Smith, representing Ohio State University, broke the National A. A. U. record for the 100-yard back stroke for women in a swimming meet here, making the distance in 1:23 4-5. The record of 1:25 held by her sister, Eleanor Smith, was established here last month.

In the race, which was the only A. A. U. event on the program, Eleanor Smith finished second and Edie Harrison of Boston third.

TURF.
"Clover."
Relative to "Clover," a standard bred horse owned by Rev. Dr. Uriah Myers of Catawissa, Pennsylvania, and which has reached the unusual age of fifty-one years, Dr. R. W. McCully, one of the foremost veterinarians in the States, has made an examination of this venerable animal and has confirmed the owner's claims to his advanced age. "Clover" has the oldest mouth I have ever examined," states Dr. McCully. "His incisors are as long as a man's forefinger and straight in the jawbone. The most surprising thing is that the teeth are in as good a condition as those of a ten-year-old horse. His molars are perfect, and in this lies the secret of his health. He lies down and gets up with ease, a sign that he is still many years from his end.
One of the first symptoms of marked old age in a horse is the difficulty of lying down and getting up again."

BOXING.
U. S. Champs.
(New York Times.)
That the Amateur Athletic Union's championship boxing tournament held last week in Boston was truly a national affair was illustrated by the final bout in the heavyweight class. In this contest, which undoubtedly held more interest for New York boxing fans than any other of the meeting, Gordon Munce, a metropolitan favorite, was defeated by John Williams of San Francisco. It was Munce's first defeat in twenty-four starts, and he carried the hard-hitting Pacific Coast boxer through an extra round before he relinquished his title.
Relinquish it, he did, however, and when the coveted heavyweight championship changed hands it was due to make a trip across a continent to its new home.
Thus it was in a majority of the bouts, Bovens from the south were pitted against those of the north. Bouts from the western coast clashed with Boston outsiders. Among the more than 100 competitors who took part there were, besides the entries from New York and Boston, boxers from San Francisco and Los Angeles, from New Orleans and Birmingham, from St. Louis and Indianapolis, from Columbus and Pittsburgh, from Philadelphia and Albany. Surely a representative array and the result was a national tournament in every sense of the word. In fact there was even an international flavor to the affair, for there were representatives from Halifax, St.
John and Montreal included in the lists.
All this brings clearly to mind a tendency which has been evident throughout the whole of the past winter, and that is the increasing interest which is being taken in amateur boxing generally.
Undoubtedly there have been more tournaments and with larger fields of entries than ever before and just as surely has the competition been of a higher order and the attendance at the bouts larger.
As is true with all amateur sport the contenders in these tournaments are in the game for the fun of the thing and the honor that goes with success. They have lots of enthusiasm and a will to win, and the competition in amateur tournaments this winter, particularly in the championships in Boston, has reflected this attitude. Amateur boxing deserves to be congratulated and commended on the strides which it has made during the closing season.

BLACK FAMILY
DEFEAT ROSES

The match game last night on Black's alleys between a team composed of three generations of Blacks and a picked team, called the Roses, resulted in a win for the family of rollers by the narrow margin of four pins. The old story that youth will be served was clearly demonstrated last night as the lowest average was rolled by the grandfather and the highest by one of the junior generation.
The two teams tied the first string but then things began to look black for the Blacks as they lost the next one by a fourteen pin margin. The entire family, however, rallied in the last string and pulled the match out of the fire, winning by eighteen pins. "Pork" Henderson for the Roses tried strenuously to extinguish the Black family single handed as he averaged 108 2-3 for the three strings.
The match, which is the first one of a series of three, was witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic fans. J. G. Black, one of the third generation, was presented with a fully dressed doll as a prize for being high man of the family.

WILL GOLF ALSO BE PROFESSIONALIZED?
Chicago, April 26.—Is golf likely to become a commercialized amusement in America?
This question was proposed among a coterie of mid-western golfers during a discussion of the recent decision of the United States Golf Association to charge admission to its championship tournaments and the exhibition tours of leading golfers felt that there was little likelihood of such an eventuality, because of the nature of the game. Others held that, despite the fact spectators had to walk miles and fight for points of vantage to see the plays, the marvellous growth of golf in America might lead to placing the game in the commercial class.
Professionals of the highest type make enormous sums by playing for the edification of buffers throughout the country, and Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick golfer, is said to have earned a fortune last year by exhibiting his wizardry.

Privately-owned golf links which are let out to all comers for a fee have proved successful, the Harlem Club in Chicago having made such a large profit that several similar enterprises are under way, the promoters feeling that they can make as good returns on the investment as in the baseball or theatrical business. Even the public links in Chicago with a nominal fee make a profit, so numerous and persistent are the players.

While the charge for admission to tournament play is intended to keep down the galleries, the income will be profit, and it is said that in addition to taking exhibition players have in view the scheme of staging full-fledged tournaments to which admission will be charged.

The tours of British professionals, who made as much as $200 a day each, started the idea of the exhibition players.
