

THE CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE.

St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Benefit Society.

The Fifty-Seventh Anniversary of its Organization Celebrated by a Successful Entertainment—Hon. Judge Curran Delivers an Eloquent Address, During Which He Offers a Tribute to the Memory of the Hon. Edward Murphy, one of the Founders.

We are indebted to the enthusiastic and indefatigable secretary of St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Society, Mr. W. P. Doyle, for the following report of the proceedings at the entertainment on Tuesday evening, at St. Patrick's Hall, on the occasion of the celebration of the fifty-seventh anniversary of the foundation of the organization.

The fifty-seventh anniversary was fittingly celebrated by a grand entertainment. The hall was filled to overflowing with a very appreciative audience. Among those present on the platform were noticed Mr. John Walsh, first vice-president of the society, who presided; Hon. Mr. Justice Curran, Mr. John Killfeather, president of St. Ann's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. John Lappin, president of the C.M.B.A.; Messrs. M. Sharkey, James Meek and Thomas Styles. The Rev. Fathers Driscoll and McDermott, of St. Patrick's, also occupied seats on the stage. The Rev. Father Quinn was detained in the early part of the evening, but was present towards the close of the entertainment.

Mr. John Walsh, in his opening remarks, welcomed the large audience present, and gave a brief and interesting outline of the work of the Society.

The first item on the programme was selections on the phonograph by Mr. P. Kelly, which was enjoyed immensely. The next was a band by Messrs. J. L. Howard and J. Chambers, who had to respond to an encore.

"The Holy City" was beautifully rendered by Miss N. McAndrew, who received an encore. The Misses A. and M. Reynolds followed with a piano duet, which was heartily applauded and also encored. An Irish jig, by Mr. McDonald, met with good success, as that gentleman had to respond to an encore. Mr. P. Kelly followed with more selections on the phonograph. Mr. M. J. Power, whose abilities as an elocutionist are well known, recited "The Battle of Fontenoy," and had to respond to an encore. After more selections on the phonograph by Mr. Kelly, the President called upon

Hon. Mr. Justice Curran, who delivered an admirable address, during the course of which he referred to the laudable pride of race which characterized every nation that had carved its name in deeds on the world's history. Speaking of the Irish race, he traced in vivid and beautiful language the glorious past of their ancestors—the grand old days of saintliness and scholarship, the terrible struggles of centuries, the triumph over persecution. When emerging from ages of darkness and of sorrow, once more the sons of Ireland had distinguished themselves. They were eminent in civil and military life. In every art and science Irish names were as household words. They could boast of their statesmen and scholars, orators and poets; but amongst them all there was no greater benefactor of the human race than Father Mathew. Just as a nation could glory in its history so could a society. The St. Patrick's T. A. & B. Society had a past of which its members might feel proud. Its origin was in the church of the old Recollets. Its founder was that devoted priest, Father Phelan, afterwards Bishop of Kingston, a zealous apostle of total abstinence, whose name would live in the history of Canada. Other distinguished ecclesiastics had one after another identified themselves with the temperance cause in their association, until today they had at the head of their society that eloquent, fearless and undaunted foe to the enemy of peace and prosperity, Father McCallen, who is the Father Mathew of the cause in our noble city of Montreal. (Applause.) But if clergymen had labored, so also had laymen. Time would not permit him to speak of more than one, but he had been a host in himself. A true patriot, one whom prosperity had not spoiled nor alienated from his own people, but who had stood by them, and with them, and for them, at home and abroad, in every worthy cause, but in the cause of temperance especially—a man who had honored the Irish race in our city as a merchant and a banker, and as the friend of education, and in the councils of the nation as a senator. Need he mention the name of the

as true a son of Ireland and as devoted a citizen of Canada as had ever landed upon the shores of America? (Prolonged applause.) He was glad to find that neither the name nor the good deeds of a good man were likely soon to be forgotten. The eloquent speaker next directed a few remarks to the progress the Society was making. He said that beneath their banner they were organizing a band of workers whose beneficial influence was almost incalculable. Laws for promoting sobriety were good, but the cornerstone of the edifice must be religious conviction. With that to build upon their fondest hopes would be realized—a sober people and a religious people would be a free people in the true sense of the word. (Applause.) Their sobriety would ensure peace and plenty in their own homes, but it would do far more; the influence of their conduct would be as far reaching as it must be beneficial. He was glad to be with them as a member of their association; he was happy to witness their growing numbers and their unabated zeal. As Christians they were delighted to see men of all races and creeds in our community practicing the virtue of temperance, but it was permitted that they should be especially anxious that the principles of their society should take the firmest root amongst those of their own race. The teachings of Father Mathew, if followed here by the children of Ireland, would ensure them a place of honor in the free and happy Dominion of Canada. (Prolonged applause.)

The remaining portion of the programme was then proceeded with. A piano solo by Mrs. M. Walsh, and a song by Mr. L. McMahon, were rendered in good style. Mr. N. J. McElhone in his comic recitation, "The Joiner," fairly brought down the house, and he had to respond to encores.

Mr. Jas. Kennedy followed in a song which was sung in such good style that he received an encore.

Mr. P. Kelly again interested the audience with his phonograph, which brought the entertainment to a close. Mr. J. L. McCaffrey acted as accompanist and filled the duties pertaining to that office admirably. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with streamers, mottoes, flags and plants.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

it, and if things prosper in the proportion they are now assuming, the superlative will have to be used, and the city will claim the title of 'Greatest New York.' Already seventeen great enterprises are in a greater or less state of forwardness, and all expect to be completed by the year 1900. The effect of these will be to put the heart of Manhattan Island within half an hour of all the outlying environments of the great city.

A Peculiar Project.

There are faddists innumerable in this vicinity, judging from the announcement which appeared in the local news columns of some journals last week, that a meeting in the interest of forming a Boys' Industrial Colony Association would be held shortly. Mr. Steele, of whom it is also announced that he has a wide experience in dealing with a class that is strangely termed "Slum boys," gives the following outline of the project:—The Boys' Industrial Colony at Gardiner is intended to be a small community, in which the boys govern themselves. They elect their own rulers, who make the laws and appoint officers to enforce them. Nothing is done which would tend to encourage pauperism. The boys are given absolutely nothing except in return for labor done. The money earned pays for their meals, lodging and clothing, and the little luxuries which the colony store offers. If a boy does not work and has no money he is unable to pay for his meals and must go hungry. Experience has proved that seldom a boy will miss more than one meal, and that as soon as he becomes hungry he will develop a remarkably industrious tendency.

New Church for Negroes.

The Rev. John E. Burke, rector of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor, Bleeker and Downing streets, the only church for colored Catholics in this city, purchased yesterday the church on the south side of West Fifty-third street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, heretofore occupied by the Second Church of the Evangelical Association of North America, and will take possession of it on May 1. The church will be remodelled and redecored. To raise funds to do this a fair will be held in Lyric Hall, commencing on April 14. The new church will be, as the old one was, a headquarters for missionary work among the colored people, and not a parish church. The old church in Bleeker street will be taken possession of by the Italian congregation which now worships at 214 Sullivan street. It will be known as the Church of the Madonna of Pompeii. It will be distinctly Italian, and only the Italian language will be spoken there. Father Burke paid $30,000 for the new church.

The Paris Horn.

'Yankee Doodle' is to be trumpeted forth at the Paris exhibition of 1900 in tones that will pierce the heavens and shake the earth. Such is the combined decree of American enterprise, genius and pluck. A monster horn nearly 300 feet high and long in proportion, is to form part of the American exhibit in Paris. Its great flaring bell will rise majestically from the ground to a height nearly equal to that of New York's tallest sky-scraper, and from its cave-like interior music of undreamed of volume will thunder forth at all times of the day. This music will be mostly American, 'Yankee Doodle,' of course, claiming and receiving full prominence. In fact it will be so constantly dinned into the ears of the world of visitors and native Parisians that it will become as familiar to European as to American ears. A pair of lips modelled after those of man will control the volume of air that will sweep, tornado-like, through them into the great horn. Gigantic bellows operated by electric engines will furnish the gale of wind that will be constantly blowing.

Death of W. J. Scanlan.

William J. Scanlan, the well known actor, died last week in Bloomingdale Asylum at White Plains, where he had been since Jan. 7, 1892. He broke down after the Christmas Day performance at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, and was afterward declared insane and sent to Bloomingdale. Since that time he had declined steadily in mind and body. For the last three years he had spent his time almost entirely in bed. Occasionally he was able to get up for a few days, but that was exceptional. Mr. Scanlan was born at Springfield, Mass., on Feb. 14, 1856. His parents were of Irish descent.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles Desjardins, of the firm of Chas. Desjardins & Co., importers and manufacturers of hats and furs, left this morning via New York, on a business trip to Europe. Mr. Desjardins will sail by the Campania, on Saturday morning, and will visit London, Paris, Leipzig, and Moscow, in Russia, in the interest of the firm.

OUR IRISH LETTER.

Belfast Catholics to Make Another Struggle

For Representation on the Water Board—Some Vigorous and Practical Speeches—The Wave of Enthusiasm in Connection with the Centenary of '98 Celebration—The Hospital Scandal Again.

DUBLIN, February 12.—The elections to the Belfast Water Board will take place on the 8th March, and the Catholic association of that city are already in the field with two candidates for Falls Ward and Smithfield Ward, namely, Messrs. Maguire and Macauley, both men of sterling character and ability, and eminently popular with their co-religionists. The nomination of these gentlemen was made at a public meeting of the ratepayers on the 7th inst., and much enthusiasm, with much excellent speaking, marked the occasion.

Amongst those who addressed the meeting were the chairman, Mr. James McDonnell, Councillor Magee, Mr. Maguire, Alderman Dempsey, Councillor Carr, the Rev. Father McGinnis, Rev. J. O. Boyle, C.C.; Dr. McDonnell, Mr. John Lavery, Rev. J. K. O'Neill, Rev. John Nolan, Councillor McEatee, Mr. John McKenna and others. At a recent election for the Town Council the nominees of the association were opposed by their co-religionists and the rather peculiar spectacle of what might be called "a family feud" was exhibited to the world. The result was a triumphant success for the candidates of the association. Whether the same spirit will show itself in the case of the coming election for the Water Board is not known, but the association is prepared and determined to carry its men against all comers, whether from within or without the Catholic body. Eight Catholics are now in the City Council and have given a good account of themselves, and as Councillor Carr said, they had "fought their corner to the best of their ability." Under the leadership of Alderman Dempsey they had gone on almost in the path of victory. They now proposed to send representatives into that close preserve, the Water Board—and it was a very close preserve—a little family party, in which brothers and brothers-in-law and their cousins and uncles, and the whole box and dice of them gathered together to do their little jobs, with the outside public knowing nothing of them. They were going to send Mr. Maguire there, and it would certainly be surprising if, afterwards, there was not more publicity thrown upon the proceedings of the board. From the highest to the lowest, from the man who turned the screw to the man who received 2500 per year for doing nothing, the poor, unfortunate Catholics—almost without exception—could scarcely get an entrance there. It was not a bit more a close preserve than the Harbour Board. They were going to have legislation on the Poor-Law Board, and thanks to Mr. Dempsey they were going to open that very exclusive and aristocratic board, the Harbour trust, and allow Catholics to have a chance.

Alderman Dempsey, in the course of a spirited speech, remarked that: "If there was a board in Belfast that wanted new blood, and especially Catholic blood, he did think it was the Water Board. It was as exclusive in its appointments as an Orange lodge—in fact all the boards were the same. They could not get an item of information out of the Town Hall, Harbour Board, or the Water Board. There was no Catholic in the employment of those boards who would have any access to information. That was the glorious state of things they had to deal with."

"The '98 Centenary Enthusiasm." "The heather is afire" in respect of the '98 movement, and its reflection is showing in every city, town, village and hut in the land—and the watchword of the day "Who fears to speak of '98?" is heard from every mouth. Enthusiastic rallies were held in Cork, Middleton, Cashel, Thirles, Ballycarr, Belfast, Loughrea, Athlone, Wexford and Drogheda. And also great gatherings at Manchester, Liverpool and Salford in England, all breathing the spirit of '98 and of one determination in respect to the celebration of its centenary.

Referring to the 'Royal Incurable Hospital Scandal,' which has raised such a bitter feeling, because of the election of the Catholic representation on the governing board, a resolution was offered at the last meeting of the Dublin Corporation protesting formally against the action of the governors.

Mr. Henry Brown, commenting on this, said the facts had been correctly stated. He denied that there was any ground for the charge of bigotry against the governors of the institution. He then said the day of the election was so bad there was only a scratch committee present (they seemed to know how to scratch, too.) Of the seven gentlemen proposed for re-election, some were old, some were new; there were more ladies present than gentlemen, and in signing their ballot papers they naturally crossed them in favor of those they knew. The most perfect religious liberty was enjoyed by all inmates of the hospital, and they even had a chapel in the building. He claimed that the dropping of the Catholic governors was more or less accident, not, certainly, premeditated or prearranged. The institution, though founded by Protestant money, was non-sectarian, and it was his desire to keep it so.

Mr. Cone supported the resolution, and thought it a coincidence, hard to explain, that on a board of 40 members, only 9 of whom were Catholic, every Catholic offering for re-election was left off. He, as a Protestant, was ready to accept the explanations of Messrs. Brown and Beattie, but he would allow the resolution to pass. If the act was through inadvertence it should be corrected, if otherwise it should occupy the grave attention of every subscriber to the hospital.

Mr. Ireland protested against the passage of the resolution and several supported it. In putting it the Lord Mayor said he regretted having to state that he had been informed by a gentleman who knew the working of the institution, that his impression was that the action of the Board of Governors, on the morning of the election, was deliberate and intentional, and his informant further protested that the institution, though apparently non-sectarian, was tinged with sectarianism, and he added, that the institution was largely supported by the bequests and donations of Catholics.

The resolution, on being put to the meeting, was carried practically unanimously, the only dissentient voice heard being Mr. Brown's.

Decorating the Grave of Dr. Drennan.

On Sunday last over 300 members of the different '98 clubs in Belfast assembled at the Clifton street Cemetery to decorate the grave of Dr. Drennan, whose name is borne by the Divis Club, under whose auspices the function took place. There were a dozen wreaths from the different clubs, and the work of decoration was performed by the ladies connected with the Mary McCracken (Decoration) Club, the Betsy Grey, and the Mary McCracken '98 Club.

FLYNN-WHELAN.

On Monday morning, St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, when Rev. Father Quinn, P.P., united in marriage Miss Katie Whelan, only daughter of Mr. Patrick Whelan of this city, to Mr. John J. Flynn, second eldest son of Mr. J. B. I. Flynn, also of Montreal. The contracting parties were attended by Miss A. Hogan, cousin of the bride, and Mr. M. W. Flynn, brother of the groom, who acted as bridesmaid and groomsmen respectively.

After the ceremony all repaired to the residence of the bride's father, where their relatives were given a wedding breakfast. The happy couple left by the 9:30 a. m. C. P. R. train for Ottawa. The numerous and valuable presents, of which they were the recipients, gave evidence of the high esteem in which they are held by their many friends. The True Witness joins in its best wishes for their future happiness.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRATION.

Mr. W. P. Stanton, (of the well known firm of W. P. Stanton & Co., dealers in office specialties), chairman of the County Board A.O.H. music committee for St. Patrick's Day celebration, has entered into a contract with Professor Quinn, leader of the Victoria Rifles Band, for their services on St. Patrick's Day. The County Board are to be congratulated upon securing Montreal's crack musical organization.

THE COST OF THE ENGLISH ENGINEERS' STRIKE.

Elaborate computations, says a writer in the New York Times, have been made by the London papers in the effort to find an approximation of the cost to employers and employes of the recent great strike in the engineering trade. The figures are sufficiently impressive. In the thirty-one weeks during which the strike lasted 110,400 skilled workmen belonging to unions 'went out' for a longer or shorter time, the average number of them from week to week being 34,000. Counting the non-union men who struck on account of sympathy, and the unskilled laborers who were deprived of employment, the average for the whole period is at least 70,000. Nothing like this was ever known in England before, for though there have been longer strikes and strikes in which more men participated, none of them was at once so long and so widespread. The direct loss of wages is estimated at $17,275,000, but to this in order to reach the amount by which the men were poorer at the end of the strike than they would have been if they had continued at work, there must be added large sums contributed by sympathizers and the depletion of savings in bank, both those of the unions and of their members. Taking everything together, it is said that the strike cost the men $24,400,000, while the loss in trade to the employers is set down at $25,980,000, making a grand total of $51,380,000.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." MRS. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

ARCHBISHOP O'BRIEN

Refers to the Papal Encyclical on the Manitoba School Question.

The Result of Godless Schools Pointed Out in an Effective Manner.

Archbishop O'Brien of Halifax, in his Lenten Pastoral, read on Sunday last in all the churches of the Archdiocese, in which he deals with the Pope's encyclical on the school question, says:—

Our Holy Father the Pope told us, in his encyclical letter to the Bishops of Canada, that purely secular education and vague and superficial notions of virtue are not sufficient to make good Christians and good citizens. I recommend all to get a copy of this magnificent letter and to keep it in your homes, to study it carefully and to be guided by its words of wisdom and love. May each one amongst you appreciate the truth of these words, and realize the fact that without religion there can be no really moral education, and, setting aside the prevailing prejudices of the age, which is endeavoring to exclude religious teaching, may every one be brought to understand that God should have His place in every system of education.

Education without any fixed religious principles has been tried in many places. Every effort has been put forth and much money spent to achieve good results, and to-day all serious and right-thinking men condemn it. Where it has had its fullest scope, there lawlessness, municipal and state corruption, cheating in all the forms that an intellectual training makes possible, have increased in startling proportions, the spirit of religious observance has decreased, the sanctity of the home has been polluted, and self-murder, the outcome of a gospel of despair is afflicting society. People without faith have deceived hosts of right-thinking Christians and have induced them to accept this pernicious system. Let it be hoped that they will acknowledge their error and will assist in restoring the Creator to the place He should occupy amongst His people, and thus remedy the wrongs inflicted upon society.

The Gazette, in an editorial paragraph, says:—

"Archbishop O'Brien, one of the most moderate of churchmen in Canada, speaks of the Pope's encyclical on the Manitoba school question as a 'magnificent letter.'"

It then quotes a passage from the Pastoral and states:—

"There is enough in events on this continent to justify, in many minds, all this severe indictment. Even those who think public schools should not meddle with religion admit that public schools without religion do not make their graduates all good men."
