

I am now, as you were informed by the very last note in my Diary, a LIEUTENANT. I still keep a journal, but it is one on a much more extensive scale—one that I can refer to for information. In it are contained the remarks of "Two Voyages round the World," and I promise, if my "scattered leaves" are acceptable, to commence forthwith, and prepare a second volume of remarks and incidents which, I hope, will be found to combine instruction with amusement.

Farewell.

LONDON:

YATES AND ALEXANDER, PRINTERS, HORSESHOE COURT, LUDGATE HILL.