FOR BOYS AND CIRLS.

IUnder this heading we will insert letters on any subject from boys and girls. The letters must be brief and written on one side of the paper. The name and address must be given, to appear with the letter. Address: "AUNT PRODENCE, ADVERTISER Office, London, Ont."

CULLODEN, June 2.

CULLODEN, June 2.

DEAR AUNT FRUDENCE;

As I saw the other letters I thought I would write a short one. I am 12 years old and in the Fourth Book. I study history, geography, grammar, arithmetic, literature and a few other studies connected with the fourth class. I have one brother and one little sister. I go to Sunday school two every Sunday—to the Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday schools. My pa is a tinsmith, and is the superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school. I think I will close now. From your loving neice,

MINNIE M. PEDLOW.

[You certainly are very fond of Sunday school when you go twice on one Sunday.

—AUNT PRUDENCE.]

DUNNINGVILLE, Mich., May 13, 1891. DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

DUNNINGVILLE, Mich., May 18, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

It is now some time since I have written to you. I intended to write before this, but it seemed hard to get started. I can't tell you how glad I am for that little preach, as you called it, for I was tired of the way most of my little cousins' letters read. I know what you are most interested in now, and I know you will be glad to hear of all of us going to school, then you are willing to leave us to the kind care of our teacher. Now, Aunt Prudence, I am going to tell you there are two things I am sorry for; one is, because you have grey hair, and again I am sorry you have so little. Now, I hope your hair will come in thick and brown again, for that is the color I expect it used to be. My hair is kind of yellow, or, as ma says, it is kind of delicate ginger. I must tell you our crope look good; our potatoes are just coming up and we have some early sweet corn up as high as my finger. Well, for fear you will be tired of my linge, I will close. So good-bye, dear suntie. From

JULIA H. Brodie.

[I am glad your crops are looking so well. Write me again.—Aunt Prudence.]

DUNNINGVILLE, Mich. May 13, 1891. DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

I thought I would write to you too. My sister Julia has written different times, and me says I may write and be your niece too. I am not going to school these days for I am troubled with earache so much. Sometimes I can't go to sleep it is so sore. Ma is busy at garden these days, and I have to mind the baby for her. Sometimes I get tired, but for all shat I love him. There was a man offered me 10 cents for him, but we can't spare him. Well, I am 6 years old, and this is my first letter. I would like to see you. I will have to close now and go to rock my little brother. Good-bye. From LILLIE E. BEODIE.

[So you would not let the little brother go

[So you would not let the little brother go for 10 cents? I will give you $1 for him, if you are sure he does not need very much rocking. -AUNT PRUDENCE.]

CASHMERE, May 6, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

I saw your little children's letters in the Advertiser, and I thought I would write too. I am 15 years eld and I am going to school yet, and I thought I would write with her. I have five sisters and four brothers. One of my little sisters is not very well. We do not take the Advertiser, but we take the Toronto Mail and the Fireside. I live on the bank of River Thames, and they catch a lot of fish in the spring. Your niece,

HATTIE EVERINGHAM.

TORONTO, JUNE 1, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

I am a boy 15 years old, and would like to be one of your nephews. As soon as the to be one of your nephews. As soon as the examinations are over I am going with aome boy friends camping in Muskoka, where we can row, sail, swim and shoot all we want to. Have you ever been there? I took a prize for mathematics and another for literature last year at school, but do not know as yet whether I shall gain one this year. I have four brothers and two sisters. I hope you will have a pleasant summer. May I write again? From your loving nephew,

Hugh Brown.

CHRISTIAN ISLAND, May 27, 1881.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

I take the liberty of addressing you as my aunt, being assured that you would like to have me as one of your many nieces. Though I am an Indiana girl, yet I am certain you will not object to that. I am 14 years of age. I go to school and study reading, arithmetic, geography, grammar, history, English language, writing and drawing. The school is supported by the Methodist Society and taught by an Indian. I just came home a few weeks ago from visiting my friends at Cape Croker. Christian Island is situated on Georgian Bay. I am afraid I am taking too much space in the letter box. I will write again. I hope to see my letter in print. I am a member of the White Badge.

In Denyer the other day E. M. Felix brought suit against George Ross Lewin for $890. He charges that the defendant undertook to winter some horses and colts for him in 1890. The care was so bad, he alleges, that a valuable mare with foal died of starvation and other horses were reduced in value by the searcity of food.

According to frequent reports from American race tracks, the millenium of honesty in the "hoss business" does not seem to have arrived yet. Years ago Oliver Wendell Holmes, with an eye on the then present and a prophetic glance at the future, wrote:

"When ne who has a horse for sale Shall put his mettle to the proof Without a lie for every nail That holds the iron to the hoof."

"Till then let Cummings blaze away, And Miller's saints blow up the glab But when you see that blessed day Then order your ascension robe."

In a steeplechase on the Morphettville course on April 18 at the Adelaide cup meeting Alfred Reed was riding a horse called Messenger. At the stone wall in front of the grand stand a mare called Emile jumped with him, but the mare blundered, altimately rolled over, got one foot entanggled in Messenger's rein and tore the head part of the bridle, which let the bit fall out of his mouth. Reed nevertheless kept him on the course, with the bit against his chest, went a mile and a half over six more fences and finished a splendid second.

Mr. Ariel Lathrop, brother-in-law of Senator Stanford, who for a number of years has had charge of that gentleman's interests, was traveling last week on his way east, where he will spend the summer. Not long ago there was considerable friction at Palo Alto between Marvin and Mr. Lathrop, the result being that the celebrated colt trainer handed in his resignation to Senator Stanford on that gentleman's return from Europe. The Senator investigated the matter and soon found that Marvin was in the right, the result being that Mr. Lathrop's authority at Palo Alto was made subordinate to that of the Alto was made subordinate to that of the Alto was made subordinate to that of the man's return from Europe. Ariel Lathrope, brother-in-law to Governor Stanford, owner of the Palo Alto Farm, California, having seen Axtell at Terre Haute, states that the horse was a revelation and never was he so surprised as to his individuality. He expected after making due allowance for tales told by those with "fish to sell" to see a little jack-legged stallion with only a fast record in his favor. Instead he saw a grand specimen of the trotter in structural and muscular development. After taking a few measurements and viewing the stallion sufficiently long to fully take in his grand points, he said: "No wonder he trots and trots fast."

paper which gives some of the author's suggestions about horses. However ridiculous they may seem to horsemen in this enlightened age, they are little worse than some modern practices. Here is his way of curing a balky or restive horse:

"Let a footman stand behind you with a shrewd cat tied at the end of a pole, with her bellie upward, so that her mouth and claws be at liberty. When your horse doth staic or go backward let him thrust the cat betwixt his thighs.

"Let the footman and the standers by threaten the horse with a terrible noise, and you shall see it shall make him go.

"Also the shrill crie of a hedgehog, being strait tied by the foot under the horse's taile, is a reminder of like force, which was proved by Master Vincentic Respino, a Neopolitan, who corrected by this means an old, restive horse of the king's." But Blundeuil did not think this was good every-day practice, for he says further: "The waies rehearsed are not to be commonlie used; but only in time of neede, and then with good discretion; for otherwise you should but amaze your horse and drive him to despair, for he shall never understand your meanes."

Anxious Mamma—Little Dick is upstairs, crying with the toothache. Practical Papa—Take him around to the dentist's. Haven't any money? You won't need any money. The toothache will stop before you get there.

The English horse See Song made a Volices of the work of the colts. When the colt learns to eat flaxseed jelly it usually becomes fond of it. He might begin by taking a handful of bran and a handful of oats and mixing two tablespoonfuls of the flaxseed jelly with it and getting this amount twice a day. Perhaps it would be as well to teach the colts first to take the bran and oats, then adding the jelly. some extent take its place. There are only two or three ways left to us of meeting the difficulty now. It is too late to grow corn for the silo, or even for green food in best form, although if put in at once it might yet answer for the latter purpose.

once it might yet answer for the latter purpose.

Three things may yet be done which will prove helpful if rains come soon. Our clover meadows may be cut early, and we can grow millet and rape. If clover meadows are cut early we have still a chance of a second crop, which may go far to make up for the loss of the first one. This, of course, can only be done where the common red clover is grown.

Millet furnishes an excellent substitute for hay, as may of our farmers very well know, and it may be sown any time this month. It will furnish from one to three tons of fodder, as valuable ton for ton for feeding purposes as good hay when it is cut at the right time and properly cured. It is also much relished by the stock. It is an excellent food for mileh cows. There are several varieties, as common millet, Hungarian grass, German millet, Italian or golden millet, and the Golden Wonder millet. The common millet and Hungarian grass are best known in this country, and are probably as good as any, although the fields.

grass are best known in this country, and are probably as good as any, although the Golden Wonder millet is well spoken of in the United States.

Millet will grow on a great variety of soils, but is best adapted to humus soils and rich loams. It is least adapted to light sands and gravels. It will not germinate well in lumpy soils. As it is a shallow feeding plant, thorough pulverization is of much consequence in preparing a seed bed. It should be cut when fully headed out and cured after the methods adopted in curing It should be out when fully headed out and cured after the methods adopted in curing clover. If cured by the sunlight while lying where the mower left it the color fades, and its feeding value is much impaired. It should therefore be cured in the cock after it has become thoroughly wilted. If not cut until the seeds begin to ripen it becomes woody and its feeding value is much impaired. It is a plant that flourishes best in warm weather and is casily injured by frost at any stage of the

There is still time to sow rape, and in bushel to one bushel of seed is sown per acte.

There is still time to sow rape, and in root-growing sections this will prove of much service in providing pasture in autumn which may be used in the place of supplies of fodder, which, under other circumstances, would have to be used. Barley may also be sown on up to the end of June, and even later to cut for green fodder. It has not been much used for this purpose in this country, but has proved of much service in providing fodder in autumn in the New England States.

These dry seasons which keep coming occasionally remind us of the importance of growing a variety of fodder crops. Those who have a good crop of rye to cut as a substitute for hay need not have so much concern. On this farm we have 40 acres of rye. We have been using it since about the first of the month for the stock, and have some twenty acres of it standing in the shock to be used as winterfodder. The remaining portion will be put in the silo. The ground on which it grew is now being plowed for rape. We have thus secured a crop which, this year, is more valuable acre for acre than hay. We expect to get a crop of rape, as last year, of more value for feeding than the rye, will thoroughly clean the ground at the same time, and it will be left in a good condition for growing crop the following year.

Of course, many of our farmers know all about the subjects of which this letter treats, but sometimes there is no harm in being reminded of what we already know. Yours, etc.,

Ministers' Assessments.

To the Editor of the Adventises:

Permit me to call attention to a manifest injustice in the recent assessment of ministers' salaries in this city, in accordance with an act passed by the Ontario Legislature. the assessors have not considered the est mated annual rental as a part of his in come, and that on the other hand it has been so regarded in every case where the minister pays his own rent. It is confessedly in the power of the assessors to add the house rent. Since they have not done so the only remaining reasons are that they are incapable, or indolent, or purposely partial. I am most willing to pay my full share towards the revenue of the city, but I am not willing to do so while others of whom the majority have larger salaries than I are permitted to escape from paying their just dues by the fiction that a certain part of their income does not pass through their hands.
