SUICIDE AT HARVEY.

MRS. ROSS WHILE IN A DERANGED STATE ENDS HER LIFE BY SWALLOWING A SOLUTION OF PARIS GREEN AND SULPHATE OF COPPER.

Her Father and Brother Insane—On Her Dying Bed She Prays for Deliverance From Her Sufferings—A Full Story of the Affair as Gleaned by a Gazette Reporter.

The residents of Harvey station at the C. P. R. railroad were startled Saturday by the awful announcement that a suicide had been committed in their midst. The news spread like wildfire. Contradictory rumors passed from mouth to mouth and it was several hours before a correct version of the affair could be obtained.

About two miles from Harvey village, at a place called Acton, a family named Brownrig dwell in a poorly furnished but comfortable home. The family is composed of Edward Brownrig; his wife, John Brownrig, his son, and Mrs. Sarah Ross a daughter of the senior Brownrig. Mrs. Ross was a widow whose husband has been dead for nearly a year. Since his death she and her little daughter aged five, have lived with the widow's father. For several days Mrs. Ross has been complaining of feeling unwell, but she was not confined to her bed. Her mind had been somewhat deranged and she had acted very strangely since her illness. On Saturday morning while all the family with the exception of her little daughter, were absent from the house, Mrs. Ross drank a quantity of poison from the effects of which she died a few hours afterwards. About eight o'clock she obtained some paris green and sulphate of copper which she mixed together in an ordinary saucer. How much she really took cannot be authentically stated but the medical practitioner who attended the rash suicide is confident that about two-thirds of a saucer full was taken. The woman herself stated that she drank four teaspoonfuls of the paris green besides considerable of the sulphate of copper, but more than this quantity was removed from her stomach by the use of emetics.

After drinking the poison Mrs. Ross walked to the back door of the house and commenced vomiting. She coolly informed her brother John, who arrived home a few minutes later that she had taken poison with the intention of ending her life, and told him what and how much she had drank. Shortly after the son's entrance the father came in, and on being told of what had occurred he immediately started out for medical assistance. Saddling one of his horses he went on a gallop towards the village. Half a mile from home he obtained a carriage to which he attached the horse, and in this way reached the residence of Dr. Keith, the only medical man at Harvey. Dr. Keith at once proceeded to the scene of the suicide. Arriving there he found that the woman had swallowed the poison fully three hours before, and was then in the agonies of excruciating pains in the region of the stomach. The vomiting had somewhat relieved her, but it was not until emetics were administered by Dr. Keith that she became entirely conscious of her surroundings. She had at first flatly refused to swallow anything which would counteract the poison. She wanted to die, she said, as life for her had no attractions. By dint of coaxing and untiring perserverance Dr. Keith succeeded in forcing antidotes, down the woman's throat. When the stomach had been relieved the woman showed decided signs of improvement and complained only of a burning sensation in her stomach. She still persisted in declaring that she wished to die and could not be forced or persuaded into assisting to save her life. Dr. Keith remained with her about two hours and a half when she was quite feeble but resting easily. Her pulse was weak, almost imperceptible, but she did not then display many signs of suffering nor would she hold any conversation with the neighbors and relatives round her bedside. When the physician departed he had no hopes of the woman's recovery. About half-past four o'clock Saturday afternoon she died. She suffered considerably until an hour before her death when all pain left her. Occasionally scarcely audible phrases came from the dying woman's lips and with almost her last breath she was heard to murmur "Come Lord Jesus and take me quickly to my rest."

Mrs. Ross was thirty-five years of age and was tall, of commanding figure and rather prepossing appearance. She leaves four children, two boys and two girls, three of whom are living with strangers in the immediate vicinity of Harvey.

Shortly after daylight this morning a GAZETTE reporter visited the Brownrig home. It is a small one story house standing back a hundred yards or so from the main road. Mrs. Brownrig was astir when the reporter entered the gate leading to the house. She is almost heartbroken by the sad occurrence of Saturday and could only answer enquiries in a voice choking with sobs. Mrs. Brownrig has led a life of suffering and only now has a full realization of the fact dawned upon her.

Insanity has been hereditary in the Brownrig family and both the elder Brownrig and his son John have been in the asylum at St. John. The old man says he is seventy years of age and that his son is thirty-nine. The minds of both still wander and vacant stares are the only replies that are given to those who inquire out of sympathy about the death which has so clouded this household.

There is a rumor in circulation at Harvey, that Mrs. Ross's life was rendered miserable by ill-treatment on the part of her brother. How true this is cannot be ascertained, but certain it is that there are grounds which would justify such a belief. Both male members of the family are seemingly uninterested in the terrible termination of the life of one who to them should have been as dear almost as life itself.

Dr. Keith has been most kind to the bereaved mother and has done all in his power to alleviate the great sorrow which has come upon her.

An inquest was not thought necessary owing to the confession made by the deceased before her death. She was interred this afternoon from her father's residence.

THE VERY THRONE SHAKEN.

STORM RISING ROUND THE PRINCE OF WALES.

His Chances of Succession Greatly Endangered—Solid Prop of Monarchy is Badly Weakened—Gambling Habits Branded as a Deep Disgrace.

LONDON, June 12.—The storm rising round the Prince of Wales is fast obtaining intensity, endangering his chances of succession to the throne, if not the existence of the English monarchy.

No class seems to be stirred so deeply as the great middle class, the real strength of the country, and hitherto a solid and stolid prop of the monarchy.

Wherever its voice becomes audible, its earnest denunciations of the Prince of Wales are accompanied by regrets at his nearness to the throne.

Representative gatherings of religious bodies—Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, Unitarians and Presbyterians—have already recorded their condemnation. Boards of guardians are going out of their accustomed paths to discuss motions branding the gambling propensities of the prince as a disgrace to the country.

Several Liberal societies have adopted protest against his continuance in the army.

The agitation has every character of permanence. Ere long the glowing fierceness of the popular heat must penetrate to the core of politics, causing party action within and without Parliament.

The Radical members of the House of Commons are opening the attack on the prince, but they have been warned that Mr. Gladstone resents the movement and that the leaders of the opposition will actively show their repugance to associating Liberalism with an agitation tending to cast discredit on the crown.

A group of Radicals, meeting to-night after Cumming's dismissal from the army was gazetted, concurred in the opinion that the leaders had mistaken the feeling of the nation; that even on party grounds it was impossible to neglect the duty to take the sense of Parliament on the position of the Prince of Wales and others concerned. The Radicals will not be content with anything less than action by the military authorities involving the same official reproof of the Prince of Wales, Gen, Williams and Levett.

The prosecution of Cumming and the others for illegal gambling will be made a part of the demand on the government, but it will not be earnestly pressed.

Conferences have been held at the war office, attended by Mr. Stanhope, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Connaught, Gen. Redvers Buller and Col Stracey, and it is reported that they decided that the Prince of Wales, Gen. Williams and Levett had committed no offence against military law, but only a technical breach of the regulations. Mr. Stanhope, therefore basing Monday's response to questions on decision of the conference, will probably declare that the commander-in-chief will deal with the case privately without regard to regulations.

In reference to the Earl of Coventry, it is reported in court circles that he has intimated to Lord Salisbury his readiness to resign the office of master of the buckhounds, but that the acceptance of his resignation is delayed till the government sees how Lord Coventry's retirement is likely to affect the position of the Prince of Wales.

Club sentiment naturally supports the prince.

Although the chairman of the Marlborough Club committee writes repudiating the high play in vogue at the club, and denying that games of hazard are allowed, it is publicly known that the club has just elected Wilson and other baccarat friends of the Prince of Wales.

Nor has the scandal lessened the prince's popularity in the turf set. The rumors of his bad reception at Ascot are a perversion of the facts. The turf crowds seemed bent to console him, and he had the heartiest greeting. He was especially cheered today when his horse Imp won the Highweight plate.

Court circles are much exercised over letters from the German court reflecting the opinion of Emperor William. It is believed that the Emperor has written to the Queen a long and serious criticism on the prince's life, and dilating especially upon the gambling of officers as a grave offence to military honor and made worse by the signing of a paper permitting a colonel of the guards, convicted of cheating, to retain his commission in the army.

The Queen, it is said, forwarded the letter to the Prince of Wales.

Sir William Gordon Cumming arrived at Grantham today from Wallaston Hall and thence started for Forres.

When asked to consider his refusal of a public welcome, Cumming wired the provost of Forres assenting to a demonstration. The municipal authorities will meet the pair at the station. The town will make a holiday of the occasion, and is raising a floral arch on the road to Altyre.

Lady Cumming writes to friends here that she intends to make a prolonged stay at Altyre. After a month's rest and seclusion she will entertain numerous guests.

The Church Times advises the Prince of Wales to sign a renunciation of card playing in the presence of Lord Salisbury and the Archbishop of Canterbury. This, it says, would have a tremendous moral effect over society, and would not harm the Prince of Wales.

THE CABINET.

HON. J. J. C. ABBOTT'S WORK IN ITS FORMATION.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau is invited to enter it, but is not Committed—He Does Not Meet Mr. Abbott With Members of the Ex-Ministry—A Sudden Death and Inquest.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

OTTAWA, June 15.—John Conroy, aged about 40, died suddenly on Cumberland St. yesterday afternoon. He was addicted to drink and had two black eyes the result of a beating received on Friday while intoxicated. Coroner Marks was summoned and at the suggestion of Crown Attorney Lees will hold an inquest this afternoon.

At the request of his Excellency, Hon. J. J. C. Abbott on Saturday last undertook the formation of a cabinet. This decision was arrived at (it was said) after a full understanding with those of his colleagues who had been spoken of in connection with the premiership and with assurances from them of their cordial support. Later in the afternoon Hon. Mr. Abbott said he had no announcement to make as they would have first to take the House into their confidence.

"You may say," he added, "that I have consulted with the members of the late government and have made good progress in the formation of a cabinet." It was commonly reported yesterday that the new cabinet would not differ materially from the old.

A conservative politician said "You will not see any great change at present and I believe no general reconstruction of the Cabinet will take place till after the session. Business will go on smoothly as before.

Having accepted the premiership Hon. Mr. Abbott's first act was to send Mr. Van Horne his resignation from the directorate of the C. P. R., and it is also said he cabled Saturday morning to his agent in London with instructions to sell out all his shares in that railway.

Speaking of this last night an intimate friend of Hon. Mr. Abbott said: "While in the House and connected with the legal board of the C. P. R. Mr. Abbott was very careful never to take any part whatever in questions in parliament affecting directly or indirectly the interests of their railways and the records of the House will show that more than once he gave openly as his reasons for declining to vote on questions concerning the C. P. R., that he did not feel free to advocate the interests of a corporation with which he was intimately associated.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau returned to Ottawa last night from Montreal whither he went on Saturday afternoon to consult his friends on the situation. Mr. Chapleau had the misfortune to slip on a defective sidewalk in Montreal Saturday night while on his way to his hotel and he sustained a severe sprain of the ankle by which he was laid up all day yesterday in Montreal. Speaking to your correspondent Mr. Chapleau said, "I still adhere my original declaration that Sir John Thompson who received the first summons from His Excellency is the only man who can give stability to the new ministry. Mr. Abbott, 'tis true sent for me but I have not committed myself, I am obtaining the advice of my political friends in the province of Quebec."

Hon. Mr. Abbott today invited the members of the ex-ministry to meet him at the Privy council. All were present but Hon. Mr. Chapleau.

BACCARAT IS A FRAUD.

Dr. Parker Says "There is no Chivalry Among Gamblers."

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

LONDON, June 15.—Dr. Parker in his sermon yesterday said, "not a man or woman connected with the baccarat case came out with the slightest honor. There is no chivalry among gamblers. Without disputing the verdict, it is impossible not to feel that Sir William Gordon-Cumming was very meanly used, and not the least by those chiefly responsible for the gambling and so called hospitality. Why all the bother about cheating when the game itself is a complete fraud? Such gambling adds no security to the throne. Long live the Queen."

LEFT A COAT BEHIND.—Yesterday afternoon a number of young men were enjoying themselves pitching cents at the rear of Union hall, North end, when Officer Myles put in an appearance. They hastily decamped leaving an overcoat behind.

WHO WOULD BE RESPONSIBLE.—On King square, Carleton, there are from 20 to 50 barrels of tar placed there by the city authorities. The barrels are leaking freely and much liquid tar is on the surrounding ground. A careless smoker might accidentally start a fire there that would destroy a large portion of the most thickly settled part of Carleton and entail great loss and damage to the community.

IN COOL ATTIRE.—There wasn't anything astonishing in the fact that a young man was engaged in the aimless occupation of wandering up and down King street about 7 o'clock this morning, but when it became known that he was clad only in a rubber coat and a pair of socks, people began to put on their shutters and draw down their blinds. Sergt. Hastings ordered him into his hotel, under pain of arrest. Some one had hidden the young man's clothes and the young man was looking for a drink.

THE ENGINE HORSES at No. 4 engine house have grown so old in the service of the fire department that they are too feeble to handle the big 3½ ton engine at the room and No. 2 engine horses have to be sent down to take No. 4 engine out whenever it is required. There are no horses left to take out No. 2, should it be required while the team is away and in a case where both No. 2 and No. 4 engines were required there would likely be trouble. A young and able span of horses is required at No. 4 room at once.

Of Personal Interest.

St. John's three members, Messrs E. McLeod, C. N. Skinner, Q. C. and J. Douglas Hazen left for Ottawa last evening.

Mr. A. Miller arrived home yesterday, from Liverpool via the Allan line steamer Parisian.

The Nurses' Home Bazaar.

The bazaar in St. Andrew's Rink in aid of the Nurses' Home building fund was largely patronized on Saturday, the closing day. Speeches were delivered by the lieut. governor, the mayor, and by Dr. Bayard. The Kingsville band was present during the evening, and an additional attraction was a performance by the Japanese juggler. At the close of the bazaar many of the articles remaining unsold in the various booths were disposed of by auction. The bazaar has been very successful, and the receipts amount to a good sum.

The choruses by the children numbering some two hundred in all, was a delightful feature of the afternoon's entertainment. Their precision and promptness and the singing of the national anthem and "My Own Canadian Home" reflect the greatest credit on the skill of Mr. T. H. Hall the conductor and who trained the young voices for the occassion, and the happy manner in which the little ones acquitted themselves, was high testimony to the care and time and attention Mr. Hall had bestowed upon them and in furtherance of a very worthy object. The choruses of the children were accompanied by Mr. H. C. Tilley; on the cornet and Mr. Morley McLaughlan on the piano.
