Editor's Talk

DO you ever read mystery stories? If you do you will appreciate the one which begins in this week's issue. It has many unusual features. It is brightly written. The action is brisk. The surprises are numerous. The solution cannot be foretold even by shrewd guessers. It is almost equal to any tale which has emanated from the whimsical brain of the author of "Sherlock Holmes" or that of the author of "The Prisoner of Zenda." Andrew Loring has written half a dozen stories, but this is his latest and best.

ARE you interested in advertising? If so, we have a suggestion to make. We will give a year's subscription to the Canadian Courier to the person who will send us the best hundred word answer to the question, "Which is the most convincing advertisement in this issue?" The emphasis is on the words "most convincing"; no other feature is to count. Answers must be in our office not later than October 26th, and must be addressed "Advertising Competition, Canadian Courier, Toronto." One hundred words is the limit.

THIS is the subscription season. Every reader may help in getting new subscribers. If you are willing to aid us in this way, let us know, and the circulation manager will tell you what your reward will be. There are also some special offers to new subscribers, and a post card will bring the information. We appreciate any help our present subscribers may lend us, because it enables us to publish a larger and better national weekly.

WINDSOR TABLE SALT

"You are very lucky girls to have Salt like this"

"When I was just starting housekeeping, the only good thing about the salt we had, was its salty taste."

"But you girls can get"

Windsor Table Salt

—that excellent salt which stays fresh and dry in all kinds of weather—and never "cakes" or "hardens." You will never have any trouble with Windsor Table Salt."
