"What is the matter with you Halifax people?" asked a visitor to the City last week. "I went in town at 10 o'clock and met scarcely a dozen persons in the streets. It was the same in the stores. At the noon hour the stores were alive with busy shoppers.—Don't you people ever shop in the early morning?"

We are afraid we must plead 'not guilty' to the charge—the charge of being early astir

Are we "a pleasing land of drowsy head," under the sway of some witching

Go to other cities, and what will you find? At the opening hours the stores are actively patronized. Wise women appreciate the value of shopping in the cool of the early morning and reaching home before the noontide heat has made shopping an uncomfortable and Halifax? Why, in Halifax the noon hour is the stores' busy hour. And it is unfortunate that it should be so, because that is the hour we must render you the least satisfactory service, when half the staff has gone to lunch.

We want to give you satisfaction; satisfaction of the very best kind; in quality, in service and in fair price. We want you to feel that no sale is consummated until you are thoroughly satisfied.

Now, to obtain satisfactory service requires time for deliberate choosing. We are at your service from 8.30 a. m. until 5.30 p. m., but we can serve you best in the early morning---when the sales force is refreshed and its ranks are unbroken.

Suppose you start an Early Shopping Crusade---for the Summer months, at least--and see if you won't like it. Ask a friend to join you, and note how quickly the ranks will swell.

Will you be a crusader?

Grow Tobacco in England.

Tobacco cultivation in Great Britiain has now passed the stages of an experimental hobby, and is fast becoming a recognized industry. Handreds of acres in England, Scowland and Ireland are now being turned into tobacco plantations, says an English paper.

On Maj Whitmore's plantation in Norfolk the chief grower was originally a carpenter by trade, while the greater part of the tending and "suckering" is done by girls. The latter in their brown twill working costumes, which sayer of othe Orient, startled the villagers at first. Under short skirts they wear a sort of trouser reaching to the ankies for ordinary skirts are an impediment when mowing among the plants.

A. few weeks ago an order for ten unces of tobacco seed was sent to Virginia by Mr. J. C. Wallis of Peter-

Wales, Ireland already gets a grant of $30,000 for the purpose.

Until recently, under an act of the Stuarts, tobacco growing in England was profibited. Now, however, the license costs no more than $1.25, but it is, on condition that all the tobacco must be placed in bond.

Against Difficulties.

Under the guidance of its Highways Commission the Province of Manitoba is making huge strides in the direction of better roads. Archibald McGillivray of that body in a recent article describes the methods of work which have obtained such spleodid results.

Note that he was the content of the conten

A rural municipal council has full power under the Manitobs Municipal Act to assess, levy and collect on the rateable property within its municipality in order to provide funds for carrying on its business, of which the reads and schools are by far the most important.

With regard to the appropriation for roads the councils have a free hand in the spending of the money raised for this purpose, except where assistance is received from the Provincial Government from a fund voted yearly by Parliament as "Aid to Municipalities," wherein such case the work must be performed under the inspection of the Department of Public Works, whose staff of engineers is always at the service of the municipalities for the preparing of plans, determining of levels, ste, and giving advice or information with regard to their or information with regard to their E. or information with regard to their construction work.

Except in rare instances when small amounts, of debentures have been sold, the municipalities have provided their road funds up to the present time from direct taxation, and have built their road from this source of revenue, some of them also using the Statute Labor system. Javelin Throwing In London.

Javelin and discus throwing, sports little practiced in this country, but interpretate the process of the Colympic games, are to be among the exercises allowed in some of the London parks this summer. A javelin, the fighting instrument of the ancient Norsemen, is a sort of light spear, varying in length up to five feet, and is thrown or cast after a run. The Finns and the Swedes are the experts in this sport, and some of them have thrown nearly 200 feet. The discus used by the Greeks was a sort of quoit, made of metal or stone, and was about 12 inches in diameter. The modern discus is made of hard wood, is shaped like two inverted saucers placed together, and weighs about four pounds.

It was presented to Burke when he was first elected a member of the House of Commons for Bristol.
