Charlie Wood is a Port Arthur Girl Run Down by Horse and Man Chinaman, who was sentenced to a year in the Central Prison for assault. Value of Lightning Rods.

New York Herald.

The protection afforded by lightning conductors on isolated buildings at this period of the year is strikingly illustrated by a fact stated in Symons' Meteorological Magazine that in the United Kingdom nearly 400 "unprotected" buildings are damaged annually by lightning. It appears that out of 125 cases of "protected" buildings struck by lightning within three years, there were only 24 cases of the failure of the lightning conductor, an average of less than eight railures a year. It is highly probable that among these cases in which the lightning rods failed to prevent damage there were some which should be ascribed to defects in the conductors or to lack of skill in adjusting them. But, taking the above statistics as they stand, they clearly show that lightning conductors, when properly attached to exposed buildings, do afford real protection. Many of the so-called failures to protect are doubtless due to poor or insufficient conductors or neglect to expend them beneath the building deep enough to reach permanently wet ground.

Luminous Eggs.

From The Minneapolis Journal.

An Eldorado (Kan.) hen has turned an egg that is not only a scientific curiosity, but commercially, of cons derable value. T. B. Murdock in The Republican, vouches for the story, having seen the eggs in the daytime. In Col. Van Rensselaer's poultry yard is a low, swampy spot that seems to be the home of the firety, or lightning bug, and one particular heipful hen stays out late to catch them. She gorges herself on fireflys every evening before going to roost, and it was discovered a few weeks ago that the eggs laid by this helpful hen are nocturnally luminous; that each egg is of the brightness of an electric bulb, and that by coating them with an imperviou

Rapp claimed that while in an argument friday night, young Nusbaum spat in his face, knocked him down and kicked him. Nusbaum said that Rapp and his two witnesses had thrown a dead cat thru the kitchen window, and on to the support table, while the family were eating. He and his father ran out and collared them, and they denied having seen a cat. Then Rapp spat in Nusbaum's face and there was a fight, in which he had been pounded by the three boys. In the break-away one of them threw a brick at him.

Cuba.

In a chat with a World man at the King Edward last evening Mr. Lees referred to the colony of Canadians that is locating at Bartle, mainly thru the efforts of the Cuba Realty Co. of this city.

"It may interest some of your readers who have friends there to know that, in my opinion, they have excellent sugar land and that with proper cultivation they will find it a profitable line," he said. "Not long ago I rode over the 25,000 acres that comprise the Bartle settlement, and I was most favorably impressed. Sugar cane

London, July 23.—In the Handsworth competition at Bisley Allen of the Canadian team was 18th. Mitchell 14th. Huggins 32nd, and Bayles 33rd, each winning 20 shillings.

The receipts for coal at Toronto harbor for the month of July thus far show a gain over a like period for last year, but the showing for the season does not compare favorably with 1905. Last year, up to June 30, there was received 57,897 tons of hard and 12,123 tons of soft coal. The end of June, this year has seen arrivals of 26,474 tons of hard and 11,933 tons of soft coal a decrease of 31,613 tons.
