Otis Skinner at the Princess.
Tonight brings the first performance in Toronto, at the Princess Theatre of Edward Knoblauch's famous Arabian Nights play, "Kismet," with Otis Skinner in the chief role of Hajj the Beggar, For a week past the company's carpenters have been at work preparing the stage of the Princess for the massive production, and one of the company stage managers has been here drilling the forty supernumeraries who will appear with the seventy players, who constitute the regular traveling organization. In every particular the play will be presented here by Klaw & Erlanger and Harrison Grey Fiske exactly as it was presented last season at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, during its run of five months. Owing to the length of the performance the curtain will rise promptly at eight o'clock at the evening performances and at two o'clock at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.
