Severe colds are easily cured by the use of Eick's Anti-Consumptive Syrup a medicine of extraordinary penetrating and healing properties. It is acknowledged by those who have used it as being the best medicine sold for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs, and all affections of the throat and chest. Its agreeableness to the taste makes it a favorite with children.

NATURE'S FOUR LINK CHAIN OF SUCCESS,

Pure Air, Pure Water, Pure Homes, and Pure Food.

Medical scientists tell us that fully 75 per cent of the ill-health of the nation could be banished if people were properly fed from youth up. Granose and Granola are evolutions of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. They are the proper foods for children to begin on, for people to continue on, and for the old folks, too.

They are nature's best foods, put through natural processes, surrounded by superlative cleanliness, purified and sterilized so that they can be presented to the eater not only in the strength of nutriment, but in the quality of absolute purity.

[Testimonial.]
Medical Superintendent's Office, Insane Asylum, London, Ont.

I have examined and tested the foods of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, Granose Biscuits and Granose Flakes, and I have no hesitation in saying that in many cases of dyspepsia or of weak digestion they are most valuable. For healthy persons they are a most delicious food. (Signed) R. M. BUCKE.

It was much enjoyed, and well deserved the cordial resolution which the year-end thanks of the audience, Miss Templeton gave a charming Scotch song, which compelled an encore; her kindness being acknowledged in a warm and hearty manner by the audience. ESTEEMED PIONEER DEAD.

Last week the death occurred, at St. Joseph's Hospital, of Mr. John Davidson, after only a few days' illness. The deceased had for 43 years been a resident of Denfield and neighborhood, where he followed the occupation of farmer. He was a native of Cumberland, England, and had reached the advanced age of 79 years. For a quiet and kind hearted man, he retained many friends, who will regret to learn of his death. Mr. Davidson had never married. About a year ago he came to London to make his home with his brother, Mr. George Davidson, at 191 St. James street, from whence the funeral took place on Saturday. He was buried in the cemetery at St. W. Hill, of St. John the Evangelist Church, conducted the services.

MR. JONES TO RETIRE.

A Toronto dispatch dated yesterday says: A surprise was given the local railway world today when a rumor was circulated that G. C. Jones, superintendent of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway, formerly assistant superintendent at London, was about to sever his connection with the management on account of ill-health. Mr. Jones has been ill for some time, and only when forced accepted a six months' leave of absence, and spent it in his old home in Missouri. Since arriving here, Mr. Jones has had several friends that his medical advisers there say that the climate in Canada is too strong for him, and that his lungs cannot stand it. Mr. Jones is a member of the Grand Trunk Railway Association, and only when forced accepted a six months' leave of absence, and spent it in his old home in Missouri. MUSIC AND DRAMA

Marguerita Sylva in "The Princess Chic."

Enjoyable as was last night's performance of "Princess Chic," at the New Grand, it cannot be said that the cast is an improvement over that of the former presentation here, in January of last year, save in the selection of the beautiful Belgian, Miss Marguerita Sylva, to fill the title-role. Miss Sylva amply fulfilled all that had been predicted of her. Her dark, fascinating, expressive face, her superb figure and her pleasing vocal powers all combined to render her an ideal exponent of the part, and one whose place would be hard to fill. Compared to the work of Miss Sylva, that of Missie Methot, who assumed the role on the opera's first appearance here, and who has never been heard of either before or since her meteoric-like appearance in the comic opera sky, "was as moonlight unto sunlight, or as water unto wine." One of Miss Sylva's chief charms was her pretty foreign accent, but before this charm comes that of her eyes, those wonderful entrancing eyes that were never still for a moment. It must have been such eyes that drew from the deeply-mourned Billy Baxter, deceased, that heartfelt cry, "My boy, my boy, talk about your swell lamps!" Next to Miss Sylva ranks Hubert Wilkie, the versatile artist, who is equally at home in light opera and comedy, and who was last seen here as Miles Graham, the soldier man, in "When We Were Twenty-One." As the bold Duke of Burgundy, Mr. Wilkie was completely acceptable, and in securing him as a successor to John Danvers, the management have done well. Had such comedians as Richard Golden, Harry Brown, Will Mandeville and J. C. Miron not been already seen here in the leading comedy roles, the work of Thomas C. Leary, Neil McNeil, Walter A. Lavender and Edna M. Metcalf would have had a higher value set upon it. Their topical ditty in the third act, "How Are We to Know?" was the most popular number of the evening, and secured half a dozen recalls. Walter A. Lawrence, who plays the role of King Louis XI, and the swaggering Brabant, is also responsible for the excellent stage management of the piece, and is the only remaining member of the original company. Miss Edna Floyd made a charming Estelle, and with Mr. Miron and secured half a dozen recalls. Walter A. Lawrence, who plays the role of King Louis XI, and the swaggering Brabant, is also responsible for the excellent stage management of the piece, and is the only remaining member of the original company.

"FROM SCOTLAND YARD."

Tomorrow's attraction at the New Grand will be the sensational melodrama, "From Scotland Yard." It is credited with being the best of its class, and carries a full carload of scenery. The scale of prices is a popular one: matinee, 25 and 15 cents (children); evening, 50, 35 and 25 cents.

"A BRACE OF PARTRIDGES."

To see Mr. H. Reeves-Smith in "A Brace of Partridges" is a lesson in refined humor, and that art of this kind is appreciated is shown by his current success in London, America and England. A great treat is in store for those who have secured seats for "A Brace of Partridges" at the Grand Opera House, on Tuesday, Nov. 26.

"THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH."

The following is the comment made in the New York Tribune by William Winter, one of the leading American critics, on "The Bonnie Brier Bush," and Mr. J. H. Stoddard's acting therein: "In Mr. Stoddard's acting, 'The Bonnie Brier Bush' is a popular one; it seems above all art, and can be enjoyed by all."

FOOD STOPPED IT.

Good Food Worth More Than a Gold Mine.

To find a food that will put an absolute stop to "running down" is better than finding a gold mine. It is a pie when they begin to run down go from one food to another and find it impossible to find a food that will stop the progress of disease. Grape-Nuts Food is the most nourishing known and will set one right if that is possible.

The experience of a Louisiana lady will be interesting. Mrs. J. H. Graham, Wallace, La., writes, "I received a severe nervous shock some years ago and from overwork and grief broke down. My food did not agree with me and I lost flesh rapidly. I changed from one kind of food to another, but was unable to stop the loss of flesh and strength.

I do not exaggerate when I say that I finally became, in reality, a living skeleton. My nights were sleepless, and I was compelled to take opiates in various forms. After trying all sorts of different foods without success, I finally got down to toasted bread, with a little butter, and after a while this began to sour and I could no longer eat it. Then I took to toasted crackers and lived on them for several weeks, but kept getting weaker.

One day I was brought knowledge of Grape-Nuts Food, and it seemed to me from the dealer's pamphlet that it was just the sort of food I could digest. I began by eating a small portion just as it comes from the package, dry, and gradually increasing the amount each day, sometimes warming and adding a little butter.

My improvement began at once for it afforded me the nourishment that I had been starving for. No more harassing pains and indigestion. For a month I ate nothing but Grape-Nuts and a little cream and sugar, then I fasted for a week, and then I ate the food and I know its powerful nourishing properties. My physician says that my whole trouble was the lack of power to digest food, and that no other food that he knows of would have brought me out of the trouble except Grape-Nuts.

scarcely be borne. Nothing so simply touching, so reverent, so awful in its purpose of justice, and so deplorable in its weakness of human grief, has been seen on the stage. In the element of simplicity—in the something that comes straight from the heart and goes straight to the hearts of others—this impersonation transcends anything of its class that the present (ay has known."

FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

"The Little Red Schoolhouse" is a sweet story of South Carolina, and is pure and of heart interest. It has never been written a prettier story or one with more humanity in it. Mr. F. C. Whitney personally vouches for the excellence of the play, and the grandeur of its scenic effects. "The Little Red Schoolhouse" will be presented at the Grand Opera House Thursday, Nov. 28, with a special holiday matinee.

VIOLIN VIRTUOSO COMING.

One of the notable musical events of the season is the forthcoming visit at the Auditorium, on Monday, Dec. 2, of Miss Carolina Urso. Mme. Urso's long career has been one succession of honors, in which her unblemished character as a woman and her supremacy as an artist received equal recognition. Again and again she has been the bright particular star at the concerts of the greatest musical organizations. Her repertoire contains over 400 pieces, from the concerto of Beethoven to the Carnival of Venice, all of which she plays without notes—a most prodigious feat of memory. She will be assisted by Miss Inez Marston, a pleasing soprano, and M. Sheldon Pearce, a pianiste of talent.

CASTLE SQUARE STOCK COMPANY.

Tonight at the London Opera House the Castle Square Company will present the laughable comedy, "Wanted—A Wife," in which James A. Callahan and Miss Bozile Stevens will be seen in characters that will keep the house in roars of laughter. A complete change of specialties will be given. A novel matinee will be given on Saturday, when school cards will be distributed. The scholar who makes the most words out of the title, "Castle Square Stock Company," will be given a prize in money.

"THAT DAINTY WIDOW."

The Buffalo Courier says of "That Dainty Widow," which is announced for two performances at the London Opera House on Thanksgiving Day: "There is no dull scene or a tedious moment from the rising of the curtain until the finale, and if theater-goers are looking for laughter they can have it. The comedy is a masterpiece of this kind of comedy." The company is headed by Miss Nellie Franklin.

PLUNGED INTO THE ICY WATER

Robert L. Peddie Drowns Himself in Detroit River.

Formerly Resided in London, Where He Received Education and Was Married.

Robert L. Peddie, a former Londoner, who came to Detroit from this city about twenty years ago, committed suicide yesterday by jumping off the Belle Isle bridge into the Detroit River. Peddie received his education in this city, and was married here. A dispatch received from Detroit last night says: In spite of the vigilance of the guards on the Belle Isle bridge, who have been on the lookout since the recent suicide there, Robert L. Peddie, formerly a well-known tailor here, jumped from the bridge at about 10:10 this morning, and after floating down with the current for several hundred yards, disappeared. Peddie had been on the bridge looking over and walking along, and when on the sixth span from the island he quickly turned his head over and undercoats, Derby hat and gold-rimmed spectacles and climbed over the railing, while the men yelling and waving their arms, saw too late, for into the cold water he plunged, the few who had seen him or been attracted by the cries of the men looking on, ran the edge and saw the body come to the surface. Peddie floated along with the current, apparently making no effort to strike out. Some minutes elapsed before the black speck disappeared down near a scow anchored opposite the ferry dock.

The police were at once notified, and the gate and other articles were taken to the island station, but soon removed to Elmwood station. The overcoat was a new one of dark gray Oxford. The undercoat was a dark one, one of the inside pockets was the name "R. L. Peddie," and the name of the makers and date. The pockets were filled with letters and papers, such as a man traveling for a tailor's trimming house would carry. The one card of most importance in the identification was one, the back of which was written with a lead pencil: "R. L. Peddie, 10 Avery Terrace. Please forgive me, Lizzie, Florence, Gertrude and Will." It told the story of the end of the career of a man once prosperous in his business in Detroit.

For some years Peddie conducted a hat store here on Grand street, and for a time on Woodward avenue, in the Whitney building. Then he went on the road, and has traveled for several firms, one of the recent ones being Henry Allen & Sons, dealers in woollens, in the Puritan building. He left them about three months ago. Peddie was inclined to be despondent," said a member of the firm. "After he left us he went to work for McNally, of Pittsburgh. We don't know where he has been lately."

Mrs. Peddie was, of course, greatly shocked when the sad news was broken to her. "He was not responsible for his course," said Mrs. Peddie when she had composed herself somewhat. "Twenty years ago he suffered a sunstroke, and never fully recovered. When business worried him he was fastidious and a bit of a snob, and the grief-stricken widow and mother, with dry eyes, tried to rise and walk across the room."

Robert L. Peddie was 52 years of age, and an old resident of Detroit, and well-known in business circles.

Besides the widow and two brothers, James Peddie, of Windsor, and F. J. Peddie, of Detroit, he leaves a family of four children. They are Chester W., a young man of about 22, a traveling agent; two daughters, Gertrude and Florence, and one other son, Will, who is in the army in the Philippines.
