WASHINGTON, April 10 .- The radical theory of Christianity is set forth by Dr. Talmage in this discourse, and remarkable instances of self-sacrifice are brought out for illustration. The text is Hebrews iv., 22-Without shedding of blood is no remission.

blood! Substitution!

John G. Whittier, the last of the great school of American poets that made the last quarter of the century brilliant, asked me in the White mountains one morning after prayers, in which I had given out Cowper's famous hymn about "the fountain filled with blood," "Do you really believe there is a literal application of the blood of Christ to the soul?" My negative reply then is my negative reply now. The Bible statement agrees with all physicians and all physiologists and all scientists in saying that the blood is the life, and in the Christian religion it means simply that Christ's life was given for our life. Hence all this talk of men who say the Bible story of blood is disgusting, and that they don't want what they call a "slaughter house religion," only shows their incapacity and height of anguish of the northern or unwillingness to look through the and southern battlefields. Why did figure of speech toward the thing signified. The blood that on the darkest Friday the world ever saw oozed or trickled or poured from the brow, and the side, and the hands, and the feet of the illustrious sufferer back of Jerusalem in a few hours coagulated and dried up and forever disappeared. and if man had depended on the application of the literal blood of Christ there would not have been a soul saved for the last eighteen centuries.

THE RED WORD.

In order to understand this red word of my text we have only to exercise as much common sense in religion 'as we do in everything else. Pang for pang, hunger for hunger, fatigue for fatigue, tear for tear, blood for blood. life for life, we see every day illustrat-The act of substitution is no novelty, although I hear men talk as though the idea of Christ's suffering substituted for our suffering were something abnormal, something distressingly odd, something wildly eocentric, a solitary episode in the world's history, when I could take you out into this city and before sundown point you to 500 cases of substitution and voluntary suffering of one in behalf of another.

lirium, in which he talks of home and At 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon go among the places of busines or toil, you to find men who by their looks show you that they are overworked. They are prematurely old. They are hastening rapidly toward their decrease. They have gone through crises in business that shattered their nervous system and pulled on the brain. They have a shortness of breath and a pain- in the back of the head and at night an insomnia that alarms them. Why are they drudging at business early and For fun? No. It would be diflate? ficult to exact any amusement out of that exhaustion. Because 'they ' are avaricious? In many cases no. Because their own personal expenses are lavish? No. A few hundred dollars would meet all their wants. The simple fact is the man is enduring all that fatigue and exasperation and wear and tear to keep his home prosperous. There is an invisible line reaching from that store, from that bank, from that shop, from that scaffolding, to a quiet scene a few blocks, a few miles away, and there is the secret of that business endurance. He is simply the champion of a homestead, for which he wins bread and wardrobe and education and prosperity, and in such battle 10,000 men fall. Of ten business men whom I bury nine die of overwork for others. Some sudden disease finds them with no power of resistance, and they are gone. Life for life! Blood for blood! Substitution! A DIM LIGHT IN THE HOUSE. At 1 o'clock tomorrow morning, the hour when slumber is most uninterrupted and profound, walk amid the dwelling houses of the city. Here and there you will find a dim light, because it is the household custom to keep a subdued light burning, but most of the houses from base to top are as dark as though uninhabited. A. merciful God has sent forth the archangel of sleep, and he puts his wings over the city. But yonder is a clear light burning, and outside on a window case ment a glass or pitcher containing food for a sick child. The food is set in the fresh air. This is the sixth night that mother has sat up with that sufferer. She has to the last point obeyed the physician's prescriptions, not giving a drop too much or too little or a moment too soon or too lote. She is very anxious, for she has buried three children with the same disease, and she prays and weeps, each prayer and sob ending with a kiss of the pale cheek. By dint of kindness she gets the little one through the ordeal. After it is all over the mother is taken down. Brain or nervous fever sets in, and one day she leaves the convalescent child with a mother's blessing and goes up to join the three departed ones in the kingdom of heaven. Life for life! Substitution! The fact is that there are an unaccounted number of mothers, who, after they have navigated a large number of children through all the diseases of infancy and got them fairly started up on the flowering slope of boyhood and girlhood, have only strength enough left to die. They fade away. Some call it consumption, some call it nervous pros tration, some call it intermittent or malarial in lisposition, but I call it martyrdom of the domestic circle. Life Gate. our substitute. When did attorney ever endure so much for a pauper client or physician for the patient in the lazaretto or mother for the child in membraneous croup as Christ for us and Christ for you and Christ for me?

Shall any man or woman or child in this audience who has ever suffered for another find it hard to understand this Christly suffering for us? Shall those whose sympathies have been wrung in behalf of the unfortunate have no appreciation of that one moment which was lifted out of all the ages of eternity as most conspicuous when Christ gathered up all the sins of those to be redeemed under his one rolled over and down, troop after troop, tumbling into one awful mass of suffering, hoof of kicking horses gainst brow and breast of captains and colonels and private soldiers, the human and the beastly groan kept up until the day after all was shoveled under because of the malodor arising in that hot month of June.

"There," said our guide, "the high-land regiments lay down on their faces waiting for the moment to spring upon the foe. In that orchard 2,500 men were cut to pieces. Here stood Wellington with white lips, and up that knoll rode Marshal Ney on his sixth horse, five having been shot under him. Here the ranks of the French broke, and Marshal Ney, with his boot slashed of a sword, and his hat off and his face covered with powder and blood, tried to rally troops as he cried. 'Come and see how a marshal of French dies on the battlefield.' From yonder direction Grouchy was expected for the French re-enforcement, but he came not. Around these woods Blucher was looked for to re-enforce the English, and just in time he came up. Yonder is the field where Napoleon stood, his arms through the reins of his horse's bridle, dazed and insane, trying to go back." Scene of a battle that went on from 25 minutes to 12 o'clock on the 18th of June until 4 o'clock, when the English seemed defeated, and their commander cried out: "Boys, you can't think of giving way? Remember old Eng-land!" And the tides turned, and at 8 o'clock in the evening the man of destiny, who was called by his troops Old Two Hundred Thousand, turned away with broken heart, and the fate of centuries was decided.

THE LION AND THE LAMB.

No wonder a great mound has been eared there, nundreds of feet higha mound at the expense of millions of dollars and many years in rising, and on the top is the great Belgian lion of bronze, and a grand old lion it is. But our great Waterloo was in Palestine. There came a day when all hell rode up, led by Apollyon, and the captain of our salvation confronted them alone. The rider on the white hourse of the Apocalypse going out against the black horse cavalry of death, and the battalions of the demoniac and the myrmidons of darkness. From 12 o'clock at noon to 3 o'clock in the afternoon the greatest battle of the universe went on. Eternal destinies were being decided. All the arrows of hell pierced our Chieftain, and the battelaxes struck Him, until brow and check and shoulder and hand and foot were incarnadined with cozing life, but He fought on until He gave a final stroke with sword from Jehovah's buckler, and the commander n chief of hell and all his forces fell back in everlasting ruin, and the victory is ours. And on the mound that celebrates the trimuph we plant this day two figures, not in pronze or iron or sculptured marble, but two figures of living light, the Lion of Judah's tribe and the Lamb that was slain.

look after those patients. He is told arm and all their sorrows under his to lie down; but he fights his attendants until he falls back and is weak er and weaker, and dies for people with whom he had no kinship and far away from his own family, and is hastily put away in a stranger's tomb. and only the fifth part of a newspaper line tells us of his sacrifice-his name just mentioned among five. THE HERO RUSKIN

In the realm of fine arts there was us remarkable an instance. A brilli-ant but hypercriticised painter, Joseph William Turner, was met by a volley of abuse from all the art galleries of Europe. His paintings, which have since won the applause of all civilized nations, "The Fifth Plague of Egypt," "Fishermen on a Lee Shore in Squal-ly Weather," "Calars Pier," "The Sun Rising Through Mist," and "Dido Building Carthage," were then targets for pritics to shoot at. In defence of this outrageously abused man a young author of 24 years, just one year out of college, came forth with his pen and wrote the ablest and most famous essay on art that the world ever saw or ever will see-John Ruskin's "Mod-ern Painters." For seventeen years this author fought the battles of the maltreated artist, and after in poverty and broken heartedness the painter had died and the public tried to undo their cruelties toward him by giving him a big funeral and burial at St Paul's cathedral his old time friend took cut of a tin box 19,000 pieces of paper containing drawings by the old from all sin," and what the old, wornainter, and through many weary anduncompensated months assorted and arranged them for public observation. People say John Ruskin in his old days is cross, misanthropic and morbid. Whatever he may do that he ought not to do, and whatever he may say that he ought not to say, between now and his death, he will leave the world insolvent as far as it has any capacity to pay his author's pen for its chivalric and Christian defense of the poor painter's pencil. John Ruskin for William Turner! Blood for blood! Substitution!

AN EXALTING PRINCIPLE.

What an exalting principle this which leads one to suffer for another! Nothing so kindles enthusiasm or awakens eloquence, or chimes poetic canto, or moves nations. The principle is the dominant one in our religion-Christ the martyr, Christ the celestial hero, Christ the defender, Christ the substitute. No new principle, for it was old as human nature, but now on a grander, wider, higher, deeper and more world resounding scale. The shepherd boy as a champion for Israel with a sling toppled the giant of Phila istine braggadocio in the dust, but here is another David who, for all the armies of churches militant and triumphant, hurls the Goliath of perdition into the defeat, the crash of his brazen armor like an explosion at Hell ther arm and said: "I will atone for these under my right arm and will heal all those under my left arm. Strike me with all thy glittering shafts, oh, eternal justice! Roll over me with all thy surges, ye oceans of sorrow." And the thunderbolts struck him from above, and the seas of trouble rolled up from beneath, hurricane after hurricane and cyclone after cyclone, and then and there in presence of heaven and earth and hell, yea, all worlds witnessing, the price, the bitter price, the transcendent price, the awful price, the glorious price, the infinite price, the eternal price, was paid that sets us free.

THE RELIGION OF BLOOD.

That is what Paul means, that is vhat I mean, that is what all those who have ever had their heart changed h can by "blood." I glory in this reli-gion of blood! I am thrilled as I see the suggestive color in sacramental cup, whether it be of burnished silver set on cloth immaculately white on rough hewn from wood set in table in log hut meeting house of the wilderness. Now I am thrilled as I see the altars of ancient sacrifice crimson with the blood of the slain lamb, and Leviticus is to me not so much the Old Testament as the New. Now I see why the destroying angel passing over Egypt in the night spared all those houses that had blood sprinkled on their doorposts. Now I know what Isaiah means when he speaks of "one in red apparel coming with dyed garments from Bozrah," and whom the Apocalypse means when it describes a heavenly chieftain whose "vesture was dipped in blood," and what John the apostle means when he speaks of the "precious blood that cleanseth out, decrepit missionary Paul means when, in my text, he cries, "Without shedding of blood is no remission." By that blood you and I will be savedor rever saved at all. In all the ages of the world God has not once pardoned a single sin except through the Saviour's explation, and He never will. Glory be to God that the hill back of Jerusalem was the battlefield on which Christ achieved our liberty! It was a most exciting day I spent on the battlefield of Waterloo. Starting out with the morning train from Brussels, Belgium, we arrived in about an hour on that famous spot. A son of one who was in the battle, and who had heard from his father ; thousand times the whole scene re cited, accompanied us over the field. There stood the old Hougomont chateau, the walls dented and scratched and broken and shattered by grapeshot and cannon ball. There is the well in which 300 dying and dead were pitched. There is the chapel, with the head of the infant Christ shot off. There are the gates at which for many hours English and French armies wrestled. Yonder were the 160 guns of the English and the 250 guns of the French. Yonder the Hanoverian hussars fied for the woods.

RICHIBUCTO, N. B., April 14 .-David W. Grierson died this morning aged sixty-two. The deceased had been in failing health for a couple of years. He leaves three daughters, two sens and two sisters. The funeral will be held on Saturday under the auspices of the Masonic order. The late Mr. Grierson was a charter member of Richibucto Division, No. 42, Sons of Temperance, which was organized forty-four years ago. He was connected with Geo. McLeod's lumber business at Kouchibouguac and here for over twenty years.

A heavy rain prevails today, which will swell the water in the brooks for lumber driving. The river is clear of ice.

DRESSING WELL Is Quite Easy When You Know How to Do It.

There are too many women who are areless about their home gowns. They imagine they are thrifty and economic al because they put on from day to day a faded or dingy dress or skirt. Such women are neither economical nor wise; they are either misers or indifferent to the feeling of their family and friends when they act thus. At an expense of from ten to twenty cents for one or two packages of Diamond Dyes any woman can make her faded gowns or skirts as good as new. This kind of home work is wisdom and true economy. This spring thousands of wise and thrifty women are using the Diamond Dyes, giving new life to old and castoff dresses and costumes, fitting them for another season's wear.

When you decide to dye, do not risk your materials with poor dyes or imitations of the Diamond Dyes; see that your dealer gives you the "Diamond." that work so easily and successfully.

DEATH OF A POST OFFICE CLERK

The death of Fred S. Finley, clerk in post office, was heard Wednesday with genuine regret by many friends of the young man. Mr. Finley had been ill only a week and at first the trouble was not considered serious, but during the past three days his condition became so critical that an operation was decided on. He was too far gone, however, and the operation was abandoned. Mr. Finley was perfectly conscious up to the hour of his death and was able to converse with his wife and members of the family. Deceased was the fourth son of Wiliam Finley. His wife, the daughter of the late Oliver Emery, and three young children survive him. He was appointed to the postal service in 1893, and with his fellow-clerks and with those who knew him he was deservedly popular. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved wife and children and for the father, brothers and sisters of the deceased young man.

"I could die for you !" he declared. "I want you to live for me, Alphouse !" she faltered. He staggered as under a blow. "The nerve of some people !" he muttered, and fled away, appalled.
