

Boys who have been

In a very little village there lived a very little boy named Jamie. His mother loved him and he loved his mother. This little boy ran to his mother. His mother did not like the idea of losing her little Jamie, but he had to go to school and she had to go to work.

The boy went on board a ship going to India. They had a very good captain and some very good sailors, and when little Jamie came down at night there was no one who looked at him. He had an easy time of it then. But coming back from India some of the sailors deserted, and the captain had to get fresh ones. The first night when the sailors were going into their berths, he saw little Jamie come down to say his prayers, and he went up to him and giving him a box on the ear said, "None of that here, sir."

Now, among the crew there was another deserter, a seaman named Tom. Tom was a very good sailor, but he was a very bad boy. He was very fond of drink and he was very fond of fighting. One day he saw little Jamie and he thought he would give him a lesson. He went up to him and gave him a box on the ear, and then he went down to his berth. The next night Jamie said to himself, "I don't like to make any more trouble for the captain, I will say my prayers in my berth. I will say my prayers before the sailors, I will get into my hammock and say my prayers to myself. Now, what will I do that is not afraid of Tom, but that will keep away from the seaman who has boxed the little fellow. Then Tom said to himself, "I will say my prayers in my berth. I will say my prayers before the sailors, I will get into my hammock and say my prayers to myself. Now, what will I do that is not afraid of Tom, but that will keep away from the seaman who has boxed the little fellow. Then Tom said to himself, "I will say my prayers in my berth. I will say my prayers before the sailors, I will get into my hammock and say my prayers to myself. Now, what will I do that is not afraid of Tom, but that will keep away from the seaman who has boxed the little fellow."

In the water a long time, and it was quite stiff and powerless, but it has since recovered.

The dog appeared overcome when it saw the animal taken out of the water, following it closely as it was taken to the barn, and it came down again later in the day to ascertain how the animal was getting along.

Concinnat wants the constitution of the United States amended in such a manner as to recognize the existence of a Supreme Being. Although one of their minor coins is inscribed with the legend at the head of this paragraph, yet the president of the United States is very much opposed to the change.
