What to Have for Luncheon

UNCHEON is a convenient meal that permits of a great variety of display of good taste and pretty possessions. It is therefore a favord ite time to entertain informally

Because of its accommodating nature this meal is in danger of becoming over-sumptuous. It is, and should be kept, a very simple meal of entrees and cold dishes only. A heavy meat course with accompanying rich foods removes it from its class and ranges it alongside the dinner and at once destroys its individuality.

at once destroys its individuality.

These two menus are models upon which many changes may be rung, but beware of elaborating them too much:

Menu No. 1—First course: Grape fruit, halved or in cocktail. Second course: Cream velvet soup or bisque. Third course: Cutlets with peas. Fourth course: Salad. Fifth: Dessert and cafe demi-tasse.

Menu No. 2—First course: Fruit in season. Second: Little neck clams or oysters on the half shell. Third course: Meat patties. Fourth course: Creamed chicken or sweethreads or small birds in cases. Fifth course: Sweet omelet souffle. Final course: Cheese, coffee.

As luncheon is only intended to bridge the appetite from breakfast until dinner, but little of any article is served.

This meal is called "gouter," meaning a taste, in French, and there only a taste of anything is served; this leaves a sharp appetite for the important meal, dinner.

only a taste of anything is served, portant meal, dinner.

The family or home luncheon needs attention, for it is too often a mere makeshift and sometimes entirely lacking.

It does not do to starve the body or play tricks with one's digestion by neglecting to eat in the middle of the day, for as soon as you neglect to supply the body machinery with food it begins to feed upon your reserve strength to keep it going. You know what happens then. Once there was a man who trained his cow to live on one straw a day, but no sooner had he accomplished this than the beast lay down and died.

Once a day is often enough to serve meat and it is agreed that dinner is the proper place for this necessary food, but if one is working hard, cold meat is a grateful luncheon dish.

Tray service may be used conveniently for serving lunch for one or two persons. A friend, without a madd, insisted upon my lunching with her a few days ago and all she served was freeh Boston brown bread with unsalted, fresh churned butter, a glass of rich milk and a bowl of honey, on a great, beautiful tray. Of course we enjoyed it, and her husband told me that they never had anything more elaborate at lunch.

One menu this couple declared a liking for smacked of school days; it was sardines with hot salted wafers, dill pickles and cheese with them. The family consists of three sons, that they never had anything more elaborate at lunch.

The man of the house in this case is a physician, and the wife a successful artist. While we ate he gave some advice that is good enough to pass on. He said: "The table is the last place in the world to begin practicing economy on. ticing economy on. Foreshorten expenditures in every other part of the house first, but never cut into the supply of wholesome, nourishing food made agreeable to both eye and palate.

"The best way to make home happy is to have enough to eat, and in order that there shall be an abundance, use foresight in buying, and do not neglect the old favorites like barley and hominy and fine Irish stew. Never have your larder on the edge of bankruptcy, for as sure as you let it become depleted friends will appear unexpectedly and your domestic camp will act as the a bomb had expleded in it."

I thought this a very good sermen from a mere man.

cillus flies about in the dust and air, and is breathed into the lungs of little children. Children of any age may have this disease. It affects not only the lungs but may be found in the glands of the neck, the bones, the intestines and other organs.

Tuberculosis of the glands of the neck is common; the little lumps can easily be felt and seen. They remain enlarged for a long, long time, and sometimes have to be removed. Other parts of the body are not necessarily involved.

Tuberculosis of the bones is familiarly known as "Pott's Disease." Deformed children are often suffering from tuberculosis in the bones of the spine.

And Were Afterwards Entertained at the Pellatt

Castle.

An inspection of Cedarvale was made by the city council and department officials, the owners of that large subdivision desiring to have it annexed to the city. Lt.-Gov. Gibson, Sir Henry Pellatt, and many of their friends accompanied the civic officials; R. J. Fleming was also along, he being desirous of having his farm annexed to the city. The whole party went in automobiles, which made a procession nearly a mile in length.

Cedarvale is a plot of nearly 400 acres on the west side at the head of Bathurst street. A deep ravine winds thru the grounds, bridged by a structure of reinforced concrete and steel. R. J. Fleming's farm is on the northeest corner of St. Clair avenue and Bathurst street. The council is considering the annexation of much more territory in the northwest than that they inspected. Terms were not discussed.

Sir Henry Pellatt afterwards entertained the party at his castle. He humonously announced that L. Gov.

When seen by The World in the midst of the reception yesterday, Mr. Coyle was busy receiving congratulations and good wishes from his many friends. He recalled events of long ago, and looked tack complacently upon his 50 long years of happy married life. Toronto, he said, altho unrecognizable now from when he and his wife first took up their residence here, was a fine city in which to make a home, and so far as he could see he would end his days here.

Mr. and Mrs. Coyle were the recipients of a number of magnificent presents from friends, both present and absent; from the family they received a handsome purse of gold. In honor of the occasion the interior of the house was beautifully decorated with flowers.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stokes and granddaughter; Miss Violet Coyle, Mrs. Leeman, Mrs. Armstrong, Miss A. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walle, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington, Miss Louise Collwill, Mr. and Mrs. New-Man, Mrs. Mercer, Mr. John Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. H. Brown of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Coyle's three sons.

WHAT IS AN IMMORAL PLAY?

Halfax Herald: What is an immoral book or play? asks a contemporary, and goes on to comment on the proper tests to be applied, and the serious errors of prevailing censorship.

Every now and then the public hear about some play being censored in one of the leading dramatic centres of the world.

It may be written with a sincere desire to accomplish some good.

The authors are under the impression that the stage has a duty to persion that the stage has a duty to per-form in calling attention to social sores in all their ugliness and in lead-ing the public to face them and to do what they can to wipe them out. Yet their work is banned because it is said to be "immoral."

Is not that a serious misuse of the word, when no note is taken of the purpose and tendency of the play?

At the same time musical comedies and other entertainments of a light nature are tolerated and largely pat-ronized, which have the exactly op-posite object, that of painting evil in an attractive light, in stimulating a de-sire to participate in the kind of life which all know, whatever its outward aspect, spells degradation of the grossest kind.

While for years, in every city in the country, from every music hall stage, the message thinly disguised if at all

But what happens after the fall of the curtain on the typical musical show? Yet the pillars of society are com-plaining of "Any Night" because they say it is immoral. And if a similar play were put on in a popular-priced theatre for all the public to see, or in
