of which are so inadequate and so insecure. Supposing that Mr. Windham's motion should be rejected, he had framed his in such a manner as to come as an amendment to lord Hawkesbury's; and according to the precedent of the other, might make it in the shape of a resolution, by leaving out all the words of the address but that, and then proceed:

"It is the opinion of this house, that the omission of various opportunities of negotiating a peace with advantage to this country, and more especially the rejection of the overtures made by the chief consul of France, in January 1800, appears to this house to have led to a state of affairs, which rendered peace so necessary as to justify the important and painful sacrifices which his majesty has been advised to make for the attainment thereof."
