Hundreds of relatives and friends of the members of the 166th Queen's Own Battalion were on the platform of the North Toronto C.P.R. station shortly after 5 o'clock last evening to greet the troop trains from Camp Borden on their way east. Mayor Church and other civic oficials were present to give Lieut.-Col. W. G. Mitchell and his men a hearty send-off. At 5.50 the first train load pulled into the station. The police and military men were kept busy handling the

Five minutes later the second train steamed in and there was another break from the crowd. MANITOBA PREMIER CALLS ON HEARST

WORKING SPLENDIDLY

Prohibition Runs Smoothly Now in His Province.

Hon. T. C. Norris premier of Manitoba, on his way to attend the convention of the Federated Young Liberal Club of Canada, which he addresses tonight in London, Ont., called on Premier Hearst yesterday.

Prohibitory legislation was working out splendidly in Manitoba, he said, when interviewed. After four months of its enforcement they were having no more difficulty than at first. It had been supposed that this might have heen the case as people grew less afraid of the punishments provided and grew accustomed to the new state of things.

There had been little or no "blind bigging," and very little boot-legging. What liquor had gone into the province had gone, he believed, to the homes of the people, and not into channels of illicit trade.

No "direct delivery" had been attempted, and the some previously licensed shopkeepers had suggested acting as agents for outside firms, this had not been permitted.

Premier Norris did not think that hotes that had generously catered to the needs of the traveling public had been affected by prohibition, the some who had hever really done so had closed their doors when the province

* WAR SUMMARY *

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

HE French made an advance on their extreme right wing south of the Somme yesterday, when they captured strong German positions and a fortified village, and they took 1200 prisoners. The ground taken from the Germans comprises Bovent Village, the northern and western outskirts of Ablaincourt, and the greater part of the Chaulnes Wood. and Combles, and the route of their advance is north of the railway that French lines practically to the road between Chaulnes runs eastward and connects with other important lines at La Fere Junction, about 30 miles further on. A short distance ahead of the French is the southern curve of the River Somme. This has been strongly fortified by the Germans, but the French have now possession of the high ground, and this fact gives their artillery a clear sweep of the country ahead.

Southwest of this battlefield the German lines run thru Roye and Soissons and they take in the easily-defended heights of Soissonais, and it is evident that when the French sweep eastward towards La Fere and St. Quentin the Germans will have to evacuate their strong lines, as well as the height of the Aisne, and clear out to new positions.

The French communication on this action says that the French attacked more than three miles of the German front between Berny en Santerre and Chaulnes and their infantry speedily carried the trench that they set out to carry. Considerable losses were inflicted on the enemy, notably around Ablaincourt. North of the Somme they took 50 prisoners in surprise attacks out of Sailly-Saillizel. Great artillery activity was a feature of both sides. * * * *

It is said in press despatches that owing to low visibility at present the artillery fire of the British and the French is unable to reach its maximum. On account of this it is not expected that they will make another extensive effort until atmospheric conditions improve. The German reports of the past few days repeat the fiction that heavy allied attacks were repulsed, and this phenor shon is taken as a sign that the German chief command is preparing the minds of the kaiser's subjects for the news of a new withdrawal that cannot be concealed. Such a withdrawal will be inevitable when the allies take Bapaume and Peronne.

Sir Douglas Haig had no event of outstanding interest to report from the British front in France last night. South of the Ancre the British army continued the task of improving its new positions, and it brought in a batch of 268 German prisoners, including five officers. North of the Ancre a German aeroplane was brought down near Neuville St. Vaast. A successful raid of the British southwest of Givenchy resulted in the penetration of German trenches in the face of considerable opposition, the bombing of two dugouts and the infliction of a comparatively large number of casualties on the enemy. Thus the scouting and patrol activity of the British army is vigorously continuing on the front between Arras and the Belgian lines.

Serbian Macedonia the French said last night that their offensive on the left wing, or western end of the front, continues successfully, and that in the Cerna bend the Serblans fought an especially sharp action with the Bulgarians and they took $16 prisoners, including five officers. French aero-planes soared over Monastir and Prilip, a few miles ahead, and bombarded the Bulgarian positions, storehouses and depots in these towns. In the section across the Struma the British are having a procession. Before their approach the Bulgarians gave up Chavdar Man and Maznatar without a fight. The previous struggles on this wing have evidently inspired the foe with a wholesome respect for the British infantry.

The Italian force, operating from Valona, in Albania, towards Serbia, has made another forward march, and it has occupied Klisura, southeast of Tepelina and on the Voyusa River. This flanking operation is designed to support the allies against a possible Austrian counter-offensive from the north.

A new Greek cabinet has been sworn in by King Constantine. This will equal in price is superior in respect to the least by any of the allies, and it was fear of a meals are quite within the reach of a meal and a meal a m stab in the back that caused Gen. Sarrail to delay his offensive in the Balkans. The arrival of Venizelos at Saloniki, with his insurgent following, to assist tained there for as little as 25 cents the allies in the war, appears to have obviated the danger of serious treachery on the part of Constantine.

On the Russian front the curtain has again been rung down, probably the order to conceal further dispositions of troops. The Japanese have undertaken to arm the remaining two-thirds of the Russian army needing equipment, so that Russia will have eventually about seventeen million men to take the field should the war demand. The result is that new forces are constantly arriving on the Russian front and taking their places in the line-up. It is significant that Gen. Ruszky, commander of the northern group of Russian armies, on the Dwina, has succeeded in establishing two fortified bridgeheads on the western bank, in the region of Dvinsk. For a year both sides have been trying to gain command of both banks of the Dwina and the Russians have thus won out. The holding of two bridgeheads on the western bank virtually turns the German positions along this northern river,

On the fighting on Monte Pasubio the Italians made another advance captured entrenchments in the Cosmagnon and Sette Croci sectors. They took 176 prisoners and found them to belong to the crack Austrian corps of the Kaiserjager. The Austrians are continuing to fail in their attempts to regin possession of the second peak of the Col Bricon, in the Travignolo Valley. On the Carso Plateau, towards Trieste, minor fighting has been proceeding to the advantage of the Italians. They took 43 prisoners in these actions. The operations here are probably designed to feel out the positions of the colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy or freekled, nothing will designed to fail in their attempts to rear dead particles of surface skin, gently and allow of sing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear potters, delicately soft and beautiful. On ourse, delicately soft and beautiful. On ourse, delicately soft and beautiful. On the creekly

SCARBORO READY FOR INSTALLATION OF HYDRO

Reeve Cornell States Many Subscribers Had Been Obtained for Power.

At yesterday's meeting of the Scarboro Township Council, Reeve Cornell stated that the work of securing subscribers for hydro-electric power and light in the municipality had progressed so well that a petition had gone forward to the Provincial Hydro Commission asking for the imauguration of the system in the township. The suggested route of the light and power line is along the Danforth road, from the city limits easterly, and up the Kennedy road to Agincourt, and probably along the Kingston road to Bircheliffe, tapping a magnificent agricultural and suburban district.

The township will also at once get in close touch with the city in respect to a supply of water to points beyond the city limits. Some time are the hands of the board of control, city council and city authorities. There is an insistent demand from Bircheliffe and other thickly-settled districts for city water, and, as the latter has declared against any further expansion, some local plan will have to be evolved. The reeve will wait upon the city authorities at once in respect to the matter.

the city authorities at once in respect to the matter.

No action was taken in regard to the British Red Cross canvass, scheduled elsewhere for Oct. 19, council taking the stand that the present time was not opportune, the farmers being too busy with their fall work.
