QUEBEC GOING DRY

The Province of Quebec not having yet adopted Prohibition of the Liquor traffic, as has every other province of the Dominion, the people of Quebec City voted on the Canada Temperance Act on the fourth instant. The Act was adopted by a majority of 3,272 in a poll of about 16,000. As several cities of Quebec have no license, Montreal and Sherbrooke are now the only or about the only cities where the liquor traffic is legal. A movement is already under way to make these cities dry. The temperance victory in Quebec should make the passing of a Dominion-wide prohibition law an early possibility. The economic saving, to say nothing of the physical, mental and moral gain that will be made by the elimination of the whiskey business, is incalculable. And there are other drugs and narcotics besides liquor, of which the use could be very beneficially discontinued.

AN ECONOMIC QUESTION

That the agitation for prohibition of the liquor traffic is not confined to temperance organizations is shown by the fact that the Industrial Committee of the city of Port Arthur, Ontario, has adopted the following: "That this council take an emphatic stand in demanding that there be total prohibition of the manufacture of spirituous liquors, thus saving to the Empire immense quantities of grain and other food products, and demand that the wishes of the majority of the people be respected and prompt action be taken and that this resolution be sent individually to each member of the Dominion house and to each member of the Senate, requesting them to reply, stating their stand on this vital question and a copy of this resolution with a copy of all replies be kept on file."

Could Not Lift Stick of Wood

Would Almost Faint From Severe Pain in Back.—Doctors Could Not get the Kidneys Set Right

Benton, N. B. Oct. 18.—A great many people suffer the results of deranged kidneys and do not understand the cause of trouble or the way to obtain cure. The writer of this letter suffered excruciating pains in the back and in vain his physician tried to cure him. For some reason or other his medicines did not have the desired effect.

Mr. Olts' brother was a merchant selling, among other medicines, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and he heard his customers telling about how they were cured of kidney derangements by their use. This led to Mr. Olts' putting them to the test with the splendid results reported in this letter.

Mr. E. C. Olts, Benton, Carleton County, N. B., writes: "I am glad to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered from my kidneys, which at one time were so bad I could not lift a stick of wood without getting on my knees, and then would almost faint from the pain in my back. I consulted a doctor about it, and he gave me some medicine, but it did not help me. My brother, who is a merchant, and carries all your medicines, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I got one box, and they helped me, so I got another one, and kept on until I had taken five boxes, which cured me. I have had no trouble with my back since, and am never without Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house. Last summer I also suffered from piles. I used three boxes of your Ointment and it cured them. I can certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Pills and Ointment."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one will a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co.

WHERE THE GOOD GOODS COME FROM

"The Seven Pearls"

Six months to recover the Seven Pearls of the Sultan's necklace or suffer the penalty of being sent to his harem! This is the agreement made by a beautiful young American girl. Her father is held as hostage, and if she fails to return at appointed time, he will die.

It all happens in the 1st episode of Pathé's new serial at the Happy Hour on Monday night. Mollie King is the star with Creighton Hale and Leo Bary featured. Pretty Miss King as Ilma, brought up in the land of the crescent by her foster father, a Turk. He was highly honored, when the Seven Pearls were entrusted to his care by the Sultan. He promised to guard them with his life, but they are stolen from him indirectly through Ilma's fault.

Harry Drake, a careless, susceptible, New York youth, of good family and some money, is traveling in Europe. He is looking for adventure; strolling through the streets, he happens to wander into the vicinity of Ilma's home. Ilma goes out into a little walled garden with a harp in the moonlight. The romantic Harry hears the sound and tries to locate the voice. Finally by edging along a narrow path at the edge of the water, he gets right below her and sings back. Curious, Ilma peeks over the garden wall. Learning over too far, she loses her grip and falls into the Bosphorus. Harry makes a fine rescue, but her screams bring several Turks on the spot.

In her gratitude, Ilma permits Harry to kiss her. This enrages the Turks, who, thinking of the disgrace attendant upon allowing a Christian to look upon a woman's face, beat him, take all his money and throw him back into the Bosphorus. Ilma receives as punishment the penalty of wearing her veil for a month. Harry revives and finds that the Turks have robbed him of everything. He has no funds in Constantinople.

Grady, an American crook, sees the Sultan give the Pearls to Ilma's father, but cannot get in. While he is racking his brain, Harry appears, pours out his tale of woe, and appeals to him as a fellow countryman for help. Grady sees a chance to use Harry's youth and agility. He tells Harry that he too has been robbed of a pearl necklace and that if he will get it back for him, his reward will be one of the pearls.

Ilma, hunting for her veil, finds the Pearls, takes them to her boudoir and tries them on. She then lays them down near the barred window. Harry climbs the wall, reaches in with a cane and literally books the pearls. Ilma tries to grab his arm, but not recognizing her in the half-light, he gets away with them. The Sultan returns and the loss is discovered. Losing his temper, he orders the execution of Ilma's foster father. Ilma rushes in, confesses and agrees to return them in six months. If she fails she will enter the harem and meanwhile her father is to be held as hostage.

Delighted with the Pearls, Grady wishes Harry to join the gang. Harry then learns to his horror that the Pearls are stolen property, and he refuses his share. Harry knows better than to squelch, as Grady and his gang are a notorious crowd; and he accepts his help to get back to New York. Arriving in New York, Harry is followed by Ilma and a mysterious spy sent by the Sultan. During the trip he receives a note telling him that his crime is known, and that death will follow unless the stolen Pearls are returned. That night in his apartment he receives a note from Grady, informing him not to be a fool, that he had concealed the Pearl in the heel of his shoe. Harry finds the Pearl as Grady instructed. Locking it in his chest drawer, he leaves the room. A few minutes after he hears someone at the door. Entering he discovers a masked figure. Drawing his revolver, he secures the Pearl. A second figure holds Harry up, and takes the Pearl from him. As the second figure moves towards the door, a strange band rushes in, and takes the Pearl from the second figure. As
