ADMIRERS FETE SUFFRAGETTES.

Gorgeous Banquet Held at London Hotel

Presiding Officer Says They Have Done
Nothing Sensational—Better Shock
Than Stagnation

LONDON, Dec. 13.—If the suffragettes who were recently imprisoned in Holloway Jail for creating disturbances, achieved nothing else, they can at least boast of having won a gorgeous fete at the Savoy Hotel, where their admirers had a dinner in their honor tonight. The menu was elaborate. The dishes were perfectly served, but a woman in a woman's even if she is a suffragette, and there was the usual feminine unpunctuality in arriving, which delayed the dinner 25 minutes. This tended to spoil the triumph of the Savoy's chef, but the released prisoners and their supporters were too radiantly happy in their best frocks and jewelry to be daunted by mere spoiled dishes. With the exception of a sprinkling of strong-minded, desperately earnest feminists, the company were as gay, gorgeously appareled and bedazzled as any in a west-end drawing room, and the consciousness of their charms was as apparent. The president, the learned political economist, Mrs. Pavey, whom the toastmaster described as "Madam, the Chairman," sparkled with rubies and diamonds. In the course of her speech she declared the suffragettes had done nothing sensational, adding that she understood the newspapers at their meetings, stumbled at this, saying that if they would only stand on their heads they would have something to write about. She thought the result of the agitation could be summed up in the words of a lady who said to her: "I was lukewarm before. Now I am boiling. What can I do?"

BETTER SHOCK THAN STAGNATION.
Elizabeth Robins toasted the ex-prisoners in an excellent speech, the kernel of which was that it was better that the world should be shocked than stand still. The parliamentary vote, she said, was the workmen's best weapon, and 82 per cent. of the women of Great Britain were working women. They had looked at the world long enough from man's viewpoint. A soft, low voice, might be an excellent thing in women, but if you are drowning and calling for help in a soft, low voice, you are foolish. The company celebrating the toast did not hesitate to emulate man's example. They sang "They are Jolly Good Fellows," but it must be admitted that the chorus was somewhat feeble and slightly out of tune. The whole assemblage consumed only six bottles of champagne. Mrs. Pavey announced during the evening that a play had been written around the subject of women suffrage and had been accepted by a London manager.

MAN WHO STUTTERED HAD HOUSE BURNED

He Was Unable to Explain Trouble Until
After Mischief Had Been Done

YANCOVER, B. C., Dec. 13.—Because he stuttered and could not tell the neighbors that his house was afire, Sidney Sager lost his cabin the other night. Sager lives on the outskirts, where neighbors are few and far between, and when his house jumped a dream and upset the lamp there was no one about to help him extinguish the flames. When he saw that the fire was getting the best of him he ran a quarter of a mile to the home of Henry Sager and pounded on the door. When Sager came out Sager began to stutter. He was, in fact, so excited that all he could utter was "fi-fi-fi." Sager looked out but a hill and some woods cut off the blaze from view, and he concluded that there was a fight in progress at Sager's house. So calling his two sons they grabbed their guns and rushed to the rescue. Sager wanted them to bring pails, but he couldn't say bucket any easier than he could say fire, and when the party got to the burning cabin, all they could do was to take out some of their neighbor's belongings. Sager thinks if he had thought of the word "pail" he could have said it.

John Watts and Denis Murphy were reported last night for allowing their horses to stand without being properly covered on the south side of Market street and the north side of King street respectively. Murphy was also reported for having no lights on his carriage.

Given a staple article, and no amount of advertising will give it a permanent sale unless it is backed by a backing of merit; on the other hand, if you do not make it known it will fail, however great the merit.—Earl & Wilson, N. Y.

FUTURE KING WHO IS GOOD MECHANIC

Has also Travelled Extensively and Written Books Recording His Impressions.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 13.—Prince Albert, King Leopold's nephew, has been proclaimed heir-apparent to the Congo Free State. This means that whether Belgium annexes the Congo Free State or not, Prince Albert will eventually rule over the thirty million Africans in the great African empire founded by his uncle. The official announcement concerning Prince Albert and the Free State puts an end to the heated discussion which had taken place on the Belgium press relative to this matter.

Prince Albert probably is the least known to the general public of Continental Europe, but certainly is the least talked about. Just thirty years old, he is a most up-to-date and democratic man. Though a Hohenzollern, through his mother, the Countess of Planders, his conception of what a monarchy should be would undoubtedly drive his kinsman, Emperor William, to despair.

The Prince has travelled extensively, and his accounts, to a certain extent, for his broad-minded, liberal ideas. He took a trip around the world, and was followed by a work dealing with the Spanish rule in the Philippines.

Like his popular wife, Princess Elizabeth, Prince Albert is an enthusiastic motorist. He invariably drives his own car, and may well lay claim to being the most skillful of royal chauffeurs. Nor is the Prince at a loss in case of an accident. While driving with his wife, not long ago, a tire was punctured and he promptly mended it himself. He has ridden to bounds several times on his motor, and is the only scion of royalty who has accomplished such a feat.

KILLED THE FRIEND OF HIS CHILDHOOD

Then Made the Usual Excuse That He Didn't Know Weapon Was Loaded

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13.—Miss Cynthia Uttenreuther, twenty-two years old, was setting the supper table at her home when Peer Baumer, son of a neighbor, with whom she had been reared, entered the room. In laughing mood the young woman assumed an heroic attitude, clapping a bundle of clothes to her breast, and cried: "No, you villain, you shall not taste any of this!"

Baumer, taking the cue from his old-time playmate, sprang to his feet, and in mock anger whipped out a revolver, pointed it at her, and exclaimed: "Curse you, then, take that!"

There was a loud explosion, the noise of breaking glass and a scream of pain as the young woman reeled and fell into the arms of another woman standing by. Baumer had exploded the revolver which he had believed to be unloaded.

The family became panic-stricken, while Baumer frantically seized the girl, repeatedly kissing her and trying to recall her to life. Her mother was summoned from the bedside of her father, dying in a hospital from the result of injuries sustained in a railway accident.

Baumer, who is twenty years old, and a trolley conductor, was the picture of misery.

"God knows, I never intended to shoot her," he said, between his sobs and tears. "Why, we were children together. Her father was my godfather."

"Advertising never paid me," said Jones, despondently.

"Did anything ever pay you?" asked Smith.

"No," replied Jones, hesitatingly.
