arose and joined in singing the hymn, "There is no night in Homeland."

Enormous Procession.

After the mourners had entered carriages, the funeral procession started for Norwood Cemetery, where the remains will be interred. There was an enormous number of coaches in the procession, and the entire route from the tabernacle to the cemetery was lined by an immense concourse of people.

Three mounted policemen preceded the hearse. On the coffin there lay an open Bible. The sides of the hearse bore the text: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." As the cortege moved slowly along the spectators removed their hats and bowed their heads. The bells of St. Mary's and St. Mark's Churches tolled solemnly as the funeral procession passed. The flags displayed along the route followed by the procession were all at half mast.

Places of business between Kensington and Clapham were closed, and many of the houses had their blinds drawn. The children from the Stockwell Orphanage occupied a raised platform that had been erected for their use at a point where a good view of the procession could be had. This platform was draped with black crape and other mourning emblems.

A large number of people took advantage of the deep feeling created by the noted divine's death, and they did a brisk trade in selling Mr. Spurgeon's portraits, biographies and mourning rosettes.
