saw. He hold up the figure of Aschmet

J. A. McGAHAN. THE FAMOUS IBIEH-AMERICAN WAR CORRESPONDS

The Ohio Legislature has passed a bill making provisions for the return of the body of J. A. McGahan, the famous Irish-American war correspondent, from the cemetery at Soutari, on the Bosphorus, to the family burying plot in Perry County, Onio. J. A. McGahan was one of the brightest men in journalium; but so modest was he that no one ever heard rose in their cause. "The Jingo" ministry sent its fleet to the Dardanelles, but dated not land a man or fire a single gun. Popular England repudiated "The Unspeakable Turk" in language so unmistakable that politic England was forced to leave the "Sick Man" to his fate. McGahan's letters forced that attitude upon Beaconsfield. The wily Premier rose in his place in the Commons and denounced the charges as fabrications intended to destroy sympathy for England's old alig, the Turk. Next he caused telegrams to be forwarded from Constantinople discrediting the Daily News' letters. But Mc-Gahan rode enward and wrote sheaves of letters. Our Government directed Eugene Schuyler, American Charge d'Affaires at Constantinople, to vitis the scenes of the atracities. He found everything as McGahan had described it and so reported to the Washington Government. In overy hamlet McGahan said: "The Czar will avenge this. Courage, people; he will come." Two months more and the Russian army was mobilized at Klacheneff and the Czar zoylewed as had been foretold. Attached to the staff of the commanding general, McGahan rode through Boumania and crossed the Danube among the first. Through the varying fortunes of the war he wrote, rode, and laughed. Some of this work, now fortunately preserved in permanent form, is equal to anything of its kind in our language. The assault of Skobeleff on the Gravitua redoubt, known as the battle of September 11, is a masterpiece of writing. When Plevna fell and Ghourke crossed the Balkans McGahan accompanied him. His horse threw him, but he was at the hand to hand fight in the Shipka Pass and wrote of it in words that breathed of fire and smoke. This accident lamed him for life, but did not check his arder mor quiet his pen. Adrianople next and finally the spires and minarets of Constantinople! At Sau Stefano, a suburb of the capital on the Sea of Marmora, General Ignaticifi drew the famous treaty of that name. McGahan's di-gest of that remarkable State paper, his comments thereon and his prediction that it would not stand have become historical. Before that treaty was torn up poor McGahan was stricken down with the spotted fever and died (June 9, 1878.) General Skoboleff, whose friendship dated back to the Kirgita Steppe and the shores on the Ami Ses, closed his eyes and was chief mourner at his grave. He was buried in the little Catholic cometery at Boutsel, on the Asian bank of the Bosphorus. The anniversary of his death is commenceated in every city and hamlet of Bulgaria, where services for the repose of his soul are said. When the Grand Duke Nicholas was informed of McGahan's death he said: "Too bad. He would have been Governor of Bulgaria." Such, in brief, is the story of seven years of this young correspondent's life. He died at the age of thirty. For years the name of Elatour d'Auvergne, "first grenadier of France," was called at nightfall in every regiment of

To Dyspeptics

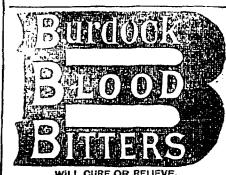

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausca, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miscries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable - a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use. PREPARED BY

HOLLOWAY'S CHITHERT AND PILLS.-Old Wounds, Sores and Ulsers. — Daily ex-perience confirms the fact which has triumphed over opposition for thirty yearsviz., that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies, for curing bad it. Then the order to cross the Pruth same | legs, scree, wounds, diaeazes of the skin, erysipelas, abscesses, burns, scalds, and, in truth, all cases where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmitles quickly is of primary importance, as the compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the scree and expel their cause. In the very worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure, after every other means has failed of giving any relief. Desperate cases best display its virtues.
