

President Maines Gets a Warmish Reception From London Fans

Admits Errors in Judgment and Promises Reconsideration of Crichlow Case

MAINES IN STORMY SESSION WITH LOCAL FANS ADMITS ERRORS

Says He'll Give Crichlow's Case Reconsideration—Ump De Lave There, and So Was Question of Eight New Balls in His Grip.

[By C. S. G.]

"I admit I made a mistake in not publishing a bulletin that any player striking an umpire would be suspended from the Mint League. I admit that the London fans have a grievance. I'll make no decision tonight, but I promise to give the case reconsideration."

The above is the gist of the remarks of President Maines made while in a dash for the door and through it to catch his train after having had a stormy session with a group of local baseball fans in the Trenches House during an hour's session.

After a group of fans had met the train and courteously escorted the president to the station, the masks of friendly greeting were discarded, and the president was surrounded by a group of fans who were not so friendly. He was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case, and he was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case, and he was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case.

Eight balls in his grip. Unfortunately for the real business at hand, the question of eight new balls found in Delave's grip during the series he last worked here took up most of the meeting.

These balls were found in Delave's grip after the game in which Crichlow was suspended. Delave was confronted with the fact by President Maines, and he was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case, and he was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case, and he was asked to give a statement on the Crichlow case.

Confronted by another fan with a remark he had made, Delave said he never said it and that the fan said it. He said he was a liar. The fan started a hurdie race over the field, and Delave, but peace was restored.

President Maines pinned the league head's shoulders to the argumentative man when he had been notified that one of the clubs had been notified that suspension for the season was striking umpires.

Had it in his mind. "I had it in my mind from the first of the season," Maines repeated several times. "Why didn't you tell somebody today?" in several strident voices.

"I admit I made a mistake," confessed the president. "I made a mistake in not publishing a bulletin that any player striking an umpire would be suspended from the Mint League."

"I admit that was a mistake too," which was the part of the president as he swept up his document brief and watch and started out for the train.

"I am willing to come back here next week and fight this thing out if it takes half a day," was another remark President Maines made in his conversational and confidential race for the train.

NELSON LONG HIGH GUN AT TILLSONBURG

Broke 98 Birds Out of 100—Well-Known Shooters Entered.

TILLSONBURG, Aug. 11.—The annual John tournament of the Tillsonburg and Stratford Gun Clubs was held here today, and attracted a large entry of far-famed trap shooters. Shortly after dinner a drizzling rain set in, making the shooting somewhat difficult. Nelson Long of Hamilton and J. E. Jennings of Toronto were tied for high gun for the day for the Cooey Rifle, each breaking 98 birds out of 100. Owing to darkness, there could be no shoot-off, and on a toss Long was declared the winner. George Jennings, 12-year-old son of J. E. Jennings, also took his part in the trophy events.
