WEST END ODORS AGAIN

Complaint is Made to Board of Control Regarding Manhole at Keele Street.

At yesterday's meeting of the board of control the following motion by Controller O'Neill was adopted: "That the officials appointed to report upon the distribution of insurance upon lives of residents of Toronto dying while on active overseas service in the Canadian expeditionary force be instructed that such money shall be allocated to dependents, who shall be the father. mother, widow or children of the deceased, except that in very special emergency cases allowance may be made to other relatives with the approval of this board."

The wages of night watchmen on city contracts were fixed at $2.25 per day. Under the city bylaw they were being paid 25c per hour and contractors complained that in some cases they were able to earn as much as $24.50 a week, as they often worked 14 hours

West Toronto smells were brought to the attention of the board again when W. T. Fisher complained regarding the odors from the manhole at Bloor and Keele streets. He was re-ferred to the health department. A request for a further grant of $3,000 to the Toronto Recruiting Depot was laid over until information can be obtained as to how the money is to

TORONTO'S SHARE OF THE HIGHWAY COST

Decision Will Be Made by the Board of Control Today.

George H. Gooderham, M.L.A., chairman of the Toronto-Hamilton Highway Commission, asked the board of control yesterday to confirm the understanding that the city was to contribute another $100,000 towards the cost of constructing the highway. Commissioner Harris, who was instructed by the board to report on what he thought the city should do, stated that in his opinion the city should not be asked to pay more than $30,000, the city's proportion of the extra cost, as based on the figures of the original estimate. With this information before them the board instructed the commissioner to bring in a recommendation today, and based upon this a report will be sent on to council.

and whole-hearte in tone, but definite regarding plan.

Mr. Warburton credited the Ontario Alliance and other temperance societies with creating the public sentiment and rendering the success of the Committee of One Hundred possible. His reason for the organization of the committee was that it "could apprehend the question from a different viewpoint" and "without suspicion of political partisanship." The committee recognized the new social situation facing Ontario, and in meeting the new conditions the alliance could play an important part, but with respect to the vote on the prohibition issue, when called for, the Committee of One Hundred was committed to conducting that.

The committee had enjoyed a remarkable experience. The movement had not been opposed up to the time of presenting the petition by the editor of a single daily newspaper in the province. The public men of Ontario had every one of them played fair, and there had been no trickery on the part of any of the politicians on either side. The committee had aneagonized no one, even refusing to accept a cartoon against the liquor trade. They had been supported by the Continent, composed of over 36,000 volunteers.

President Gibson assured Mr. Warburton of the co-operation of the alliance in future efforts.

A "Dry" Battalion.

Lieut.-Col. Hagarty presented the claims of the 201st Battalion to the convention. He pointed to a banner displayed on the platform by two members of the regiment, which read: "201st Battalion" on the top line and "Dry" in the lower line. He believed the temperance people of Toronto and other parts of Ontario would be helping the work at the trenches and helping the temperance cause by sending recruits to join his battalion. He believed he was just as much entitled to call his battalion "Dry" as others were to name theirs "Pals," "Sportsmen's," or "Everybody's." The Dry Battalion would be 300 strong by the end of the week.

A resolution commending Lt.-Col. Hagarty for his efforts to organize a "dry" battalion was adopted.

In reviewing the events of the past year, President Theron Gibson said that he wrote a letter to Premier Hearst asking him to introduce prohibition. The present temperance bill was the culmination of the efforts of all the temperance bodies, including the Committee of One Hundred.

was the hearest thing to a Methodist love-feast that he had seen in many a day.

The conviction in Premier Hearst's words showed that he recognized that he had risked the future of his government, and his own, in deciding to take the prohibition step at this time. The government would do all its duty, said President Gibson, and all the premier had promised it would do. The support and co-operation of the Alliance and Committee of One Hundred were pledged to the government to make the law effective.

Dr. A. Grant gave an address on "Total Dominion Prohibition: When and How." The "when" was now, and the "how" by the people. He suggested Dominion prohibition for the war and two years afterwards, and then a referendum by the people. This could be done, because the Dominion had matters of trade and commerce specially delegated to it.
