Mr. Mills—Constitutionally you cannot repudiate responsibility for the Governor-General's actions.

Sir Charles Tupper said it was the facts he wanted. Sir Donald Smith had not acted at the instance of the Government, nor did the Government know of the matter. The first occasion on which Sir Donald Smith acted officially for the Government was when he sent the message in reply to Mr. Greenway's communication, which was laid before the House. An attempt had been made to create a feeling against him (Sir Charles Tupper) by saying that he had garbled the communication. Well, he had given all he considered necessary and all that was pertinent to the question. He was sure no one would want to prevent the Governor-General privately and personally expressing an opinion to a private member of the House on a public question.

Mr. Cockburn thought it would be an evil day for Canada when His Excellency should be precluded from expressing his personal opinion of the desirability of amicably settling a matter of irritation. Party feeling had brought the hon, gentlemen opposite to such extreme views that they revolted at the notion of a gentleman using his rersonal endeavors, as Sir Donald Smith had done, for the good of the country.

Sir Charles Tupper read the answers he had given to Mr. McCarthy, and showed that they were strictly accurate.

The discussion was continued by Messrs. Casey, Davies, Dickey, and others.

Dr. Weldon said it was evident from the warmth with which the Liberals had spoken to-day that they feared a local solution of this question. (Hear, hear.) True Canadians deplored five or six years of wasted energy on the After recess the discussion was continued by Messrs. Mulock and Mara.

Sir Charles Tupper said, so far as the Government was aware, Sir Donald Smith's visit to Winnipeg was of his own spontaneous motion, and the Government had no lot or part in the mission. However, the Government was prepared to assume the entire responsibility of what had occurred in connection with the Governor-General, as explained by Sir Donald Smith yesterday

Governar-General's Opinions.

Mr. Mills—Can the Governor-General have an opinion on a public question other than that of his responsible advisers?

Sir Charles Tupper—No, but the facts have been stated, and there was not sufficient grounds for raising the question which the Liberals had done.

Mr. Edgar thought there had been no such ideas with respect to responsible government since the days of the Georges.

I tried various doctors, both in the country and in the city, and took medicines too numerous to mention, but everything failed to have the desired effect. When I used Burdock Blood Bitters it succeeded beyond all expectations, requiring only two bottles to cure me. To make it still more certain that B.B.B. is the real cure for constitution, I may say that some two years afterwards I felt the symptoms returning and took one bottle more and from that time to this present day (over eight years). I have never had any returns of the disease.

I never knew any med.cine to work so well. It does not seem to be a mere reliever, but a sure and certain cure, as I can testify to, for hundreds of dollars worth of medicine and advice failed to do me any good, but three dollars' worth of given me years of health and comfort.

Prospective purchasers of bicycles in Toronto this year should have no difficulty in securing wheels suitable for the most fastidious.

The dealers here are many and are all live men and buyers can easily tell just where to go to make their selections. The different firms all report an unusual activity in business, with the chances of a record for sales this year far in excess of any previous season, notwithstanding the many accessions to their ranks.

The big storm which visited New York traveled northward and on Thursday night and yesterday morning gave Canada a very unpleasant taste of its quality. It was one of the worst storms for March of many years. From all parts there are reports of traffic impeded, trains blocked, roads snowed up, and a general stoppage of ordinary communication. The strong wind piled the drifts in many places higher than they had been this winter. The force of the storm spent itself by daylight yesterday and the rest of the day was fine and mild.
