They profess to believe in a doc-trine of the Holy Eucharist, which they do not dis-tinguish from Transubstantiation, and yet declare this doctrine to be "repugnant to Holy Scripture," and that it " plainly overthroweth the nature of a Sacra-ment." They profess to believe, that the Priest offers Christ in the Sacrifice of the Mass for the quick and the dead, and yet they declare this to be "a blasphemous fable and a dangerous deceit." They profess to be lieve, that at least some of the five Sacraments [(besides Baptism and the Holy Eucharist) are what the Catholic Church tells them, and yet are content to say that. they "have grown partly of the corrupt following of the Apostles." This list of inconsistencies, or rather contradictions, might be extended far beyond the space we can give to it. Words must cease to have meaning before we can regard with any kind of respect a position which involves such results.

The New York Tribune of June 1st, cites the following as an instance of how foreigners-mere Irishare treated in the United States :-" A married Irish woman named Ellen Connors, about two years since, was fallen in with while inebriated, and brutally vio-lated by a party of young ruffians, who afterwards fied, and only one of them, a young man named Seeley, who was not a prominent actor in the disgraceful affair was arrested. He has just been acquitted in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, and the unfortunate woman who has been confined two years in jail as a witness, has been discharged from custody. Wasthere ever a more cruel piece of business than this? A most diabolical outrage committed upon a helpless woman, and the hapless creature, instead of meeting with sympathy, is subjected to two years imprisonment, while the perpetrators of the crime escape "unwhipped of justice !" The poor victim may well erclaim with Bianca.

"Nice laws, fine laws, most equitable laws."" able Protestant preaching shop, and narrates his experiences : -

"I very soon discovered." he says, "that no 'dead-duly attended to. heads' were allowed on this line, and that if a man Hours of attend couldn't pay, he was put off the train. After some preliminary chat about the foreign news, the state of the markets, the hope of a revival of religion, the rise in 'Erie,' the progress of the work of grace, and price of pork, the lowly ones gathered around, and the sale began. Those pews nearest the pulpit, or perhaps I should say, those sents next the locomotive, were sold dred and twenty dollars premium : the price was to be paid merely for a choice of seats, in addition to the regular rent. I instantly saw that I hadn't money enough to take a first-class cabin passage, but hoped that there might be a place for me somewhere.— Jones bought a ticket, and Smith, and Tompkins; but there was not a single seat that came down to there was not a single seat that came down to treal and vicinity, that she has just received 2 large my pile; and I felt I must give up the journey, or and a cheaper conveyance, for I certainly couldn't afford to go to heaven at such exorbitant rates." He makes a little "calculation," and finds that to be saved at that church would be a greater expense to him than his sins had ever been : "Prayers cost me forty cents an hour, and sermons four dollars and a half apiece ; and if I am as great a sinner as the minister says I am, it would break the Bank of England light of sacred things;" it is treating, in at least an effective way, a matter which, as we have said, is attracting wide attention among various clergymen, and the metropolitan and religious press of the country.

A QUESTION IN MORAL PHILOSOPHY .- The following conversation took place in the ladies' first hall of Asylumia. Miss Dix had passed through a moment before, and a younger daughter of our household, just started in her teens, made one of a cluster called together by the occasion. Girl: Who was the lady whom we saw with the doctor?—Lady: That was Miss Dix, the philanthropist.—Girl: What is a philanthro-pist, please?—Lady: philanthropist. my dear, is a WEST MANCHESTER, PA., Feb. 4, 1850. Sin: Your CHERRY PECTORAL is performing marvellous cures in this section. It hus rolleval several from alarming symptoms of consumption, and is now curing a man who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years. ILENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M. D., ALLION, MONROE Co., Iowa, writes, Sept. G, 1855: "During my practicoof many years I have found nothing equal to your CREERE PECTORAL for giving ease and re-lief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remeily has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some no human aid can reach ; but even to those the CHERRY RECTORAL affords relief and comfort.
