AN AMERICAN SAFETY-LAMP TEST.

One of the Pennsylvania mine inspectors, believing that practical tests are of as much importance as a theoretical examination, has arranged a practical demonstration by which miners making application for certificates will have a chance to display their knowledge of gas. Suspended from a rope in the ceiling of a room provided for the purpose, this inspector has a large glass globe into which he turns a jet of natural gas, until it is filled. The windows are then completely darkened, and the interior of the room is identical with that of a gaseous mine, so far as light and atmospheric conditions are concerned. Each candidate for a certificate is given a safety-lamp and required to work it in pure air, mixed air and gas. In this way it can soon be determined whether or not the men know the utility of the safety-lamp, and are efficient in its use. This test is, of course, supplementary to the oral examination required.
