ENTHUSIASM AT HIGH PITCH WHEN TEAMS ANNOUNCE TOTAL RECEIVED IN GREAT CAMPAIGN

Cheer After Cheer Given as Captains Tell Result of Work at Headquarters Luncheon and, Then at Auction Sale Following, Further Large Amounts Are Added.

NTHUSIASM at its highest pitch marked the closing luncheon in McConkey's old building last night, when the final returns were announced of the money collected for the British Red Cross by fae teams who ave been canvassing "he city for the past three days. As the captain of was cheered and cheered again, and when the grand total of $464.659 was announced every man present rose to cheer no more. This amount was exclusive of the money received by the suction sale of different articles, the um collected by the school children, in the United States, collections made in the churches last night and the corps of postmen who went from house to house gathering in small amounts. The most touching incident in connection with the wind-up luncheon last night was the sale by J. W. Woods, chairman, of a rosary which was contributed by Mrs. Howard, one of the waitresses, whose husband is at the front. This rosary was picked up on the field in Ypres after the battle, and was sent to Mrs. Howard by her husband. Bids opened at fifty dollars and jumped quickly, until H. H. Williams purchased the rosary for $150. "Mrs.

Howard, said Mr. Woods, "has the satisfaction of knowing that she has given $150 to the Red Cross fund." Then there were more cheers. The Day's Collections. WAS $505 850 IN COLD WAS $505,859 IN COLD CASH

Returns Are Incomplete and Those in Charge of the Work Expect at Least Twenty Thousand Dollars More.

ORONTO'S answer to the appeal made by the rBtiish Red Cross Society is announced to be $505.859, with the returns not complete. When Noel Marshall made this statement last night at the meeting of Red Cross workers, the 1800 people who were crowded into Convocation Hall burst into applause and handkerchiefs were waved, while all rose to their feet to rejoice in the showing that had been made in the four-day campaign. When Mrs. Plumptre brought in a report of the work which the women of Toronto had done, it was learned for the first time that the half-million mark had been passed.

It was finally the work of the women's organization that made the grand total possible. The contribution of $18,000 from the school children and of $20,000 from the various collecting stations thruout the city, with 21 still to be heard from, was what brought the figures over the $500,000 mark. The brief remarks of Mrs. Plumtre were cheered to the echo. 'This sum does not compare with the spirit of Toronto's people which has met our appeal," declared Mr. Marshall. "There was only one subscription amounting to $2500, and only one individual subscription larger than $1000. The great bulk of the money was secured in small amounts."

J. W. Woods, president of the Toronto committee, was called upon as "the man behind the gun." He gave assurance that the week just past had been the most enjoyable in his life. "The man who stands in the limitelight and who gets the credit does not deserve as much as the people who stood behind him and did the work," declared Mr. Woods. "I would have been sorry for the people of Toronto if the cause had not been a worthy one, since they would have the more of the formidable of the money was secured in small amounts."

been done. The mark set by the central committee, both for Toronto and for the entire province, had been far exceeded. "The value is not so much in the spirit in which it was sent that the greatest value lies," declared the premier. "This free-will offering will do infinitely more than an enforced tax. The province has been taxed already, but it will be taxed more for war and philanthropic purposes.
