would complicate the recent treaty between Russia, Japan and the United States.

The delegates to the Behring sea meeting had confidently expected to bring their labors to a close to-day, but after two arduous sessions, lasting until 5:30 this afternoon, the experts had not been able to reconcile all their differences. It was determined, therefore, to continue the meeting to-morrow. Up to the time of closing to-day the experts had made good progress, reaching agreement upon all but three or four reserved propositions. These it is expected can be agreed upon in the morning session to morrow, so that the experts report can be signed and the meeting concluded, so far as they are concerned.
