CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.
A visit to the lumber offices this week found everybody still taking a very hopeful view of the outlook for lumber. The general opinion is that prices are likely to remain near the present mark for some months yet. Reports from outside points are equally sanguine of a large demand and firm market. The demand has been accelerated during the past week by milder weather. Dealers who are fortunate enough to have any unsold stock on hand are making good profits, as the high prices asked for the new cut facilitate sales of old stock. The number of inquiries for lumber for manufacturing and building purposes is steadily increasing, and to meet the demand the retail dealers are buying quite liberally. A large per-
