J. CHILDS - WINS UNIVERSITY WOMEN WARD ELECTION BY 1,585 MAJORITY

East London Druggist Defeats J. M. Donahue, Solicitor and Labor Candidate, in Contest For City Council Vacancy Left by Late Alderman C. G. Moorhead.

By a majority of 1,585, H. J. Childs druggist, 632 Dundas street, was Satur-to that time.

Majorities Everywhere.

Everyone of the 22 subdivisions in the ward gave Alderman-Elect Childs tremendous majorities. The railway poll conducted for three days before the election resulted in 60 votes for Mr. Childs and 9 for Mr. Donahue. The greatest vote was recorded in subdivision 60, where 127 votes for Childs and 15 for Donahue were cast. Donahue made his best run in Subdivision 63, where he got 27 votes.

where he got 27 votes.

Better organization and the widespread popularity of the winning candi-date, who has long been one of the ward's most prominent businessmen, are given as explanations of his over-whelming success. Mr. Donahue, although he has lately been active in labor circles, was not widely known throughout the ward. Labor has never the success at the support in this section. received strong support in this section of the city. All three of its candidates were defeated there last January. Donahue's vots Saturday was well up to the average which they polled on that occasion.

Alderman-Elect Childs, after expressing his thanks to his supporters, pledged himself to exert his best efforts to the advancement of the city in every way. EXTRA SERVICE VIA GRAND TRUNK

Was Expecting Defeat.

Mr. Donahue was fairly certain of the sutcome of the contest early in the day, although he did not expect the majority against him to be so heavy. He believed that under the conditions he had made a good run. He expressed thanks to those who had supported him in the campaign, and also complimented his opponent on the manner in which he had conducted his campaign. "It was a clean fight throughout, and I cannot speak too highly of Mr. Childs," he said.

Wisdom of Age.

The old, he continued, should be reverenced for their wisdom born of experience: They have wisdom which the young could know nothing about, for knowledge was much different than wisdom. He urged all boys to go to their fathers for advice. The worst father, he said, would give better advice than the best among strangers.

He strongly advised all mothers and fathers to never give their worldly possessions to their children while they lived. Too many young people, he said, forget what they owe to their parents, and so when they married they shut their parents in one small room. "Keep

A second way of training within the industry was to put one skilled worker and several others in various stages of learning on one machine, and constantly shift workers in this manner until each knew her job. Still a third way of training the workers was known as the three-position line of working, in this case a girl having not only to learn to be able to take the job above her, but also to teach the worker below her how to take her job.

The educational departments in big department stores were also discussed, as were the special classes maintained for those whose business it is to train others.

The speaker closed with the question: "What types of courses shall be given the girl between 14 and 16 years of age?" The solution of such a problem can only be arrived at by the
