AROUND THE CITY

Returned to Home.
The young Norwegian woman, who was taken into custody Monday night by the county policeman on the charge of vagrancy, she having left the Municipal Home, was yesterday returned to the Home by Deputy Chief Jenkins.

Fire in Ruins.
All day yesterday five streams of water were played on the burning ruins of the Christie factory, and a special detail of firemen were kept on the work. It was not until about six o'clock last evening that the fires in the ruins were quenched, and then it was thought it advisable by Chief Blake to keep a stream of water at the ruins during last night in case the fire should break out anew.

POLYGAMY NOT ALLOWED NOW SAYS MORMON

Hagburt Anderson, Missionary to Europe, gives emphatic denial to this idea— People prosperous.

"The idea that Mormons are going about the world trying to secure girls for dubious purposes, which appears to exist in some quarters is absolutely absurd," said Hagburt Anderson, a member of the Mormon church from Ogden, Utah, who is in the city on his way to Europe on a special mission for his church.

"Such an idea can only exist in the minds of people without intelligence, for if they gave the matter a moment's intelligent thought they would realize how ridiculous it is to suppose that the American government would allow us to do anything like that," he added.

"In Salt Lake City 65 per cent of the population are Mormons, and they live on terms of the greatest friendliness with the rest of the population. In my home town some of my best friends are among people of other beliefs. When I left home a distinguished minister of another denomination came to me and wished me success in my mission. In business circles it does not matter what faith a man professes as long as he had ability and integrity."

When Utah entered the American Union as a state it did so under the express condition that polygamy should cease, and the Mormon congregation voted almost unanimously to accept this condition. Those who were living with more than one wife were required to live with their first wife and make provision for their other wives and children. Since Utah became a state I only know of two cases where men were married to more than one wife, and they and the apostles who performed the ceremonies were expelled from the Mormon congregation.

Mr. Anderson, who is accompanied by Joseph Kyar of Salt Lake City, is bound for a six months mission to Sweden, Norway and Denmark. When members of the Mormon congregation are expected to pay their own expenses, going to their chosen fields while engaged in such work, but the church pays their fare back home. There is no compulsion in the matter, and if a man feels that his absence would hurt his business, or if he feels that his family needs him, he need not respond to the call. But the number of those who are willing to leave their business and homes to go away on a missionary tour for periods ranging from three months to a year is large and a great deal of missionary work is being carried on in the Western States and Europe.

John Anderson said it was now the organ of the church to send older folks away on missionary work, in order to reach older people.

Love, being the organization of the church, Mr. Anderson said it was the privilege to a high degree, the community electing their bishops.

ROUSING RECEPTION TO NEW COUNCIL BY MOOSE

Members of Order escort Mayor Frink and Commissioners Wigmore, Russell and Potts, with Ex-commissioner Agar, from City Hall to Home on Hazen Street—Bands and Cheering Thousands in Magnificent Demonstration to Successful Candidates.

One of the striking features of the civic election was the remarkable interest and enthusiasm that attended the results. There was not a single individual on the streets that was not wrapped up in the outcome and from Prince Wm. street up to King street the streets were literally lined with men, women and children ready to catch the first word at the newspaper offices and the official figures at City Hall. Never in the history of civic life in the city of St. John, it is said, was such a demonstration and apparent interest shown on the part of the public as that which attended yesterday's election. Bands lined on Prince William, outside of the newspaper offices and the greatest enthusiasm was shown as the standing was announced from time to time as the turns were received from the different polling booths.

When the four leading candidates were announced the crowd joined in the procession and with three bands in the line-up they escorted, seated in a carriage the Mayor and newly elected commissioners, with ex-commissioner M. E. Agar, to the handsome quarters of the Moose on Hazen street. Here the grounds were decorated with lighted Chinese lanterns and a royal welcoming reception was tendered those newly elected to office. The great interest in the election was fully demonstrated when fully eight thousand people thronged outside the quarters of the Moose to hear the different addresses. The successful candidates were called upon and as they spoke from the carriage in front of the rooms of the Moose their remarks were met with ringing cheers.

Mayor Frink.
When the baronets stopped in front of the Moose Home it was surrounded by thousands of citizens who loudly called for Frink. His Worship stood up on the seat of the conveyance, to make a speech, but was unable to address the public, owing to the strain of a brass band that was playing over time and would not stop even when called on, by a man with a megaphone. At last, when the Mayor got an opportunity, he again mounted the seat of the carriage and gave three hearty cheers and a tiger.

After thanking the electors for returning him to office he said that this campaign was the greatest he had ever been in, and that his opposition was of the most contemptible nature. During the campaign, His Worship said, he had been called a moon and despite all the public hall speeches that had been made and things had been said against him he did not say a word. What he wanted was a man, if he had anything to say was to come out on the grass man to man and the best man win.

His opponent had spoken much about the Gutelius agreement. "Why should I argue with my opponent? The agreement was signed before the Minister of Marine or the Prime Minister knew of it." Many people thought that the Mayor should go to Premier Borden and tell him he was a buffoon, he did not think that he should have done any such thing. "I as Mayor of the City of St. John represent both sides of politics. Where was McLeLan when the Gutelius contract was spoken of? Was he there trying to right a wrong? No, all he had to say was something about hot air artists, etc. McLeLan was then too much interested in a police investigation, which showed that the members of the police force were not grafters. He was too much interested in bringing a man down here from the States to say that the City of St. John was one of the most immoral cities in America. I will repeat it was a crime, and when he says that St. John is a most immoral city, I say that he is a liar."

Mr. McLeLan spoke about the Fore-shore question. He did not tell you he once had a strip of foreshore land about 900 feet, and another 300 feet, and he got it for the sum of twenty dollars a year. When in 1906 when I was a candidate against Edward Sears, McLeLan tried to defeat me and he has harbored a grudge against me, which he carried for years, he carried it even up until today, but he did not win."

Tribute to M. E. Agar
The speaker congratulated the commissioners who had won their election and while he congratulated the winners, he had to regret that one of the men who was a candidate had been defeated. I never sat at the board with a man who was any better than Miles E. Agar. Cheers. He again thanked all who had voted for him and said that he would continue to serve the city as mayor to the very best of his ability, and would strive to bring St. John to the place where he hoped the city would be, one of the leading cities in north America.

Commissioner Wigmore
Commissioner Wigmore was next called to speak. He expressed his warm appreciation of the handsome vote that he had polled in the election. He appreciated the confidence that the people had shown in him, and his aim would be to serve in the best interests of the city. He had served in the old city council and for two years under the commission form of government, and as head of the water and sewerage department had tried to carry out the duties of his department. In being returned to the office with such a handsome vote, he was heartily glad and thankful, and allowing class or nothing else to intervene he would try to serve always in the interest of the city, always appreciating the confidence that the public had placed in him.

While he thanked all those who so ably supported him, he on the other hand was not unthankful to the others whose judgment had directed them otherwise. In being returned to fill again the office of commissioner, he was there to serve in the public interest and he would be found in his office at City Hall just as ready to treat with those who did not vote for

ANNIVERSARY OF BOAT CLUB CELEBRATED

Commodore Gerow congratulated members on rapid growth—Excellent programme rendered.

The fourth anniversary of the founding of the St. John Power Boat Club was celebrated last evening in the club's quarters at Marble Cove. There was a large attendance and Commodore S. P. Gerow, who presided congratulated the club on its rapid growth. The original membership of the club was 47 and now the membership is 515 with 230 boats.

An interesting programme was gone through with during the evening. The club orchestra rendered a number of selections. Three reels of comic pictures were shown and greatly enjoyed. The original membership of the club was 47 and now the membership is 515 with 230 boats.

OLD COUNTRY MEN TO FARM IN PROVINCE

Arthur Brooks and James Moffatt believe East is better than West—Retired business men.

Arthur Brooks, a retired business man of England, has bought a government farm at Bellisle, Kings County. Mr. Brooks was at one time active in politics in Great Britain and ran for the Imperial parliament but was defeated.

Another native of the old country, who has recently bought a government farm is John Moffatt, who has taken up a farm at Havelock, Kings County. Mr. Moffatt spent several years in Western Canada, but though he did very well while there was not satisfied with conditions. A few weeks ago he came to New Brunswick to look over the situation here, and after the work in the farm and decided to settle here it is presumed that he considers New Brunswick a better place to establish a home than the west.

Stored and insured for the summer at reasonable charges—H. Mont Jones, 54 King street.

On Thursday morning F. A. Dykeman & Co. will have a big alteration sale. They have secured the two upper floors in the adjoining building and will tear down the partition between the two, which will form one large room. They also propose putting a new front in their premises and taking in the adjoining stairway. These changes will necessitate moving a lot of goods, and the changing of departments, and they propose reducing their stock by putting on sale everything in their store, and one will have an opportunity of buying new spring goods from any department at a great discount.
