Christian Bell Porcelain works with leading Canadian artists, including James Hill, Peter Etril Snyder, Eric Copeland and Joseph Purcell to produce limited edition porcelain art plates. Our collector plates are widely recognized for their unique images, beauty and quality of both art and porcelain body.

Our first venture was the acclaimed series, "Preserving A Way of Life". Featuring Canada's recognized chronicler of Mennonite heritage, Peter Etril Snyder, it is a consistent and beloved performer in the plate market.

Known for innovation and originality, Christian Bell, in 1980, introduced its famous "Age of Steam" series. Created from original paintings by Theodore A. Xaras, the series gained wide acceptance in the previously ignored male market. The "Great Atlantic Liners" series is the latest Xaras/Christian Bell project.

Appealing to middle and upper gift and art markets, retailers favour Christian Bell for its reliable distribution, superb quality, short shelf-life and high profit returns.

Art and porcelain are combined to create a highly-prized line of limited edition art plates.

"Home of the Trog", Claycrafters manufactures a variety of delightful clay and fabric craft items, including Christmas decorations. Our products are uniquely designed, and are sold to retailers from coast-to-coast in Canada.

We also offer some light assembly subcontracting work and have a laminated button machine to serve the custom advertising and promotions markets.

Claycrafters is a proud part of the Oakville Association for the Mentally Retarded. Our workshop functions as a vocational training centre providing assistance to mentally handicapped adults, over 18 years of age. The result is a range of essential programs which assist employees/trainees to develop their work skills to the maximum, while providing them with meaningful employment. At the same time, we are producing a line of giftwares, lovingly manufactured and guaranteed to please.

Sheltered workshop environment's delightful clay products welcomed by retailers nationwide.
