BATHING

in running water with a rubber brush, through the teeth of which the water flows—a nice idea. The brush, as large as the hand, is soft and pliable. Water enters through a six-foot rubber tube connected to the faucets. The teeth are rubber and perforated. For rinsing the hair after a shampoo, the brush is great. For showering, it takes the place of an overhead arrangement—no curtains needed—no muss. For rubbing the flesh, use the brush dry or wet—it is exhilarating.
