-The French Shore difficulty in Newfoundland is a subject about which little is written now-a-days; the claims and counter-claims of the British, French and Newfoundland governments are pigeon-holed and the danger of appears to have subsided. And yet, the French Shore question is being steadily pressed to a settlement though the process of settling is imperceptible except to the close observer. The officers of the British government acting within their indisputable rights are making the fisheries unprofitable for the French fishermen, and of course when profit vanishes the industry will be abandoned. The present year is the most disastrous on record for the fishermen, and the reason is because of the insufficient supply of Isaac's Harbor, in this province. is because of the insufficient supply of bait. The Newfoundland law prohibits the sale of bait to French fishermen, and the vigilant enforcement of this enactment makes it exceedingly risky work for the islander who seeks to evade it and exchange his herring for the Frenchmen's money. Then the prohibiting of the sale has forced the tions on their own account in order profits from the fishing with their own bait supplies are far in excess of those arising from the sale of bait. The Newfoundlander with his eyes open will not risk the parents of exceptions. not risk the penalty of a violated law and this year their catch falls far o'clock. short of half the average quantity. because it diminishes the profits from the sale of their catch, but because it ment subsidy upon which the industry largely depends. This subsidy equals seventy per cent. of the market value of the catch, providing it does not fall below a prescribed minimum, and it is the French government's donation towards the maintenance of the fishing colonies at St. Pierre and Miquelon which it uses as recruiting grounds for the French navy. Aided by this generous bounty the Frenchmen have kept up their quotas by purchasing from the Newfoundlanders at a price considerably in excess of the market rulings. In doing this they violated the French law which restricted the bounty to their own catch and French of the market rulings. The British law prevents him from purchasing bait supplies and the French chasing bait supplies and the French law prevents him from buying fish. Without bait he cannot fish; if he does not catch fish he will lose his subsidy and be ruined. His survival under the existing conditions is a matter of a short time. PREFERENTIAL TARIFFS.

(New York Outlook.) It was significant of the irritation of protectionists in Canada with present conditions there that, following the close of the Premiers' Conference, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in session at Halifax, passed a resolu-tion calling for the immediate revision of the Dominion tariff, with the object of greater protection to manufactu of greater protection to manufacturers, especially against goods imported from the United States. While the resolution declares that the minimum tariff must afford adequate protection to Canadian producers, it favors a substantial preference toward the United Kingdom or other parts of the Empire with which reciprocal preferential trade can be arranged. Mr. Parts Canadian, Minister of Public Canadian, Minister of Public ential trade can be arranged. Mr Farte, Canadian Minister of Public Works, made the principal speech supporting this resolution. He said that Canadians must no longer see their markets slaughtered by American manufacturers; that the needs of Canada were a higher tariff and an improvement of the carrier. ment of waterways (the Georgian Bay route from the grain-fields of the West is three hundred miles shorter than that by New York.) This improve-ment will undoubtedly take place, and Canada will probably ere long have a fast Atlantic line with termini at Quebec in the summer and Halifax in the winter. The change in the tariff is not so certain, however. Even if it took place, it would have no terrors for the people on this side of the border. The present Canadian discrimination of one-third in favor of the United King-dom, which was expected to main our competition, has not been sufficient to revent our exports to Canada from prevent our exports to Canada nom-becoming greater than ever. We may not forget, nevertheless, that Canada is an increasing formidable competitor in the wheat export market. Such a reliable authority as Lord Strathcona declares that within a decade Canadian wheat will suffice for England's needs. When that day comes, Mr. Chamberlain, the British Colonial Secretary, and Sir Wilfred Laurier, Premier of Canada, may be justified the basis for a slight preference te-ward Canadian wheat. If that prefer-ence should be shown, an active interst will be taken by our grain-grower tunity, our millers would be using a large part of the Canadian wheat pro-duct, exporting it abroad as flour. We should not deny reciprocity to Canada any more than to Cuba. The United States government report states that the New England hay crop states that the New England hay crop was saved with difficulty on account of showery weather. Much of it was badly damaged and the crop is far below the average as to quality. The potato crop is believed to be fairly good except in some sections where wet weather in the spring caused damage. The apple outlook is said to be the best in years.
