THE COPPER CENTRE

Importance of Butte to the World as An Industrial Centre.

PARTICULARS OF ITS GROWTH

Its Story Embraced in a Space of Less Than a Early Days.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 26.—Butte has become the metropolis of Montana and a city of supreme importance, Johannesburg is the only other city on the globe of equal interest to the commercial and financial worlds. The life blood of the world's commerce being gold, to Johannesburg must be given the creuit of supplying the most prolific golden stream that has ever flowed from the bosom of mother earth. Butte has enriched the nation, too, with heards of gold and silver dug out of its hills, but it is vast copper deposits that give it its unique position. The ebb and flow of its copper production is watched money centre on in every metal and either silnent. A Boer and English war would probably shut off for years the golden stream that now flows from Sou Africa, but such a catastrophe would not derange the commerce of the world half as much as would result if the great copper mines of Butte were suddenly dered barren and unproductive. Were the Butte mines to close down for six months there would be a copper famine in Europe and in America. Every indusnter on the globe would be affected thereby to a revolutionary extent, for Butte produces almost 25 per cent of world's copper. Butte is therefore an twined, not with those of Montana alone, but with the fortune of the whole commercial and industrial world mercial and industrial world.

growth and its wonderful development is on what not only of national, but of world-wide Joseph b interest, and the men who aided, guided or directed that development and shaped destinies of Butte are not only of local but of international importance. And this story is embraced in a span of less than a quarter of a century. present city 25 years ago was a hamlet of wooden snacks and cabins, where perhaps about one thousand fron-tier folks had congregated. They had been drawn thither by the fame of Mon tana's gold fields or in search of adventure or perhaps to escape immunity for Some of them had been hunters and trappers a few had led a charmed life through the dangers and horrors of the civil war and others had been chasing the phantom of gold through the Rockies for a couple of decades and were then delving for it in the sands of the mountain stream that rolled along the foothills of Butte. The nearest railroad was at Ogden, 400 miles away, and Montana's communication with the out-side world was carried on through stages over roads where the brigand and the were not unknown, or by means bandit were not unknown, or by means of those picturesque stern-wheel steamers of the Missouri, which have utterly disappeared before the iron horse of civilization. On the crests and slopes of the mountains overlooking Butte pine trees grew and flourished and eagles built their nests. But the pioneers had discovered quartz lodes which showed traces of gold and silver and from which they expected in time to reap a golden harvest. Charles Larshee had several locations on these had several locations on these lodes, but he would gladly at that time one of them for a cayuse and a saddle or for a week's board. Charles Warren and Miles Finlen were joint owners in another claim, now not suit either, so they shook dice to de-cide to whom it should belong. Finlen, with his Irish luck, won the mine but had to pay for the drings and Warren at that time thought he had the best of the bargain. Then Marcus Daly, young, vigorous and aggressive, appeared upon the scene and took hold of the Alice, a quartz silver lode above on the hill, and began developing it for Wasker Bros. of Salt Lake. Daly had the miner's instinct or genius and even then, when but little more than 30 years old, had hardly a peer in experience of mines or ability in developing them. With his advent began the development of Butte's quartz mines It was slow development at first for transportation made rapid development impossible. In July, 1876, Chief Joseph was on the war path with his Indian things stranger than the wildest dream braves and Dame Rumor foretold the deed. The major therefore nominated War-ren his chief of staff and from that mo-family in the beautiful Warren became virtual eph. The horde was then marching through the Bitter Root valley hastening towards the passes leading to Wyoming, where it hoped to join other Indian where it hoped to join tribes. Warren soon had the battalion finely mounted and an ambulance and a commissariat sufficient for an army corps. issued war-Warren, adjutant, and as he marched through the Deer Lodge valley the Warren warrants were ex-changed with the ranchers for all the sup-plies and luxuries which the genial chief of staff believed necessary for his brave

But the boys of the Butte battalion had a glorious time. Every evening beside their camp fires they enjoyed a barbecue Quarter of a Century-Some of the Stir- and toasted, in cups of Girard's "best," ring Incidents Which Occurred in the the major and his incomparable chief of staff. And be it remembered that in that battalion were many men who have since become famous, if not illustrious. John Noyes was there, captain of one company, and James A. Talbott, captain of another Alex. Johnstone commanded another company and William McDermott was and disband. It is 23 years since that bons achieved when two weeks later he encountered and annihilated Chief Joseph and his warriors at the sanguinary battle of the Big Hole. The return march of the battalion was attended by events that deserve to be chronicled by the pen of a Sports and banquets marked the scene of every march was marked for long by empty cans and bottles and the bones of cattle slaughtered for the barbecue,

For years the Warren warrants were bones of contention in polities and in the The story of its origin, its rise, its in the west. My muse fears to speculate on what would have happened had Chief Joseph burst through the passes and fallen upon the Clark and Warren troopers. In that event, the history of many northwestern state would most likely have been different, for the men who formed that expedition have since taken no small share in shaping the fortunes of Washington, Idaho and tana and even of the Province of British

Many of then have gone elsewhere. Charley Larabee took five million dollars which he made out of the Boston & Montana company mines to the shores of Puget Sound and there he is engaged in the upbuilding of Fairhaven, one of the future cities of the Pacific slope. General Warren has transferred his operations of British Columbia and the gold fields of northeastern Oregon. Others have transplanted themselves from the mountain of Butte to taste an old age of rest and peace amid the orange groves of California or of Florida. Some are chasing fortune anew amid the icy terrors of the Klondike, but others are still here-merchant princes, bankers or mining nabobs-who love to sit round

This will undoubtedly be accomplished but its accomplishment needs more and vigor and youth and strength Mr. Daly now has at his disposal. he is a man of many sides and capable in future, as in the past, of achieving the impossible. Ist. The treatment of non-union men by union men. When organized labor protostected itself against the scab it is considered brutal and an interference with individual liberty; in fact, the union men being the benefits to the scab. The public never troubled themselves to find out the reasons for this; they should put themselves to find out the reasons for this; they should put themselves to find out the reasons for this; they should put them.

Take the case of a deserter in time of war leaving his country and going over to the sand and the authorities the scab which and not only a greater freedom but great freedom but grea war leaving his country and going over to the enemy.
